6 Overcome In D. C. Area As Mercury Climbs to 93

Many Workers Are Sent Home; Continued Heat Forecast for Today

A hot sun, filtering through high overcast, parboiled Washington yesterday with 93 degrees—a tie for the season's heat record.

Little comfort was offered in the forecast for today, which calls for more of the same—sunny, hot and humid.

Greater Washington, fortunate in missing the Midwest's corn-popping temperatures of the last week, struggled through a hot and steamy Tuesday night, went to work bleary-eyed and sweltering.

Workers Released Early

District building employes and many Government workers in buildings not air-conditioned were released from work at 3 p. m. due to the heat.

At least six persons were overcome by the heat in Washington. Michael Sims, 44, whose address was not given, was treated at Emergency Hospital about 3 p. m. and released. Earlier, Henry Thomas, 30, of 913 M st. nw., was brought to Casualty Hospital after being overcome at Southern ave. and Ridge rd. se.

Four others taken to hospitals in the area for heat stroke or exhaustion, were: Moses Gentry, 20, of Franconia rd., Alexandria, Va., taken to the Alexandria Hospital; Charles Parker, 65, of 820 Montgomery st., Alexandria, also to Alexandria Hospital; Robert Atkinson, 44, of 611 Florence st, ne., to Arlington Hospital, and Mrs. Dorothy Hill, 30, of 8010 Eastern dr., Silver Spring, Md., taken to the Washington Sanitarium.

The mercury touched 93 degrees at 3:14 p. m., tying the season's high mark set on June 11 and July 30.

While the Mid-west began cooling off with scattered showers, particularly in the corn belt, the Eastern seaboard dripped with heat and humidity. The cool air mass moving into the Plains States can't get past Ohio, the Weather Bureau in Chicago indicated.

Near record temperatures dotted the Eastern Seaboard. Boston had 99 degrees; Albany, N. Y., 98, and Newark, N. J., 97. Farther west, long-sweltering Chicago had 93 degrees; Burlington, Iowa, 94. Ninety-degree readings in Oklahoma and Texas were common.

Reports of widespread damage to corn came from Indiana, Nebraska and Illinois. Illinois' crop report said the heat and drought have cut corn prospects by at least nine million bushels and Nebraskans said they will be lucky to have even a "fair" crop.

Annapolis Looks Like Washington To Warm Texans

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 13.—Two bewildered Texans waded through the shimmering heat waves up to the Maryland State House today—and thought it was the Nation's Capitol.

"Is this where the President meets people?" they asked Elizabeth Bowling Cook, one of Governor Lane's secretaries.

The President probably would, "if he came here," the visitors were told. Then they asked to see the President's desk and where he slept.

The secretary lined them up on the right trail.

It was 92 degrees in the Annapolis area about that time. It was 92 in Fort Worth, Tex., also—but 93 in D. C.

French Communists Lose Another Round

Paris, Aug. 13 (AP).—The French National Assembly today approved by 399 votes to 190 a new, Communist-opposed municipal elections law based on simple majority. The Communists favored proportional representation, which the law provides only for cities of over 9000.

Rules Bunch Death Accidental

By Robert Bruskin and Al Lewis
Post Reporters

Forest J. Bunch, 64, died accidentally from injuries resulting from a fall after he had a stroke, a coroner's jury decided last night in exonerating police of any responsibility.

The jury deliberated 20 minutes to decide that the stroke and fall occurred before Bunch was picked up by police while lying unconscious in front of 1302 F st. ne. July 29, at 12:45 a. m.

The skull fracture was not discovered at Gallinger Hospital when Bunch was taken there for treatment at 6:35 a. m. the same day after he had been booked for intoxication.

Walked in First Trip

Hospital internes testified that on that first trip to the hospital Bunch walked into the treatment room and walked out aagin. They said he complained of a headache and was found to be suffering from high blood pressure, but there was little trace of alcoholism.

At 7:15 p. m. that same night Bunch became ill again in his cell at the Ninth Precinct and was removed to Gallinger in an ambulance. He was in a coma. It was only then, physicians at the hospital and internes testified, that he was found to have a linear fracture at the back of his skull. He died after an operation to remove a blood clot caused by the fracture on August 4.

Twenty-six witnesses gave testimony of varying conflict, but the family of Bunch all declared he met with foul play while in police custody.

Mrs. Gealie E. Bunch, 60, 2145 N. Quebec st., Arlington, said she

Dry Weather Cuts Supply Of D. C. Milk

Pastures and Feed Crops Sriveling Throughout Area

Continued dry weather is parching the pastures and farmlands of the Washington milkshed, cutting production and threatening even more dire results if the rains hold off.

Milk production from the dairylands of Fairfax County, Va., important source supply for milk deliveries in Washington, was yesterday reported already off 10 per cent.

In Montgomery County, Md., total production of the county's largest herds of dairy cattle was down 6 to 7 per cent despite costly supplementary feedings of grain and ensilage. Normally rich pastures of bluegrass were turning to brown under the hot sun and rainless days.

Situation Critical

W. Lawson King, whose six Montgomery County dairy herds make him an authority on the subject, said yesterday his farms have had to augment pasture feeding with grain and ensilage for the past 10 days.

"The situation," he declared, "is rapidly getting serious."

Corn crops, important to cattle's winter feeding, are "standing still" in the fields, King said.

Joseph E. Beard, Fairfax County agricultural agent, estimated the 10 per cent production drop in his county, where, he said, dairymen are being forced to augment pasture feeding with cuttings from the season's first crop of hay.

He said no rain of benefit has fallen in the county for 10 days now and only the plentiful rains early in the season have saved dairymen from further loss.

Fairfax Farmers Hit

Beard said he had just completed a tour of counties to the west and south of Fairfax and found farmers there faring even more poorly.

"They didn't get our early rains," he declared.

India Plans Celebration Of Freedom

Assembly to Meet At Midnight Tonight To Begin Functions As Independent Body

New Delhi, Aug. 13 (AP).—The last stroke or midnight tomorrow night will find the Constituent Assembly already in session, determined not to waste a minute of India's August 15 Independence Day and prepared to function as the chief legislative body of a land of free men.

The birth of freedom finds terrorists still stalking sections of Punjab, Bengal and elsewhere in demonstrations of fury over certain phases of the division of those provinces between Hindu India and Moslem Pakistan.

But the sufferers from such violence, though numerous, still represent only a tiny fraction of this broad subcontinent's 400 million people, and officials have taxed their ingenuity trying to devise something wonderful enough to celebrate the end of British rule.

Karachi, new capital of Pakistan, where the big show will be tomorrow, and New Delhi, capital of India, where independence comes Friday, will be the two hubs about which will revolve impressive and colorful ceremonies.

The criminals of several provinces have been promised remission of death sentences and jail terms as part of the celebration. Sweets will be passed out to the poor. There will be speeches, fireworks, parades, prayers and offerings to gods strange to Christianity.

Accompanied by Lady Mountbatten, Lord Mountbatten flew to Karachi today for the ceremonies Thursday when he will formally turn over the powers of government to the Dominion of Pakistan. Mohammed Ali Jinnah will become the Governor.

In New Delhi the Assembly will begin a ceremonial program at the stroke of the clock beginning Independence Day with two minutes of silence for those who died in the fight of freedom which finally was achieved by amicable negotiation with Britain.

In a chamber packed with people in fine European and colorful Indian garb, the Assembly solemnly will declare in a resolution its willingness to accept Lord Mountbatten, last of Britain's viceroys, as India's first Governor-General.

The ceremonies will make Jawaharlal Nehru, Prime Minister and Foreign Minister, top man of the government.

105 Dead in Lahore

Lahore, India, Aug. 13 (AP).—With the partition of the Punjab into Indian and Pakistan zones only a litti more than 24 hours away the vast northern province experienced tonight its bloodiest orgy of violence and fire in five months of communal rioting.

At 8 p. m. an Associated Press correspondent counted the bodies of 105 persons killed since dawn and taken to Lahore's Mayo Hospital.

Communal registers kept by volunteers at the hospital showed there were 99 Sikhs and Hindus killed in knife attacks and six Moslems killed by military and police gunfire. Sixty wounded also were admitted to the hospital. Eyewitnesses said many bodies still were lying in the streets.

Buildings along several central Lahore streets were burning fiercely tonight. Unofficial estimates said more than 95 per cent of Lahore's 500,000 Hindu and Siki population had fled the city which now is populated predominantly by Moslems.

Pakistan Would Join U. N.

Lake Success, Aug. 13 (AP).—Pakistan gave notice today of intention to apply for membership in the United Nations.

This course was an alternative to be put into effect if the U. N. decides against admitting the Moslem-majority dominion automatically when it attains independence from British rule Friday.

Truman Bids Farewell to U. S. Delegates to Rio Conference

Secretary of State George C. Marshall receives best wishes from President Harry Truman as he boards the Sacred Cow at National Airport yesterday to fly to Rio. Brazilian Ambassador Carlos Martins (left) was on hand to wish the envoys well.

Tito Handed U. S. Rebuff on Aid Charges

Point-by-Point Reply Of State Dept. Cites UNRRA Millions

By International News Service

The State Department yesterday delivered a sharp point-by-point answer to charges in which Marshal Tito, head of the Red-dominated Yugoslav government, belittled help to his country.

Taking note of an interview given by Tito to the Yugoslav news agency on August 7, the State Department asserted:

"In view of the seriousness of these charges and their widespread circulation, the department feels it necessary to answer them point by point."

United States Share 72 per Cent

In answer to Tito's assertion that Yugoslavia cannot expect "unselfish, sincere help" for its reconstruction from Americans, the department pointed out that the United States paid 72 per cent of the 400 million dollars received by the Yugoslavs from UNRRA for relief and rehabilitation.

Additionally, the department emphasized that the United States concluded a 32-million-dollar lend-lease agreement with the Yugoslav government on July 24, 1942.

Tito asserted that America was holding 45 million dollars in Yugoslav gold and demanding payment of "impossible huge sums for some kind of armaments on the grounds of Lend-Lease which we, in fact, never received."

The department replied that there was actually 47 million dollars in gold in this country, deposited by the loyal Yugoslav gov-

President Will Later Attend Hemisphere Defense Meeting

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman, in a cordial and confident mood, yesterday said farewell to a United States delegation as it took off for Rio de Janeiro and a meeting of the New World republics.

Mr. Truman told the delegates—Secretary of State Marshall, Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), and Warren Austin, American Representative to the United Nations—that he would join them "whenever you tell me it is time."

The Chief Executive plans to fly to Rio in the closing days of the Inter-American Defense Conference, which has been called to draft an anti-aggression treaty for the Western Hemisphere.

The time of his departure, as he indicated yesterday, will depend on when he gets the word from Secretary of State Marshall. It will be either late this month or early in August.

At the Washington National Airport, Mr. Truman addressed Secretary Marshall and the other members of the diplomatic team, saying:

"I come to bid you gentlemen farewell and wish you a happy and successful trip and a successful conference.

"I am glad to have this delegation—as it has so many times in the past—working for peace in the world, particularly in the Western Hemisphere."

Senator Vandenberg, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, expressed the hope that, at Rio, the new world would set the old an example in international cooperation. Mr. Truman said, "I agree to that."

"I anticipate," said Vandenberg, "that Rio will restore active Pan American unity—all for one and one for all against any Western Hemisphere aggression.

"I also anticipate that Rio will set an excellent example to our parent organization, the United Nations, as to how peace-living neighbors, big or little, should cooperate."

Secretary Marshall told President Truman that he was going south with great hopes and with confidence.

"I feel that this conference is very important in the world picture as well as in the solidarity of

Rio Parley May Get Bid For Mediation

Rio de Janeiro, Aug. 13 (AP).—A request for mediation of the five-months-old civil war in Paraguay appeared likely today to confront delegates to the Inter-American Conference on Hemisphere Defense which opens Friday.

This unscheduled subject popped up as Argentina formally announced it would call for a special economic meeting of all the American nations. Diplomats predicted Argentina might insist upon a "Marshall Plan" for Latin America to match proposals for United States funds to assist Europe.

The mediation issue arose when former Paraguayan Foreign Minister Justo Prieto, arriving on the scene as a self-styled "observer for the Paraguayan rebels," said the "American nations cannot be indifferent to the Paraguayan war, and Brazil and Argentine must consider mediation of the bloody strife as their duty."

The Argentine announcement on an economic conference was made by Foreign Minister Juan Bramuglia upon his arrival today. The first group of United States delegates also arrived, headed by Assistant Secretary of State Norman Armour. He declined to make any comment on the conference, referring reporters to Secretary of State Marshall, who is due tomorrow as the chief United States delegate.

Talks to Ease Loan Terms To Britain Start Monday

Conferences Here Speeded to Coincide With Discussions Of Ruhr, Germany

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Anglo-American talks on easing terms of the 3.75-million-dollar loan to Britain will begin here Monday, Treasury Secretary Snyder disclosed yesterday.

These discussions, unexpectedly speeded up, will coincide with the conference on raising Ruhr coal production which opened here Tuesday. A third major study of Europe's disrupted economy, the London conference on raising the level of German industry, also has been moved up to open in a few days with Britain, the United States and France represented.

The 12-man British delegation to the loan conference, headed by Sir Wilfred eady, special assistant to Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Dalton, left London by air yesterday.

Will Represent U. S.

The National Advisory Council on international monetary problems, headed by Snyder and including Commerce Secretary Harriman and officials of the Export-Import Bank, will represent the United States.

Two principal concessions to be sought by the British are:

1. Liberalization of the requirement in the loan agreement that Britain must make dollars available for pounds in dealing with countries having a favorable trade balance or credit with the United Kingdom. This provision did not go into effect until July 15 and did so without a British request for postponement.

2. Easing of a requirement that prevents Britain from reducing purchases in the United States in order to increase purchases from her dominions and colonies. The National Advisory Council agreed last month to relax one clause in the agreement to permit greater volume of trade between the United Kingdom and her territories.

Seek British Picture

Acting Secretary of State Lovett told a news conference yesterday that an expected result from the three simultaneous conferences would be to learn just what is the British situation. He said the United States had heard fragmentary reports but it had not yet been possible to put them together into a complete picture.

Lovett added that two State Department experts had been sent to London to assist Ambassador Lewis Douglas, who will represent this Government in the level-of-industry talks.

Some means of easing the financial burden of policing, feeding and controlling the Ruhr and its industries is tied in closely with the economic recovery of Britain itself. Suggestions have been advanced that the United States assume part of this burden by supplying some of the necessities, by taking over part of the task of policing and control, or both.

Thrash Out Agenda

Conferees on the question of increasing Ruhr coal production spent yesterday thrashing out the agenda of their meeting preliminary to setting up committees to study in detail each requirement for raising output of the mines. It was expected that a committee would be established to consider each point in the agenda and bring its recommendations to the full conference.

Among problems facing the con-

Plan Approved To Tell Britons Where to Work

Employers, Unionists Agree to Accept Direction of Labor

London, Aug. 13 (AP).—The Labor Government moved swiftly tonight under its new and sweeping powers to deal with Britain's economic crisis as a conference of employers and trade unionists stamped approval on the government draft of an order providing for limited direction of labor in most fields of industry.

Under terms of the order, to take effect October 1, labor direction will be achieved by channeling all job applicants through government-established labor exchanges. These agencies will be given the power to direct them into essential industries.

The approval was given at a conference of Labor Minister George Isaacs with representatives of the British Employers' Confederation and the powerful British Trades Union Congress.

Men and women employed in a professional, administrative, executive or managerial capacity were exempted, as were dock workers and merchant seamen, whose hiring already is regulated by industrial agreements. Employment in coal mining, agriculture and the building and civil engineering industries is already subject to government control.

Broad Coverage Provided

Men 18 through 50 and women 18 through 40—except women with children under 15 living with them are covered by the order. Employers will not be permitted to hire people within these ages if they are engaged in any industry covered by the order.

The conferees also agreed that there should be increased working hours, when fuel supplies permit, in essential industries.

The adjournment tonight of the Commons left the Labor Government free to cope with the economic crisis under practically unlimited emergency powers.

In another phase of the economic picture, a British delegation prepared to fly to Washington for talks

'Heat' Walkouts Occur

42,000 Auto Workers Idled By Shortages and Disputes

Detroit, Aug. 13 (AP).—The Nation's car and truck plants counted approximately 42,000 hourly-rated workers idle again today because of labor disputes, materials shortages and "heat walkouts."

As Ford recalled 19,000 workers after a shutdown since last Wednesday because of materials shortages, Chrysler sent home 12,000 and Hudson 8000 following walkouts in certain departments because of high temperatures. Shortly after noon 50 Ford motor assemblers left their jobs because of the heat, the management reported, and 600 others had to be sent home. Temperatures in the mid-nineties were recorded.

Meanwhile 10,000 Studebaker and 4000 of Ford's Lincoln and Mercury workers remained idle as renewed efforts were made to settle a three weeks old strike of 7000 at the Murray Corporation of America plant.

Murray is a major supplier of body components, truck frames and cushion seat springs to a number of car manufacturers, including Ford and Studebaker. Ford reported supplies obtained from other sources will permit limited operations.

As a three-man Federal conciliation panel sought today to find a settlement formula in the Murray dispute, Emil Mazey, a UAW-CIO codirector, said new issues had been brought into the dispute.

They included, he said, a union demand for a straight 15-cent hourly wage increase instead of an 11½-cent increase plus six paid holidays; elimination of what he described as wage inequities, and a provision permitting the union to request discharge of any employe for conduct unbecoming a union member, even though he paid dues regularly.

Goodrich Strike Averted

Akron, Ohio, Aug. 13 (AP).—A strike of 30,000 workers in B. F. Goodrich Co. plants across the Nation apparently was averted today when the company agreed to bargain on a company-wide basis with the CIO-United Rubber Workers.

L. S. Buckmaster, the union's international president, requested locals to call off their scheduled walkout. The Akron local numbers some 15,000 workers.

The stoppage was scheduled to start tomorrow and affect all Goodrich plants by August 19 as contracts expired.

Workers in the Tuscaloosa, Ala., plant left their jobs Monday after authorization from the union local.

Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. and United States Rubber Co. now have company-wide agreements with the union. Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., the other member of the "big four" rubber companies, has notified the union it is ready

Clegg Given Escort

Young Warns District Police Against Beating Prisoners

Policemen who beat prisoners will be punished, District Commissioner John Russell Young warned yesterday.

Young declared he would "absolutely take action against any policemen guilty" of assaulting their prisoners.

He made this declaration as Chief of Detectives Floyd A. Truscott was completing nivestigation of accusations by Julius Willie Clegg, 26, a Negro war veteran and employe of The Washington Post, that he was beaten by two detectives and held for 34 hours without charges being placed against him.

"I certainly don't condone beating of prisoners and I don't think any good policeman would condone it," Young said.

Thus far, he added, no evidence of assault has been reported to him in the Clegg case.

"However," Young said, "I don't see any reason for holding him that long."

Two policemen yesterday were assigned to make certain that threatened violence against Clegg would not be carried out. The two policemen, assigned by the Ninth Precinct, came at about midnight to his home at 1108 21st st. ne., just before Clegg started for work and escorted him to a streetcar.

2 Gunmen Get $17,000 From Canadian Bank

Pickering, Ont., Aug. 13 (AP).—Two gunmen forced five members of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch staff into the vaults today and escaped in an automobile with loot estimated at $17,000. There were no customers in the bank at the time.

One Sentence Suspended

Four District Men Sentenced For Driving While Intoxicated

Four men were sentenced by Judge Nathan Margold of Municipal Court yesterday for driving while drunk.

Stiffest penalty was given Charles M. Williams, 42, 4801 Alabama ave. se. He received 120 days in jail and a $100 fine or 100 days more on the drunken driving charge. On a charge of taking property without right he was given a 100-day jail term, to run concurrently with the first sentence, and fined $100.

Williams was arrested June 20 after he ran into a fire plug. He said he didn't remember the accident, but later pleaded guilty.

Raymond R. Hawkins, 36, 315 7th st. se., was fined $100 after being found guilty of drunken driving. He was arrested May 27 after his dump truck collided with an auto at Constitution ave. and 3d st. nw. Police related that when they reached the scene, Hawkins was sucking on a lemon and mumbled:

"Muff . . . I ain't been drinking."

Ward W. Griffith, jr., 48, 4200 Harrison st. nw., was fined $100 for drunken driving on July 12, when his pickup truck collided with an automobile. Police said that when they arrived a few minutes later, Griffith said, "Christmas, I'm drunk," and later admitted he had 15 bottles of beer that evening, in pleading guilty to the charge.

Fines of $150 for drunken driving, $50 for leaving after colliding and $10 for speeding levied against Raymond Dorsett, 31, 605 Tuckerman st. nw., were suspended and he was placed on a year's probation when the court was told payment of fines or alternative jail terms would impose a hardship on his family. He pleaded guilty.

Two U. S. Reports Note Price Rises

Corporation Dividends Up Sharply; Building Wages Show 15 Pct. Boost

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Two more Government departments yesterday told the tale of today's inflation in cold figures.

Commerce said corporation dividends went up 16 per cent in three months. Some rose as much as 47 per cent; some fell off.

Labor said building wages went up 15 per cent in a year—a raise of 25 cents an hour for half a million workmen.

Already this week the Bureau of Labor Statistics has reported that the cost of living is going up at the rate of 25 per cent a year.

These facts smashed into the middle of widespread wrangling over the high price investigations announced the day before yesterday. Statements poured out from all sides. Everybody was blaming everybody else for high prices.

Clark Ready to Act

Attorney General Tom C. Clark, who said he would ask jail for profiteers, if he could convict them of breaking the antitrust laws, declared again yesterday that he was not after all businessmen, just those who broke the antitrust laws. He added that if unions were found helping industry hold prices up he would go after unions, too. And his investigation, he said, is not political.

Crawford Takes Issue

But Representative Fred L. Crawford (R., Mich.) pounced on Clark in a statement. He called the antitrust investigation fantastic, saying that ever since 1933 the Administration has done all it could to push prices up. Now the Administration has begun lending money abroad, Crawford added, before our production has caught up with our demand. He went on:

"It seems we are going to get all our creditor nations together to precipitate a depression in the United States, so the dollars they have borrowed will purchase what they had planned.

"Mr. Clark seems determined to help bring about that depression by investigating our people instead of the fiscal policies of the Government."

Crawford led the fight against price controls in Congress last year.

Emil Rieve, chairman of the CIO Full Employment Committee, said the anti-trust investigation was a good idea, but was not enough. He called for restoring price controls and rationing, and again urged President Truman to call a meeting to work out a voluntary price plan.

Two State agriculture commissioners—Tom Linder of Georgia and J. E. MacDonald of Texas—said a new OPA would mean a new black market, and starvation for the people. They said farmers are not paid enough for their goods now, and that new wage raises—suggested by Rieve to meet the cost of living—would mean higher prices.

NAM Blames Strikes

The National Association of Manufacturers blamed high prices on wage boosts and strikes, claiming strikes cost 30 million mandays of production in the past year.

Albert S. Goss, master of the National Grange, agreed that wage increases have pushed prices up. He said selfish interests are trying to break farm prices. This, he warned, would push the country into a depression.

The Commerce Department based its report on corporate dividends on those that have been made public—about 60 per cent of those in the country. The total for April-May-June was put at $1,157,000,000, compared with about a billion dollars in the same quarter of 1946.

600 Million in June

More than 600 million dollars of this years' dividends were paid in June.

Some of the increases were:

Retailers and wholesalers, 42 per cent.

All manufacturers, 19 per cent.

Textile and leather companies, 47 per cent.

Mining, 45 per cent.

Banks and the like, 6 per cent.

Heat, light and power companies, 19 per cent.

And here are some of the drops in corporate dividends:

Railroads, 14 per cent.

Automobiles, 30 per cent.

Communications, 6 per cent.

Talks to Begin Here Monday On Easing British Loan Terms

ferees are nationalization of the Ruhr mines, revision of management and procurement of funds for increased food, incentive goods, better housing, new machinery and improved transportation.

Nationalization of the mines is a firm British objective, strongly supported by the British people and by such conservative newspapers as the London Times, the Manchester Guardian and the Economist. The United States looks on this issue as secondary to that of producing coal at maximum capacity without delay and the British have agreed to postpone nationalization but without a time limit.

New Management Sought

New management is considered of primary importance in view of the fact that the present management has succeeded in producing only about 50 per cent of the Ruhr's prewar output. One solution which has been advanced was to return the mines to German directorship.

Shortly before Snyder revealed the imminence of the loan discussions, it was announced that the British had withdrawn another 150 million dollars, leaving only 850 million of the original 3.75 billion.

The London conference on level of industry faces similar rugged going in the face of French insistence that increase of German industry not contribute to revival of the German war potential. It was in recognition of this very genuine concern on the part of France that she was admitted to the conference, which does not concern the French zone of occupation.

Figures are 'Juggled'

Berlin, Aug. 13.—The Soviet-licensed press today took occasion on the opening of the Washington Ruhr conference to print charges that Americans and British were profiteering in the sale of Ruhr coal. The "economic analyst" of the Neues Deutschland juggled figures around in such a way that dollar profits from the sale of coal to European countries amounted to more than 250 million dollars per year, or close to 450 million dollars for two years. This was said to be more than all food imports have cost the two powers.

In fact, the export of German coal—it is sold to European countries at $10 a ton compared with the $25 a ton for American coal reaching Europe—brings in less than 100 million dollars a year, American and British officials report.

Hungary Hints

Budapest, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—A government spokesman hinted today that Hungary will ask the United States to reconsider its cancellation of credits totaling 22 million dollars.

The spokesman said that the withdrawal of the seven-million-dollar Export-Import Bank loan for cotton had brought the textile industry to a standstill and that the government was now seeking a long-term raw cotton import agreement with Russia.

A communique answering reports regarding the fairness of the coming national election said that any "mistakes" in disqualifying voters would be corrected.

The Lords gave reluctant agreement to the emergency powers.

Eden Gives Warning

The 198-to-84 vote in Commons to take the customary nine-week recess came after Acting Conservative Leader Anthony Eden, declaring that the American loan would be exhausted during the long vacation, urged that the Commons reassemble on September 16.

"We cannot be spectators while the government do the splits over an ever-widening abyss," he asserted.

The Commons went along with Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison, who said the members could be recalled at any time if an emergency warranted it. He charged the opposition had done nothing but "stir up mud and trouble and do everything politically to impede the success of the nation's economic interest."

Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin had already left for an undisclosed south coast resort for a short holiday. Prime Minister Attlee was to leave shortly for a vacation in Wales. But most ministers were staying in or near London to deal with varying aspects of the economic question.

Changes Broadcast Date

Opposition Leader Winston Churchill took no vacation. His impending broadcast to the nation was put forward from next Sunday to Saturday night, indicating that it would be of a political character and an attack on the government's announced crisis plans.

Had he spoken Sunday he would have been bound by a long-standing "gentleman's agreement" to make the address noncontroversial.

Most members of Parliament expressed more than the usual relief when adjournment came. Their nine-month session had nationalized all long-distance transport and electrical supply and put real estate development under public control, along with a host of other legislative achievements.

Meanwhile, the average Briton's chances of buying that shiny new car grew even dimmer today as the government asked manufacturers to raise export quota from 60 to 75 per cent of output.

Industry representatives said the request came "like a bombshell."

Car makers pointed out that the shortage of passenger transport and the old, worn-out cars on British roads already were hampering trade and commerce. Only 4 per cent of the nation's steel output was going to the industry now, they said.

Navy Transport Unit Activated

Activation of a Naval Transportation unit in this area's Naval Reserve was announced yesterday by Rear Admiral Glenn B. Davis, commandant of the Potomac River Naval Command.

Composed of reserve officers, the NTS components will be trained in port director duties and also in all branches of overseas transportation. Naval Reserve officers interested in joining this latest reserve outfit should write to the Commandant, Potomac River Naval Command.

British Seek Film Tax Plan

London, Aug. 13 (AP).—The British Film Producers Association invited American movie-makers today to meet and devise a possible alternative to Britain's 75 per cent tax on foreign film earnings.

The invitation was announced by Sir Henry French, director-general of the association, after J. Arthur Rank, Britain's biggest movie producer, presided over a two-hour emergency session of its executive committee.

Sir Henry said the British producers felt an alternative was necessary because, since Hollywood has banned the export of pictures to Britain, "it is feared that the number of films may be inadequate to keep our screens supplied in a few months."

The association said in a statement that if a recommendation is worked out by American and British film chiefs it would be presented "for consideration of his majesty's government."

delegation included William Dawson, former Ambassador to Uraguay, now Ambassador to the Pan American Union Governing Board; Stanley Woodward, Protocol Representative of the State Department, and Michael McDermott, State Department press chief. Armour conferred here with United States Ambassador William D. Pawley, while the others went directly to Quitandinha Hotel in Petropolis, scene of the conference.

The Argentine proposal was made known at a time when many Latin-American countries were discussing the subject of economic cooperation. Some delegates predicted the move would bring demands for such action into the open.

The conference has been called to consider only hemisphere defense solidarity. The United States is expected to press for delaying economic considerations until a later meeting.

The Argentine move was supported wholly or in part by delegates from Panama, Ecuador and Bolivia. Brazil already has gone on record as favoring confining the conference to drafting the defense treaty and the United States was expected to oppose economic action at this conference. Cuban and Peruvian representatives declined immediate comment and other delegations were not available.

the Western Hemisphere," the soldier-statesman said.

Former Senator Austin said that the "unique thing about the Western Hemisphere is the development of unity out of disunity," and he added that the "United Nations needs this spirit of the Western Hemisphere."

After getting President Truman's promise that he would follow "whenever you tell me it is time," the delegates and their wives boarded their plane, the famous Sacred Cow. They took off at 9:16 a. m.

Carlos Martins, Brazilian Ambassador to the United States, also was at the airport to see the delegates off.

President Truman is to fly to Rio in his new plane, the Independence, and will return aboard the battleship USS Missouri. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Bess Truman and their daughter, Miss Margaret Truman.

Housecleaning

Soviet Purge In Germany Is Reported

Berlin, Aug. 13 (AP).—Die Neue Zeitung, official newspaper of the American Military Government, said today the entire Soviet leadership in Germany was undergoing a "thorough housecleaning," the second shakeup since the occupation.

The newspaper said also that the economic situation in the Soviet zone was deteriorating, and that improvement in the near future was impossible.

The newspaper declared the shakeup appeared to be part of "a great conception" introduced to "serve the aims of the Kremlin," and that many Russian military leaders would be replaced with civilians more familiar with Moscow's current policies.

Last year Marshal Georgi Zhukov and an estimated 1800 Soviet officials were abruptly replaced with political officials, but the newcomers did not fulfill their tasks to complete satisfaction, due in part to difficult conditions, the newspaper added.

Gen. P. A. Kurochkin, deputy Soviet commander-in-chief, will be returned to Russia and V. Semjonow, political advisor to Marshal Vassily Sokolovsky commander in chief, will lose his influence, Die Neue Zeitung said.

Changes will be made also in the Soviet government's security division, with a new man coming from Moscow to take over the task of "popularizing" Soviet policies, the newspaper said.

The newspaper predicted rations for the Soviet troops will have to be cut.

Four Under Arrest; Three U. S. Soldiers Attacked by Gang

Berlin, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—The United States Army has seized four Germans who had two secret and illegal caches of military signal equipment, including a device that automatically encodes messages, it was officially announced today.

United States Military Police disclosed almost simultaneously that three American soldiers assigned to guard duty at Spandau prison were attacked last night in a park by a gang of 30 to 50 Germans. Spandau prison is where the seven Nazi high war criminals sentenced to jail at Nuernberg are serving their terms.

Soldiers Off Duty

The soldiers were off duty at the time. Two succeeded in getting away but the other man, Pfc. Whilip Bell of Cambridge, Md., was beaten into insensibility and thrown into the lake. He was subsequently rescued and taken to a hospital. One of the other men was Pfc. Leo D. Wong of Hillsboro, Wis.

The finding of the signal equipment was the second such incident in Berlin in the past two weeks. On August 1, American Military Government announced it had discovered an illegal store of sighting devices for guided missiles and other equipment at two plants of the giant Askania works.

Former Service Equipment

The signal equipment found in two houses included a coding device, two special teletypes, one ultra shortwave radio transmitter, one 20-watt transmitter, three 200-watt transmitters, three special converters and a stock of miscellaneous parts.

All of the apparatus was former German army or navy equipment and "most of it was in working order," Ray Ashworth, American director of public safety, said.

The coding device and special teletypes were described as "scrambler" equipment. That is, when the device is hooked onto the teletypes, straight messages are translated into gibberish that is nearly impossible to decipher along the line. A special decoding device at the other end of the line translates it back into readable form.

U. S. Answers Tito's Charges

ernment in 1941, and that there has been no effort by the Balkan country to pay anything at all for armaments it received under Lend-Lease.

To charges that the United States does not issue visas for Americans to visit Yugoslavia, the department said it was forced to take this action because "of the inability of our officials to extend adequate protection to American citizens in that country because of various actions of the Yugoslav authorities."

Bloc Charge Reputed

The Communist marshal also contended that the United States was attempting to isolate Yugoslavia through an economic bloc. The department recalled that the Balkan country was invited by both the British and French governments to join in the Marshall European aid plan.

To charges by the Yugoslav dictator that relations between his government and Greece had deteriorated because of outside intereference in Greek internal affairs, the department retorted:

"The facts are too well known for these allegations to require comment."

In the widely published interview, Tito also charged:

1. The U. S. would not permit Yugoslavia to purchase machinery.
2. American grain was withheld from Yugoslavia "during the shortage."
3. Yugoslavia had been forced to return to Russia two lend-lease Douglas transport planes given it by the Reds because of U. S. protests.

The State Department replied that the U. S. reserves the right in all lend-lease agreements to pass on transfers of lend-leased material to a third country.

On the grain charges, it was explained that the U. S. sent grain only to those countries most urgently in need of it.

It was added that Yugoslavian purchases of machinery were limited only to the same extent as to all foreign countries.

Drought Cuts Food Supply In Germany

Frankfurt, Aug. 13 (AP).—Local German authorities in farm areas have told American officials that the unexpected drought this year may slice the harvest 20 per cent below that of 1946 and handicap British-American efforts to feed the 42 million people in the two occupation zones.

"Two days and nights of rain may save us 10 million dollars in the potato crop alone," said Dr. James R. Newman, United States military governor of the state of Hesse.

Newman's group was told by German officials that potatoes, the all-important German staple, had been most severly hit by the lack of rain. They said that more than 25 per cent of the early potato crop already was damaged.

Farmers described the grain harvest as "on the whole, pretty good," but in one region an 80 per cent loss in winter wheat was reported.

In another area, German officials said their bread grain production was 50 per cent less than last year's harvest. Last year's harvest itself was 10 per cent less than the normal prewar production. Oat crops were generally described as "fair."

6 Sudanese Killed In Attack on Village

Khartoum, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—Six persons were killed and 13 injured today when a band from a neighboring village attacked and looted the town of Hag Abdullah in the Blue Nile province.

Police, who arrested 45 persons, attributed the attack to an election dispute.

Stork Busy in Reich

Frankfurt, Germany, Aug. 13 (AP).—There have been 1263 babies of American parentage born in the United States zone of Germany this year, the United States Army Chief Surgeon's office said today. Of the mothers, 732 were American-born and 501 were women of foreign nationalities who were married to Americans overseas.

20 Japanese Still Holding Out In Guam Caves

Guam, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—Two years after Emperor Hirohito's rescript ordering the Japanese to stop fighting in World War II upwards of 20 Japanese naval men are still holed up on the northwest end of this Pacific island.

American Army men here say it would take a thousand Marines six months to clean them out of their retreat, in a series of caves hidden by heavy undergrowth in the face of a 500-foot cliff. At the base of the cliff is a flat jungle extending another 500 feet out to a treacherous beach.

An occasional small calibre shot is heard in the area, but thus far no MP's have been hit. Apparently no serious shortage of food or water exists. The cliff contains numerous springs. Bananas, papayas and breadfruit grow in the jungle. Small deer are also plentiful.

Java Drafts U. N. Protest On Delegates of 2 States

Batavia, Java, Aug. 13 (AP).—Key Indonesian republican cabinet members completed tonight the drafting of a formal protest to the United Nations Security Council against giving a hearing to delegations from the states of East Indonesia and West Borneo.

The cabinet charged the delegations were controlled by the Dutch. Both delegations are en route to Lake Success, N. Y., where the Indonesian-Dutch conflict is under discussion. Both states, along with the Indonesian Republic, are in the projected United States of Indonesia.

The Indonesian news agency Antara declared that belated reports from Malang indicated the Dutch were trying to separate East Java from the Indonesian Republic and create another state.

Antara said republican government employes who remained in Malang after the Dutch occupation were summoned by the Netherlands commissioner there and asked if they would cooperate in creating a separate state of East Java. The employes rejected the proposal, Antara added.

A Netherlands army communique alleged continued violations of the truce by Indonesians troops, with one Dutch soldier killed and 14 wounded yesterday in skirmishing in Java and Sumatra.

No mention was made of fighting east of Bandoeng, where an Indonesian communique said yesterday the Dutch had launched a strong campaign to seize Tasikmalaja and other points on the rail line to Jogjakarta. A Dutch Army spokesman said any fighting in that area would be considered as a mopping-up operation and not a cease-fire violation.

The Indonesians countered the Dutch claims with a communique charging the Dutch with 252 violations of the cease-fire order between August 5 and August 11, and said Dutch forces were advancing in both east and west Java.

Officials of the KLM Royal Dutch Airlines said Dutch air connections to the Indies had been severed by action of the Ceylon government barring Colombo airport to Dutch civil aircraft.

Debate Due Today

Lake Success, Aug. 13 (AP).—The United Nations Security Council was expected to get into full-scale debate on the East Indies case tomorrow with Sutan Sjahrir, former Indonesian premier, prepared to make his first speech here on the conflict with the Dutch.

Sjahrir, who won his speaking right at the council table over vigorous opposition from the British, French, Belgians and Dutch—all colonial powers—said tonight he would be ready for his second appearance in the council chamber at 3 p. m. (EDT).

India Plans Big Celebration Of Independence Tomorrow

General Trygve Lie, already had held that the Hindu-majority Dominion of India, celebrating its independence also on Friday, would retain the charter membership held by British India and that Pakistan would be a new nonmember state.

Pakistan's candidacy for membership was assured of support from the Hindu dominion and Britain. Spokesmen for both said they could not foresee any opposition arising from any quarter.

London, Aug. 13 (AP).—Responsible government sources said today they expected a sharpened struggle between the left and right in India when British power passes this week to the two new empire dominions.

One informant, who has spent 20 years in the Indian civil service, declared that the man-made frontiers dividing Moslem Pakistan from Hindu India will not stop "the rising winds of Indian socialism." He forecast those winds would be blowing strongly soon and added:

"My guess is that in a developing left vs. right struggle there lies the possibility of reestablishing Hindu-Moslem unity on the basis of a combination of Hindu and Moslem Socialists against Hindu and Moslem right-wing forces."

Gandhi Gloomy After Booing

Calcutta, India, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—Mohandas K. Gandhi, the father of Indian independence, gloomily surveyed the burned or deserted shacks around his new "peace mission" headquarters tonight and announced he would have no Independence Day message.

His headquarters had just been invaded by a mob of his own people, the Hindus. Booing in anger, they also had thrown stones through the windows, although none came into the room where Gandhi was. Hindus generally treat Gandhi as though he is a near saint.

Childless Pair Happy With 3 War Orphans

New York, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—An Oregon logger and his wife cuddled three war babies today and smiled happily—after a quarter of a century they finally had a family.

Elmo Wehnert, 49, and his wife Gertrude, 53, of Blodgett, Oreg., childless after 26 years of marriage, met their new family today at La Guardia field. The babies, a curly-haired, brown-eyed boy and two blue-eyed girls who were born in Denmark refugee camps, arrived by plane from Copenhagen.

"They are all we expected and more," said Wehnert. "And they're so near the same age it will be like having triplets." Erhard Gehrman, whose mother was German and his father Danish, is 16 months old. Rosita Annies is 14 months and Ursula Geromin is 10 months.

"I'm glad we have one brown-eyed one," said Mrs. Wehnert, gazing down at Erhard in her arms.

Olga Holm, a Danish employe of the American Embassy in Denmark, accompanied the children on their trans-Atlantic flight. She said the Wehnerts had arranged the adoption of their three war orphans through the American Embassy.

The Wehnert family will leave by plane late today for Detroit, where they plan to buy a car and drive home to Oregon.

Trade Rules For Japan Announced

Tokyo, (Thursday), Aug. 14 (AP). Allied headquarters announced today trade procedures under which foreign businessmen will operate in Japan when limited trade is resumed Friday.

Businessmen will be divided into four groups—(1) private traders, (2) "service representatives" dealing in shipping, insurance, banking and other activities necessary to foreign trade, (3) investment representatives, and (4) those, representing nations, who will handle trade on a government-to-government basis.

The private traders will negotiate with Japanese businessmen and the Japanese board of trade "in consultation with and subject to" headquarters approval. The Board of Trade will issue export licenses which will be subject to validation by headquarters.

Prices on Japanese products will be quoted in dollars. The prices will be determined on a basis of current world market prices, prewar prices in principal foreign currencies, adjusted to altered production costs, and other factors.

Private traders will pay for Japanese products in "acceptable foreign currency." This is defined as either United States dollars, freely convertible currency as announced by the United States Treasury or currency of nations "with which there exists relevant convertibility agreements." Commercial letters of credit will be honored and proceeds from sales will be deposited to trust fund accounts designated by headquarters.

The announcement said private traders and service representatives will be "required to confine their activities strictly to the commercial functions for which they are licensed to enter Japan."

Until private shipping agencies are established, the United States Maritime Commission will perform such port agent functions as quoting rates, offering shipping and aiding in related technical matters.

Headquarters will not accept responsibility for nor guarantee any Japanese merchandise. Limited insurance facilities are available, but headquarters recommends that businessmen obtain blanket insurance policies from their home countries until foreign insurance firms are ready to do business here.

U. S. and Australia to Resume Negotiations Over Tariffs

Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—The Australian government today instructed John Dedman, minister for postwar reconstruction and chief delegate to the International Trade Conference, to resume tariff negotiations with the United States.

This followed an American offer last week to reduce the U. S. wool tariff by 25 per cent in exchange for certain Australian tariff reductions and concessions on the British Empire preferential tariff system.

It was understood that Australia desired additional information on the American offer and requests. Unofficial sources reported that Australia was not satisfied with a 25 per cent cut and the U. S. was dissatisfied by British reluctance to break down empire preference.

The wool issue has deadlocked all negotiations between the U. S. and the commonwealth for weeks.

AFL Official Indicted For Fake CIO Letter

Jamestown, N. Y., Aug. 13 (AP).—A Federal grand jury today indicted Lloyd Klenert, Chillum, Md., international secretary of the United Textile Workers of America (AFL), on charges of "defrauding the United States and mail fraud."

The indictment accused Klenert of seeking to influence the vote of employes of the Jamestown worsted mills in a collective bargaining election conducted by the National Labor Relations Board by mailing copies of a fraudulent letter implying that the textile workers of America (CIO) was pro-Communist.

Rebels Claim Control of Path Leading to Heart of Asuncion

Buenos Aires, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—Paraguayan revolutionists fighting to overthrow the seven-year dictatorship of President Higinio Morinigo claimed tonight that their forces, battling in the streets of Asuncion, had won control of strategic Mariscal Lopez Avenue, which leads into the center of the Paraguay capital.

The latest rebel report on the house-to-house battle was broadcast over the revolutionist station "Voice of Victory."

However, the government-controlled Asuncion radio denied these claims categorically and asserted that loyal forces had recaptured four towns in the outskirts of the capital.

(In Washington, the Paraguayan Embassy issued a statement saying: "We have today received a cable from the president of Paraguay in Asuncion that the attempt by the Communist revolt to seize the capital has been repulsed. The situation of the government is solid.")

Rebel claims in the last few days have tended to be somewhat extravagant, and observers in Buenos Aires, on the basis of other information from the border and some cables from Asuncion, were inclined to doubt their complete accuracy.

A cable filed in Asuncion yesterday afternoon and received in Buenos Aires today said the sound of machine guns and mortars was audible around the city, but gave no indication that fighting was going on in the central streets.

Formosa reported that the government's radio in Asuncion was still broadcasting normally this morning and had confirmed a rebel air attack on the city by two planes

Earlier reports from revolutionary sources said the presidential palace and the mounted police headquarters in Asuncion had been occupied by rebel forces.

Argentine authorities in the meantime moved to prevent some of the 18,000 Paraguayan refugees crowding the Argentine town of Clorinda, facing Asuncion across the Paraguay River, from helping the rebels capture the capital.

The chief of the Argentine gendarmerie in Clorinda prohibited the refugees' returning to Paraguayan territory and, according to Paraguayan sources, ordered gendarmes to fire on those disobeying the order "without distinction of sex or age."

Paraguayan refugees said the order was aimed obviously at preventing rebel sympathizers' entering the liberated zone and help capture Asuncion.

Leader of Negro Legion Post Challenges Charge He's Red

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 13 (U.P.).—The commander of a Negro American Legion Post challenged State legion officials today to prove charges that his post harbored Communists and followers of the Communist Party line.

William B. Kleuskens, State legion commander, notified the Roy B. Tisdell post that its charter had been revoked temporarily. He said the post had assisted "those engaged in dissemination of ideologies which are contrary to the tenets of the American Legion—Communism."

C. A. Hazelwood, the commander, said the charges "definitely are not true."

"I defy Kleuskens or any other State officer to prove them," he said. "There isn't a single Communist among our 114 members and our legion program has been as American as any other in the country."

He went to Chicago tonight to confer with attorneys about fighting the suspension. The executive committee of the State legion was expected to consider the matter tomorrow night.

Kleuskens was expected to present his charges to the executive committe and request that the revocation be made permanent.

Kleuskens said the post, "while acting in the name of another organization has involved the name of the American Legion in controversies relating to Communism in such a way as to bring the good name of the American Legion into disrepute."

The revocation was reported to have resulted from a dispute over the appearance here last April of Paul Robeson, negro singer. Hazelwood, a vice president of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, was a member of a citizens' committee which urged that the city hall be used for a reception for Robeson. The mayor refused the request.

Hazelwood, however, denied that the State order could have resulted from this dispute.

"Our post issued a statement at the time that it was not entering into the matter," he said.

42,000 Auto Workers Idled By Shortages and Disputes

to open contract talks on an individual plant basis only.

Labor Peace Sought

Clinton, Mich., Aug. 13 (AP).—Conciliators continued to seek peace today in the violence-marked Clinton Machine Co. strike as Don Thomas, company president, implied a possibility of "civil war."

Both Raymond Humphrey, acting chairman of the State Labor Mediation Board, and William McCauley, CIO regional director, took immediate exception, however. At the same time Humphrey admitted the possibility of "trouble."

Local 608 of the CIO's United Auto Workers has been on a wage strike against the company. In a picket line clash Monday five persons were hurt as Thomas led a group of nonstrikers into his plant.

An estimated 125 members of the back-to-work movement group planned to spend their third successive night inside the factory.

Detachments of State police were in both Clinton and the city of Owosso, 75 miles south of here.

Sea Strike May Grow

New York, Aug. 13 (AP).—Striking members of the Seafarers International Union (AFL), who have tied up 25 Isthmian Steamship line ships in eight ports since last midnight, voted today to call on all maritime workers to join them if the company tries to inject the Taft-Hartley law into the dispute.

Approximately 2500 unlicensed seamen, out of 4500 on strike, also voted to strike, against any ship reallocated by Isthmian to another line or any vessel carrying cargo reallocated by the company.

Union-operated hiring halls, and the rotary "first come, first served" system of assigning men to jobs aboard ships, are the principal issues in the dispute.

VA and AAF Appoint Two As Chaplains

Chaplain appointments were announced by the Veterans' Administration and the Army Air Forces yesterday. Both begin immediately.

McKelway

Chaplain A. J. McKelway, nw, has been appointed chief of the Veterans' Administration chaplain served in the Navy in both wars, and is the holder of eight battle stars and the Presidential Unit Citation. He succeeds Chaplain Crawford W. Brown, who is now serving on the summer staff of the Washington Cathedral.

Army Air Forces headquarters has announced the appointment of Lieut. Col. John J. Wood as Deputy Air Chaplain. A member of the Victorian Fathers, he served in the Pacific theater during the war and returned from Germany last month to assume his new duties.

He succeeds Maj. Alphonse Slivinski, who has been named staff chaplain of the Air Force Airways and Air Communications System.

Inquiry Continued In Death of Woman Who Fell From Bus

Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy last night said he would delay issuing a certificate in the death of a 63-year-old woman who fell from a bus until further investigation could be made.

An autopsy yesterday indicated the woman, Miss Mary Miller of 1629 Columbia rd. nw., died Tuesday night at Emergency Hospital as the result of a blood clot and broken right leg, Dr. Murphy stated.

According to original police reports, Miss Miller struck a curb when she fell in alighting from a bus at Columbia rd. and 18th st. nw., July 23. Driver of the bus was Ralph A. Millburn, 47, of 1326 Levis pl. ne., police said.

U. S. Mission to Greece Plans To Irrigate 800,000 Acres

By The Associated Press

Plans to brave the guerilla fighting in northern Greece to irrigate 800,000 acres of that nation's breadbasket were disclosed last night by William E. Corfitzen of Denver, who will direct the work.

Corfitzen, a Reclamation Bureau expert, outlined the project in an interview as announcement was made of his designation as irrigation advisor to the American Mission which is to carry out a 350-million-dollar program of aid to Greece.

The lands to be irrigated are near guerilla lines in Macedonia and Thrace, he said, and some trouble may be caused by the fighting.

But Corfitzen said confidently that "we may be able to get water onto parched lands within 60 days from the time we start the rehabilitation, and we should have several thousand acres under irrigation by next July."

The expenditure for irrigation is limited to $3,600,000. It is part of a plan aimed to help Greek farmers produce for city markets and reduce the nation's food imports, he explained. Now they can harvest, on the average, barely enough for their own families.

Corfitzen said the irrigation task will be restricted to reconstructing two major systems started a decade ago by two American contracting firms but never completed.

Greek employes will be paid in drachmas. The United States is introducing 85 million dollars worth of consumer goods into Greek stores to replenish barren stock and to reduce prices somewhat.

London, Aug. 13 (INS).—Britain tonight backed the American declaration in the U. N. Security Council that the United States might directly save Greece from armed Communist domination if Russia blocks Security Council action.

Comradeship Is Developing At World Scout Jamboree

Jamboree City, Moisson, France, Aug. 13 (AP).—The comradeship between Boy Scouts from the English-speaking countries and those from eastern Europe—Czechoslovakia and Hungary—continued to develop at the International Boy Scout Jamboree today.

There was scarcely a spot in the Anglo-Saxon or Eastern camp which was not overrun by boys of the other group.

Late arrivals of eastern European origin—the Scouts from the displaced persons camps of Germany—also preferred the English speaking part of the tent city.

Among them was Jaroslaw Hladkyj, veteran head of the Ukrainian Boy Scouts movement in exile.

"It is a terrible thing that many people do not even believe we exist," he said. "If people would only know what we have gone through to keep up the Scout movement."

Hladkyj, who has been a Scout since he joined in 1921 in Lwow, in his native Polish Ukraine, said there are 3500 Ukrainian Boy and Girl Scouts and scoutmasters in the 35 DP camps in the U. S. zone of Germany.

"Last year we celebrated our thirty-fifth jubilee throughout the camps," he said.

He said the Scouts had been illegal under the Russian and then the German occupation of Poland, and they had to fight for their right to exist

Indiana U. President Offered Post by Clay

Berlin, Aug. 13 (AP).—Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States Military Governor, said today he had offered Dr. Herman B. Wells, president of the University of Indiana, a position as his adviser on educational and cultural affairs.

Clay said Dr. Wells had made no commitments. But it was understood from officials in AMG's education branch that Dr. Wells had returned home to consult the university's board of trustees on gaining a leave of absence, which would permit him to take the post here about October 1.

Marshall Demands Showdown With Molotov on Korean Rule

The United States has called on Russia for a showdown on the discussions aimed at establishing a Korean government, which have been stalled nearly three months.

Secretary of State Marshall has informed Foreign Minister Molotov, the State Department revealed yesterday, that "there cannot be further delay" in reaching a settlement. He asked that the Joint Commission on Korean independence report by August 21 on "the status of its deliberations," so that:

"Each government may immediately consider what further steps may be taken to achieve the aims of the Moscow Agreement, namely the establishment of an independent, united Korea which can take its proper place among the United Nations."

The State Department said Marshall's letter, which was dated last Monday, was delivered Tuesday to the Soviet Foreign Office by United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith.

Marshall wrote that "according to all reports received from the American delegation to the Joint Commission, it has been impossible for the two delegations to agree on the issue of broad consultation with Korean political parties and social organizations."

Five Killed In Clashes In Palestine

Jerusalem, Palestine, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—Five men were killed—including an Arab "executed" by the Jewish underground — and eight were wounded tonight in clashes between Jews and Arabs in the explovise Tel Aviv-Jaffa area. British authorities, fearing the situation might get out of hand at any moment, clamped down a sunset-sunrise curfew to keep rioting bands indoors.

Fighting continued intermittently throughout the day in the teeming Manshieh quarter which is the border line between Jewish Tel Aviv and Arab Jaffa.

A spokesman for the Jewish underground organization Hagana said the Arab had been "executed" —he was shot through the forehead—for acting as guide to "Arab bandits" who attacked a Tel Aviv night club Sunday night and killed five persons.

The casualty toll in three days of fighting between Jews and Arabs was six Jews and four Arabs killed and 35 Jews and 9 Arabs wounded.

The Jaffa Municipal Council, the Moslem Brotherhood and eight other Arab societies took the unusual course today of issuing a statement condemning the clashes.

A spokesman for the Jewish Agency there said that "certain people residing in Cairo and considerably influencing and inciting recent incidents."

Viscount Sounds Warning

London, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—Recent antisemitic demonstrations in Britain are a "danger signal which could not be ignored," Viscount Hall, First Lord of the Admiralty, warned today in the House of Lords.

The viscount, speaking for the government during a debate on Palestine, said illegal Jewish refugee immigration to the Holy Land could not have been so great during the past 18 months if funds had not been provided from the United States.

Vienna, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—The ministry of the interior announced tonight that a Jewish refugee from Poland had been shot and captured in the area where a British military train was rerailed late last night.

A second bomb exploded at 1 a. m. (Austrian time) today outside theoffice of the British Corps commandant at brigade headquarters at nearby Elden, Carinthia. No persons were killed in either bombing.

Frankfurt, Germany, Aug. 13 (AP).—A group of touring Chicago businessmen, studying the condition of Jews, said today they had found "great needs" of financial help for Europe's homeless Jews.

"The job of caring for these people is tremendous," said John Balaban, chairman of the Jewish welfare campaign seeking to raise a 12 million dollar relief fund in Chicago as part of the United Jewish appeal's national goal of 107 million dollars.

U. N. Is Given 18 Days to Free Nile, Avert Riot

Lake Success, N. Y., Aug. 13 (AP). Egypt urged the United Nations Security Council today to order British troops out of the Nile Valley within 18 days or face the prospect of riots and bloodshed.

For the first time in his three appearances before the council, Egyptian Prime Minister Mahmoud Nokrashy Pasha set a time limit for a British evacuation.

Britain's Sir Alexander Cadogan declared that the only threat to peace in Egypt came from the Egyptians themselves. He asked the council once again to strike the Egyptian complaint from its agenda.

"There is no dispute here which endangers peace and security," he said, "unless Egypt deliberately creates one rather than comply with her international obligations. I think I have shown satisfactorily that Egypt's 1936 treaty with the United Kingdom is valid."

Cadogan countered Nokrashy's charge of historical inaccuracies with a threat to expose the pro-Axis leanings of "certain" Egyptian leaders during the war. It was for this reason, he said, "that Britain made "strong representations" to King Farouk for a change in the government.

The British delegate said he could produce documentary evidence to support his pro-Axis charge if Nokrashy cared to press the point. He said "certain very high-placed Egyptian personalities" were "actively obstructing the Allied war effort" in 1940-42.

Salmon Ship Sinks on Tow Mile Off Shore

Port Angeles, Wash., Aug. 13 (AP). Struck a mortal blow in a collision in a night fog, the Alaskan motorship Diamond Knot sank today as tugs pulled it near shore, carrying back to the ocean depths a rich cargo of salmon caught only a few weeks ago in Alaska waters.

An Alaska Steamship Company estimated the value of the 154,000 cases of canned salmon lost at upwards of three million dollars.

The Diamond Knot the the 10,681-ton freighter Fenn Victory collided shortly after 1 a. m. (PST), but none of the 38 crew members of the Diamond Knot nor the Fenn Victory's crew of 46 was lost.

The master of the Fenn Victory, which plowed eight feet into the Diamond Knot amidships, held his bow against the stricken Alaska vessel to keep it from sinking and the vessels were carried along in the strong tide and ocean current about 10 miles from the collision scene.

Finally, tugs and other small vessels arrived, and after daybreak the ships were pulled apart and two tugs and the big salvage chieftain put lines on the Diamond Knot to pull it to shore. It sank about a mile off shore.

The 321-foot Diamond Knot was listed as a 5525-ton ship.

Colleges Asked To Find Use for Electronic Gear

Top-flight engineering colleges throughout the Nation are being asked by War Assets Administration to figure out educational uses for some 100 million dollars worth of surplus electronic equipment with no commercial value.

Aiding WAA in selecting these schools is Dr. S. S. Steinberg, dean of the engineering school, Maryland University, and head of the Engineering Colleges Administrative Counsel.

Results of the studies will be made available to all schools. The materials found of value for educational purposes will go to the Federal Works Agency and will be put up for sale to State educational agencies at 5% of fair value.

Marriage License Fee Now $5 in Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 13 (AP).—The fee for a marriage license in Chicago rose from $3 to $5 and couples asking "how come?" were told by John O'Brien, chief clerk in the license bureau:

"You pay $2 to see a movie nowadays and it's over in two hours. A marriage lasts a lifetime." The increase was authorized by a new State law.

Roxas Urges Speedy Jap Treaty

Manila (Thursday), Aug. 14 (AP). The Filipino people, as well as other peoples of Asia, "are clamoring for speedy conclusion of a peace treaty with Japan," President Roxas of the Philippines declared today in a V-J anniversary speech.

"They cannot understand why it should be further delayed."

Roxas' message, prepared for broadcast to the American people, was recorded here by the Philippine Broadcasting Co. and flown to the United States for release through the ABC network.

Speedy conclusion of the treaty "is essential to restoration of mutually beneficial economic relations and will prove a stabilizing influence in this part of the world," Roxas said.

"We do not desire a vindictive peace. We want a Christian peace; a peace that will provide for military disarmament of Japan and insure for the people of that nation equal opportunity and freedom to work out their own salvation under a regime of democracy."

Tropical Storm Heads Toward Mexican Coast

New Orleans, Aug. 13 (INS).—A tropical storm moving towards the coast of Mexico will probably increase to hurricane force tonight, passing inland near Tampico, Thursday morning.

The Weather Bureau said the storm was centered about 190 miles northeast of Vera Cruz, Mexico. It is moving west northwestward at about 15 miles per hour.

Minor Drinkers

Corporation Counsel West's ruling on the application of the Alcoholic Beverage Control law to minors raises a point that demands clarification by Congress. The act specifically forbids the sale of hard liquor to persons under 21, but, according to Mr. West, this does not prohibit minors from drinking in taverns and hotels when someone legally qualified makes purchases for them. We think Mr. West's interpretation of the law as it stands is correct. We also think, however, that the law should be changed so as to prohibit all sale of liquor for consumption by minors without their families in public places. It is encouraging that this view is shared by the Washington Restaurant Association, which applies such a policy, and that the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board is seeking to plug the loophole in the present act.

No law, of course, can prevent drinking by minors in the home if the parents desire it, nor should there be such a law. We also agree with Mr. West that when teenagers are out to dinner with their families, for instance, parents should not be forbidden to buy a drink for their children. The law cannot substitute for home training. It is not in the case of families, however, that the possibility of abuse of the present law arises, but rather in instances in which an irresponsible adult buys liquor for a group of minors apparently with complete legal immunity. The ABC provisions with regard to minors already are difficult enough to enforce, and with vacillating constructions now possible, the act could readily become virtually meaningless. Our feeling is that either drinking by minors in public places should be explicitly recognized or it should be banned altogether.

Price Probes

Several congressional investigations into the causes of high prices will soon be launched, and the Department of Justice has announced a separate probe to track down profiteers found guilty of violating the antitrust laws. We don't believe that these probes will throw any new light on the causes of high prices, although the Department of Justice may unearth a few cases of lawbreaking in the form of agreements in restraint of trade. Most industrialists can find plenty of excuses for raising prices by pointing to higher materials and labor production costs. And though it may be shortsighted, it is no crime, nor is it prima facie evidence of lawbreaking, for sellers to charge all that consumers can be induced to pay for their products.

The chief cause of high prices, it seems to us, is no mystery nor is it attributable to any sinister conspiracy on the part of sellers. It is an inevitable result of lifting price controls prematurely, thereby permitting the full force of consumer buying demand, buttressed by inflated incomes and piled-up savings resulting from inflationary methods of war financing, to be reflected in soaring prices.

We have an abundance of evidence to explain the rise in prices, therefore, without waiting for the reports of congressional investigators. Indeed, by the time hearings are concluded and the committees are ready to present their findings to Congress, it is quite possible that the price boom will have spent itself and we shall be worrying about price declines and trying to find means of arresting a recession.

Old-Time Summer

Middle Westerners watching the heat shrivel their corn and parch their pastures have been saying they were having a "real old-fashioned summer." As the heat wave moved across the country, perspiring Easterners have echoed the reminiscence. This has set old-timers to telling soft moderns in air-conditioned offices of the days when it really got hot, when the mercury reached 105 to 110 degrees (always "in the shade"), when even the leaves of the cottonwood trees lay still and you could see the heat dancing in a haze across the fields, when every city and town let no summer pass without an egg-frying demonstration on its sidewalks.

Whether the old-fashioned summers were really hotter—and the winters colder—or whether youthful memories become more grandiose with the years is hard to say. Geographers recently have given the old-timers some backing with their theory of weather cycles. Some weather authorities believe a 30-year warm cycle is winding up and a 30-year cool cycle coming in—a theory which this summer's heat waves would not disprove, since years are rated on their average temperatures. Moreover, the old-timers go back impressionably to a rural upbringing. Many of them retain vivid memories of hoeing a row of tomatoes in a glaring sun, following a plow behind a sweaty, lurching horse over a clay field, or stacking hay in a close loft. Also the canning of fruit, the frying of chicken, or the cooking for threshers over a blazing wood stove or a coal range gave many a young woman an unforgettable tropical memory.

Possibly one of the reasons the old-time summers seemed so hot was that science had done little to ease their burden. Electric fans, and in some places even electric lights, were unknown, as were gas and electric stoves and modern refrigeration of food. No air-conditioned restaurants, movies and offices provided oases of relief to city dwellers. As yet science has done nothing about outdoor temperatures (though it has provided means of eliminating flies, mosquitoes and chiggers by means of DDT), but as man continues his conquest over nature, it may even be possible to improve surrounding atmosphere on a burning or soggy day. If any of us are alive then, we can boast of the really hot, old-time summer we had in 1947.

Two Years After

Exactly two years have gone by since the end of hostilities with Japan, and the Allies are still at loggerheads about the peacemaking. The Russians insist that the job must be done by the big powers on the basis of unanimous decisions. Experience has shown that if this ruling were accepted a peace treaty would be postponed till the Greek Kalends. Wisely the United States says that the peace conference will be held without Russia, some time in September, preferably before the meeting of the U. N.'s General Assembly. It was the American proposal that the Japanese treaty should be worked out by the 11 nations represented on the Far Eastern Commission. This has now been reaffirmed, along with the determination to arrive at decisions by a majority of two thirds.

From now on we may expect Moscow to lay down a propagandist barrage upon the conference. The signal has been given by Boris Leontiev writing in Pravda. On the imagined grounds that the Soviet role in the war against Japan is being discredited, he categorically asserts that it was the Russians who brought Japan to her knees, and gives half a dozen reasons by way of proof. Not one of them is valid. Moscow, says Mr. Leontiev, in his flightiest piece of fancy, "smashed the biggest and best Japanese Kwantung army," and this was "the last decisive blow to the Japanese aggressor."

It would seem that the Russians had never heard of the atom bomb. This was loosed upon Hiroshima on August 6, and two days later the Russians, anxious to be in on the kill, invaded Manchuria. They went through Manchuria like a knife through butter, one reason being that the crack Kwantung army had long ago been dispersed throughout the Pacific, in a desperate effort to put spine into the crumbling Japanese defense of their island perimeter. What the Russians found were relatively untrained replacements in a state of semiorganization. Far from immobilizing in Manchuria the most battle-worthy Japanese troops, as Mr. Leontiev argues, the Russians bore out what our battle-scarred veterans of the Pacific war already knew, namely, that the Japanese had been transferring those troops elsewhere for 18 months. The Japanese counted quite rightly upon the self-immobilization of the Siberian forces till the hour struck 12. In Manchuria, as must have been thoroughly expected in Moscow (which had already been in receipt of Japanese appeals for peace), the Russian casualties were trifling.

Mr. Leontiev will not be challenged in asserting Russia's great contribution to the winning of the war against Hitlerite Germany. Nobody will ever discredit the military contribution of the Red army. But the time surely has come to ask where the Red army would have been without the American aid in materiel. In all likelihood not in Berlin today. It is the consensus of military historians that, so far from being able to sweep across central Europe, the Red army could not have arrested Hitler at the gates of Moscow. But this is merely said by way of self-defense. Nobody can disentangle from a war of coalition, in which the contributions of the participants were all mixed up together, exactly how much was contributed by whom. The only reason for trying to put the situation in some kind of perspective is that the overweening claims of Soviet propagandists are becoming somewhat tiresome.

Mr. Leontiev's gall in his present diatribe is unbounded. Second to the crushing of the already dispersed Kwantung army in accounting for the defeat of Japan was the release of our men and materiel from Europe as a result of Russia's defeat of Germany. The fact is, of course, that the Japanese were already exhausted when Germany was conquered. We had already established ourselves inside the Japanese perimeter; we were pounding the economic life out of Japan both by blockade and by bombing, and Japan was frantically sending out peace feelers. The United States Strategic Bombing Survey says that "in all probability prior to November 1, 1945, Japan would have surrendered even if the atomic bombs had not been dropped, even if Russia had not entered the war, and even if no invasion had been planned or contemplated." The war came to an end so soon after Germany fell that we had no time to move our European effectives to the Pacific.

So much for Soviet nonsense about the war with Japan. One of the great mistakes of that war lay in counting at all on the Soviety entry. It would be a greater mistake of the peace to allow the Soviet Union to hold up the peace-making. Russia has been amply recompensed already for the puny aid she rendered directly in the conquest of Japan. Industrial Manchuria has been thoroughly plundered; the string of the Kuriles abutting upon northern Japan has been ceded; and port and rail rights have been transferred in Manchuria which the Russians, in violation of treaty, have interpreted as exclusive domain. American ships, for example, are not allowed in the "free" port of Dairen. It is our duty, along with other members of the Far Eastern Commission, to lay down without delay the conditions on which Japan can reenter the family of nations. With only one thing in the Leontiev farrago do we agree, namely, that "the Soviet Union has earned the right to an equal voice with the other big powers in the writing of the Japanese peace treaty." It is just this equality that Russia has rejected. She wants the right of dictation on grounds that are both specious and outrageous.

Chest And Council

The Washington Community Chest is proceeding with both caution and wisdom to correct the defects in its organization. The caution is chiefly reflected in the decision of its board of trustees to keep within the Chest in 1948 all but one of the 58 agencies to which Chest funds were allocated this year. The one agency that was dropped has been liquidated. In other words, the Chest refuses to be thrown into confusion or coerced into rash action by the plethora of criticism that has been directed at it during the last year. It will not risk disintegration by throwing any of its member agencies to the wolves—at least not until the Chest itself can be reorganized and the member agencies under fire have a fair chance to review their programs in the light of current criticism.

At the same time, however, the trustees refuse to stand pat. They have ordered their executive committee to submit a possible plan of reorganization together with reasons for its approval. Further indication of their desire to overcome existing weaknesses may be seen in the lumping together in one budgetary item of the administrative funds for the Chest and the Council of Social Agencies. It seems to be generally conceded that a closer working relationship between these two agencies, if not their outright merger, must be sought. In this move wisdom seems to predominate over caution.

The citizens' committee which recently studied the problem recommended "greater integration of the Chest and the council." A similar suggestion came from the group which made a survey of the council and its work, although this scheme seemed to contemplate less of amalgamation than of relinquishment of Chest functions to the council. We pointed out at the time that there should be no mere resignation on the part of the Chest in favor of the council. That, in our opinion, would endanger the whole idea of one united fund-raising campaign for the benefit of all private agencies rendering social, medical, institutional, educational, recreational and character-building aid to the community.

Obviously the citizens who raise the money for community welfare should have a strong voice in directing how it is to be spent. At the same time they need the guidance of experienced social workers. Would it not be possible for the boards of the Community Chest and the Council of Social Agencies to merge and then prune their joint membership down to a workable level? The joint board could then set up one special committee for fund-raising and another to initiate social and community planning. Perhaps that is what is in the wind. We hope that this or some better plan for bringing the planning and fund-raising arms together can be worked out, for the present system is operating very poorly, and the desirability of retaining the Community Chest system seems to us to be above challenge.

DPs

The notion voiced by one of our correspondents the other day that the Jewish displaced persons in Germany (there are 130,000 out of the 560,000 DPs) want to go to Palestine only because they are dragooned by Zionist agencies has been disproved by the United Nations Special Committee on Palestine. The investigators found after a tour of the camps that Palestine is the only country of their choice. Such a finding jibes with that of all visitors to these camps. To be sure, Zionist activity is patent in arranging an underground to the German DP camps for the remaining Jews left in Europe, but, if the Jewish DPs are any guide, little persuasion has to be applied, for the Jews have had reason in the Hitler extermination, as well as succeeding pogroms, to want to get out of Europe.

That they are just as loath to come to the United States is the impression they give to every inquirer. The people among the DPs who think of America as the promised land are the Balts. And they are as good immigrants as any settlers in American history—a reminder to many of the forty-eighters, those folk of Teutonic stock who rebelled at life under the repressions in Europe when the kings sought to crush the surge for freedom, and emigrated to America. In their camps the failure of Congress to pass the Stratton bill must have been read with something akin to despair.

DWARF BLUEBERRIES

We know a summer walk that will always
Lead to the thin ridges of the upland fields
Where the dwarf blueberry grows,
Spreading the sky-blue beads of fruit
Among the trailing vines and leaves.
Even along the old creek bank
The vines have taken root, and walking here,
We sense the smell of woods and earth,
And of the rambling stream far down below,
Fresh as the water itself to man
Who dips into the pools after a day
In the hot dry fields. There are
These summer days each year that we reserve
For just this walk high on the ridges
Of the sloping land, the highest hills
On all the farm, and high enough, it seems,
That the tender luscious berries
Are drenched in the blue of the soft summer sky.

Speech As A Catalyst

When will our philologists awake to the value of speech as a catalyst among the races and nations? They not only let the Hitler mobs get the jump on them but they have retired even further into their esoteric crypts, deliberately isolating themselves and their knowledge from the world at the very time when their talents could do so much good.

Language should be the cement that holds the "men of good will" together. Instead of doing that, it is being used to explode humanity, to divide and befuddle.

As a dictionary philologist I have long sought to awaken public interest in the urgency of such action. Thus far my efforts have registered zero. In fact, the philologists themselves show less interest in the proposal to use language as an agency for peace and understanding than any other group.

Hitler's Hebrew "heil" is our best example of how language has been perverted to anarchical uses. "Heil" stems straight from the Hebrew "El," the root word for "bright," effulgent, radiant, hence the idea for deity. Under all the variants of "El" resulting naturally from vowel-mutations, we can follow the course of this most ancient root-word into the speech-forms of every major language group.

It is clearly seen in "Baal," "Bel," "Apollo," "Sol," "Melech," "Malik," "Moloch." The Greeks called themselves "Hellenes" after "Helios" the sun-god. Their land was "Hellas," place of brightness. This sun-origin is of course mankind's oldest occupational ailment. Witness the obstinacy of the Japanese in promoting it, to their everlasting humiliation.

Man's common origin needs no better evidence than his idea for heaven expressed in a word found almost unchanged from Rome to Thibet. The Latin "Caelus" or "Caleum," the Greek "Elysium" and the Sanskrit "Kailas" alone should serve to open the eyes of all humanity to their need of brotherhood.

Even the Germans' "Helgoland," land of the warrior-blest, or "Valhalla" trace themselves in direct line from their Semitic ancestor—"El," with its variations of "Elohim," "Allah," etc.

Why can't our daily newspapers give a little time and space to this all but untapped source of universal amity? It will be the best investment yet made in assuring peace and good will among men.

Sales Tax In Practice

Your readers, many of whom in this area face the threat of a sales tax, may be interested in what the people of two Southern States, Alabama and Tennessee, are saying about this money-raising method.

This is what the people feel, as we ascertained in a month's vacation in the Tennessee Valley and the Smoky Mountain area.

Alabama has had a sales tax several years. It still rankles with customer and salesman, because it is such a nuisance. Most of all, however, it adds to the cost of living, because it applies there to everything, including the necessities of life such as clothing and shoes. Those who think about the welfare of the lower-paid workers are daily incensed at the inequity of this tax which hits the poor man hardest.

In Tennessee, we saw the end of the first month of the new sales tax. The State officials triumphantly estimated the yield at three million dollars—a million more than they had expected. And the second line in the story was that if this rate keeps up, it will be possible for all counties to reduce their property tax next year. That tipped the hand of all promoters of the sales tax. Protect the property owner by forcing the little man to pay the taxes.

The little man pays a penny on every quart of milk he buys in Tennessee. He pays a penny on every loaf of bread he buys. He pays on everything—on the spot.

"Why," we asked everybody, "did you let them pass such a tax law?" Most everybody wound up his explanation by saying, "I guess we were asleep." We found nobody who favored the tax. We found no business men who were not annoyed by the mechanics of it.

There are rumors of all kind in circulation. In Mississippi, said some, the State never gets more than one tenth of the sales tax which the merchants collect. Others said Tennessee merchants, even after only one month, had worked out many schemes for cheating the government. Whether or not these things are true, the effect is general distrust by the citizens of the merchants who serve them.

Do we want such a mess in the Washington area?

Hysteria Over Russia

In The Washington Post of August 7, there was a letter from Anna Blossom entitled "Hysteria Over Russia." She states that the United States is "trembling with fear of a country 6000 miles away" which has "lost one seventh of her population" in the recent war.

In a country of approximately 180 million people even one seventh of the population is not such a formidable loss. As to the "bogeyman 6,000 miles away," it is the traditional argument for isolation now rendered absurd by the development of air power.

If a nation is inclined to be an aggressor she most certainly will not be content with "a protective belt of friendly buffer states" but will strive to control all of Europe.

The people of the United States are not afraid of Russia. In fact the boys just back from the war are not terrified at the thought of Russia's potential power. Americans are not hysterical but most feel that Russia will bear watching.

PATTY KIDNEY.
Washington.

In my opinion, Miss Blossom is doing a little exaggerating in her statement that the people of America are trembling with fear of a country 6000 miles away. There is a little fear, yes, and she can be thankful for that!

A person who has a little fear of something will prepare himself just in case his fears are realized. A man who has no fear of a thief and doesn't plan any protection is mighty sorry and a lot wiser after he is caught unprepared by a thief. ANTHONY P. NEJA.

O'Daniel's Apartments

Senator O'Daniel, through his agent, advertises in raised type that he wants no children in his cooperative apartment. I heard him declare to a jury that he bought that building for all his family only, including the kiddies and the mother-in-law. I saw the women jurors indulgently smirk their approval and knew that the Senator had won his case forthwith.

I ask the dispossessed tenants why they don't bring an action for fraud on the court. The Senator in his ad says nothing about dogs not allowed. However, there will be plenty of yapping later from "buyers" who pay $11,500 and more for a mere cubicle there. G. L. REES.

Movies For Children

From the days when the little neighborhood movie house was first recognized as a powerful potential in the education and character building of children, parents and educators have been seriously concerned with the generally unwholesome type of programs with which motion picture producers appealed to the "desire for action" or "thrill" emotions of childhood.

The District Board of Recreation recognizes the tonic effect of moral movies upon the sensitive nervous systems of our growing-to-be citizens and as a public school teacher and parent of three of these will-be citizens I wish to express my gratification to the Board of Recreation for making possible the use of Mr. Bannister's generous offer of films for this purpose.

I believe that, upon reflection, motion picture proprietors here will in time come to understand the ethical values to be derived by permitting our children to enjoy a simple and well-balanced diet of films, minus screeching sound effects and the indecency and stream-lined hysterical froth of the added and coming "attractions" which are customary flourishes and fill-ins to the usual Saturday children's matinee. At the same time an appeal by all concerned will act as a tonic in the ultimate rejuvenation and reeducation of the film producers who should be quick to sense a good thing when it can be turned into cash receipts.

What is of the highest importance to our community as well as those communities all over the world where American films are sold, children will no longer be exploited by adults who should know better.

The foregoing condemnation of the film industry can be used almost verbatim to warn national radio advertisers who are guilty of the same type of exploitation.

Hughes' Record

Of the many things that have come to the surface during the Hughes vs. Brewster hearing, one is the fact that the real purpose back of it was political and certainly not to the credit of the Republican Party. Such bad taste as Brewster's is embarrassing to the American people. His smear campaign is apt to discourage any further industrial negotiations with the Government to further the progress of this country.

Such men as Hughes are rare enough, especially one who not only risks his money but his life on a Government project. His record-breaking flights in 1937 and 1938 are well worth remembering. He shattered all records in an around-the-world flight in three days, halving the record set by Wiley Post. This round-the-world trip was a scientific expedition designed to prove the accuracy of certain new instruments and the efficiency of the planes and engines of this type. He was awarded the Collier Trophy for the outstanding contribution to air transportation.

This type of man should not be kicked around but encouraged to work for America designing tomorrow's planes.

Pepper's Part

In regard to the Hughes investigation, of course Senator Pepper was not playing politics. Oh, no!

He is the ranking member of the minority party on a bipartisan committee, which is supposed to work together for the good of the country, in bringing out the truth in these matters.

Senator Pepper, by his obstructionist tactics, his obvious antagonism to the Republicans on the committee and his praise of the men being questioned before all facts are in, has done more than anyone else to bring discredit on the Senate of the United States.

Ideological Bogies

By Malvina Lindsay

Women's Hurdle

WHETHER CULTURAL and human welfare goals can transcend barriers of suspicion created by the terms "socialist" and "capitalist" is being determined this August and September as women leaders throughout the world get together to try to do something about the sad state of the planet. One international meeting recently ended in Paris. One is being held this week in Toronto. Three are scheduled for September—two in Europe, one in America.

These are not presenting the usual two-world tug of war between the United States and Russia. Soviet women are not participating. The Soviet Union, in turning down offers of membership, maintained it had equality of sexes, hence no need for separate women's groups. It did however send a delegation last November to Paris where the Women's International Democratic Federation was born.

While the groups now launching their world programs may have some Communist members, the bulk of their membership consists of "capitalist" democrats from the United States and "socialist" democrats from Britain and Western Europe.

Aims of these groups are divorced from political ideology. One is to meet the urgent needs of the children of the world. Others are to rehabilitate women war sufferers, to encourage feminine political activity, and to build a fellowship among women to checkmate the gathering forces of war.

NEVERTHELESS capitalist and socialist viewpoints will likely show up in approach to these problems. Also, the assembling women find that widespread revolution in ideas has taken place since prewar days, and that a gulf in political thought lies between America and Europe.

Women active in international groups are generally of such mental caliber as not to frighten at the bogey words "socialist" and "capitalist." It is unlikely American women delegates will find themselves distrustfully regarded by their European colleagues as "money mad reactionaries"—as have been some American students, officials and other travelers abroad. It is unlikely that European women delegates with socialist labels will be looked upon as "dangerous radicals" by their American associates.

Yet there is a tendency in Europe to look on the prewar type of woman's club—the kind generally prevalent in America—as old-fashioned because of its lack of emphasis on needs of working women, and its paucity of labor representation. On the other hand, Americans zealously guard the freedom of their cultural and civic organizations from economic or political alignment. Both sides may have to make some compromises, especially in programs relating to family and child welfare, for which European Socialists espouse state aid to an extent feared in America.

American club delegates to world meetings face the same situation their Government does in its foreign policy. Monarchists, royalists, other extreme rightists in Europe are regarded there as in decay and on the way out. Western European Socialists are actually the only moderate and strong popular base for democratic cooperation in Europe.

THIS WEEK in Toronto women from 31 countries, many of them scholars of note, are holding the first postwar meeting of the International Federation of University Women—which has a postwar policy of no membership barriers of race, creed or political belief. Many delegates to it, and also those to the World Fellowship meeting of the International Council of Women in Philadelphia next month, have been and are to be given first hand knowledge of American democracy through visits and tours in this country.

The Associated Country Women of the World will meet in September in Amsterdam to consider needs of the millions of rural women. A women's meeting designed to end in action rather than resolutions is the International Assembly for Women's World Fellowship in Paris, September 28. It plans to do something about the plight of the world's children, may even tackle the world's state of mind, now so dead set toward war.

One encouraging note is that the International Federation of Business and Professional Women, at its recent first postwar meeting in Paris, came out with a program on which delegates from 17 nations with wide divergence of opinion, reached agreement in 102 degrees of heat.

Reimplanted Teeth

I am sure that most dentists will decry the unfortunate publicity given to Dr. Ferlita of Atlanta and his four patients who since last September still have their reimplanted teeth. There is no physiological or clinical basis for Dr. Ferlita to claim such success. If five years from now these four patients can be demonstrated to have bones free of infection as indicated by X-rays, I am sure we will sit up and take notice. My guess is, however, that one year from now said four patients will be wearing bridgework.

I, as no doubt have many other dentists, have reimplanted one or more teeth almost immediately following their breaking out in some accident. Some success has been demonstrated where no infection has been present and where the involved tooth or teeth have been properly stabilized. However, Dr. Ferlita should not make such a broad claim when his clinical experience in this field has been limited to only four patients. To do so is a definite disservice to the public and the newspapers should not encourage it.

Coal Conference

By Barnet Nover

Key To Europe's Problem

THE RUHR coal problem, which British and American officials are now grappling with at a long-awaited conference in Washington, touches the very nerve center of Europe's economic distress.

NOVER

No shortage, except that of food, has done more to hold back the recovery of the nations of western Europe than the shortage of coal. Conversely, no development could have a more beneficial effect on the curve of production in France, Italy, the Low Countries and elsewhere than a sharp increase in the output from the mines of the Ruhr.

The present coal production level in the Ruhr is around 220,000 tons a day. That is slightly more than half of the prewar rate. The plan is to increase that output by a third during the next six months.

THERE IS NO substitute for Ruhr coal. During the past year an unprecedentedly large volume of coal has been shipped from the United States to Europe. It has partially filled the gap created by the decline in British and German coal exports.

But American coal—at $22 a ton—constitutes a serious drain on the sadly depleted dollar holdings of western European countries. Nor can the vacuum satisfactorily be filled by the cheaper coal mined in Polish Silesia. In the first place, Poland's coal production, while increasing, is still inadequate in volume viewed in relation to Europe's needs. In the second place, the distribution of Silesian coal has from time to time been influenced by purely political factors, namely Russia's desire to use Polish coal as a weapon in the struggle for European dominance.

GIVEN THE vital importance to Europe of Ruhr coal, it is a fair question to ask why there has been so much delay in getting production of that commodity back to normal.

The devastation which war brought in its wake in the Ruhr tells part of the story. It does not tell the whole tale. Nor is it fair to place all the blame for lagging coal production in the Ruhr entirely on British shoulders, as some have done. As the occupying power in that vital area, Great Britain must undoubtedly assume some of the responsibility for the failure to get more coal out of the Ruhr. Yet the fact must not be lost to sight that the very things that are needed to bring about such an increase in production—more food for the miners, more consumption goods, better housing, etc.—are the things that Great Britain is in no position to supply out of her own resources.

It has cost Great Britain in excess of 300 million dollars a year to keep up her end of the Allied occupation of the former Reich. She is in no position to assume a heavier burden. On the contrary, Britain's weakened financial state, particularly her shortage of dollar exchange, may make it necessary for her to reduce rather than increase her occupation costs.

IT IS precisely for this reason that the British were reluctant to participate in the present Washington discussions on Ruhr coal production unless related questions, such as a change in the ratio of American and British contributions to the costs of the combined zone, were taken up simultaneously.

The American view has been, however, that the Ruhr coal problem ought to be considered by itself alone. The United States has also been opposed to the British plan for an early nationalization of the Ruhr mines.

The stand of the United States on this matter has been less ideological than practical. This country has not opposed nationalization as such largely out of the belief that this is no time to complicate a technical production problem by linking it with a far-reaching political consideration. The American view has been that nationalization can wait; that what is needed now is coal.

The British have now reluctantly been won over to this point of view. They have agreed that the question of the division of occupation costs should also be kept off the agenda of the Washington parley. Sooner or later these problems and the general problems of the German level of production will have to be taken up.

The fact is that the problem of European economy cannot easily be broken up into segments. It must be dealt with as a whole. That is the significance of the Marshall Plan. Yet the need of Ruhr coal is so great and immediate that every effort must be made to boost the total output at this time. Such an increase in production would be useful not only to the occupying powers and Germany but to all of western Europe as well.

Working Partnership

AS SENATOR Arthur H. Vandenberg wings his way down to Rio de Janeiro, he leaves behind for a time the vexatious and ever-present responsibility that goes with his role as Republican leader for foreign policy.

Childs

This is not to underestimate the importance of the Inter-American defense conference now assembling in Brazil's beautiful capital. Important differences must be ironed out, with the issue of Argentina and Juan Peron's Fascist-like behavior very much to the fore.

But when this is set against the crisis in Western Europe and the deepening conflict with Soviet Russia, it has a look of almost elemental simplicity. Above all, as Vandenberg is acutely aware, the supreme task is to get the American people to see how our obligation fits in with the desperate need for recovery and rehabilitation in non-Communist Europe.

Always sensitive to what the people back home are thinking, the Senator from Michigan did not hesitate to express his doubts on this score as he prepared to fly to Rio. He is fearful that the job of "selling" the Marshall Plan will not be adequately done and that once again Congress will be rallied with the cry of "crisis."

That simply will not work another time, Vandenberg has said with much emphatic pounding of the desk. Any attempt to use a crisis psychology will defeat the very end at which it is aimed.

IN NO uncertain terms, Vandenberg expressed this opinion to Secretary of Commerce W. Averell Harriman when they met at a dinner 10 days ago. Harriman is chairman of the committee named by President Truman to appraise America's resources and determine whether we have the capacity to provide the needed aid for Europe. That committee grew out of Vandenberg's statement in the Senate on June 10, calling for an inventory of resources.

What Vandenberg wanted to know was why the committee had not kept the public informed of its progress. Harriman explained that the first steps had been taken. Various subcommittees are gathering data. But at this stage there is little that the committee can say.

It is the sense of his own responsibility in this business that goads the Senator from Michigan. He knows that when the Marshall Plan is formulated, in accord with the report of the 16-nation European committee—expected sometime after September 1—he will have to chaperone it through the Senate, and he knows this will be impossible if the final result appears to the public as merely another appeal for aid.

That is why he puts such stress on the resources inventory being made by the Harriman committee. That is why he is prayerfully hoping that the report of the European nations will be a self-help balance sheet which will assign to the United States a partnership with mutual benefits clearly evident to the American people.

FOR THE present, at least, Vandenberg has no plans to call the Senate Foreign Relations Committee into special session this fall. There have been frequent reports that the committee would be summoned to prepare legislation that would be ready when Congress convenes in January. These reports annoy the Senator from Michigan.

That is getting the cart before the horse, he says with considerable choler. Before any schedule can be set, the reports of the committees in Europe and this country must be available. That is the raw material and without it the legislative machine cannot function.

This does not mean that there is any lack of cooperation between Vandenberg and Secretary of State George C. Marshall. Reports to this effect also produce a choleric reaction in the man who feels acutely the burden he carries.

As a matter of fact, the relationship between the two is extremely cordial. At the end of the session of Congress, the Secretary of State wrote the Senator a letter of warmest appreciation for his cooperation and the "decisive influence" he exercised in foreign policy. He addressed him as "Dear Vandenberg," which, for the reserved Marshall, was equivalent to a passionate endearment.

After Rio comes the meeting of the General Assembly of the United Nations in New York. Next is the Foreign Ministers' Conference in London. Vandenberg shakes his big, balding head gloomily. It is not an easy schedule, and always in his mind is the thought that the people back home must be made to understand the program in terms not merely of need but of benefit and the conviction that a working partnership is essential and desirable.

Tito Given Credit for Ending Racial Strife Among Yugoslavs

(Daniel de Luce, who worked as a correspondent in Belgrade in 1940, tells in this dispatch of changes he has found accomplished in Yugoslavia under Marshal Tito's regime.)

By Daniel De Luce

Belgrade, Aug. 13 (AP).—By following Russia's example, Yugoslavia has removed blood-soaked racial strife from her internal politics.

In the 18 months since the constitutional foundations of the federative republic were laid at Belgrade, there have been fewer quarrels among South Slavs than in the 22 years that they were supposedly united under a Serbian crown.

The destruction of racial inequalities in a manner perfected earlier at Moscow for the diverse peoples of the U. S. S. R., is described by foreign observers here as the greatest reform inspired by Marshal Josif Broz Tito.

The political spoils system—of, and for the Serbs—so weakened the old kingdom that it was shattered overnight by a blow from Nazi Germany. No prewar visitor can forget the seething resentment in Zagreb, the disaffection in Skoplje, toward the government clique in Belgrade.

Powers to 6 Republics

All that has been washed out.

The new formula is simplicity itself. One wonders why even a king could not have thought of it. The federative republic is made up of six republics, to which are reserved all powers except those specifically delegated by the constitution to the central authority.

Only six members of the Yugoslav cabinet are federal ministers. This is direct administration of foreign affairs, national defense, communications, maritime affairs, postal system, and foreign commerce.

But nine other ministers are "Federal-Republicans." That is, they are compelled by law to administer directly through corresponding ministers of the six brother republics, assuming direct responsibility only for such works, enterprises and institutions as are determined to be of general interest. Their portfolios include finance, interior, justice, industry, mines, commerce and supply, agriculture and forests, labor and public works.

Old Boundaries Restored

In drawing the frontiers of the republics, Yugoslavia's new founding fathers respected with fine exactitude racial histories and traditions.

Montenegro, Macedonia and Bosnia-Herzegovina reappeared on the map. After the First World War, they had been swallowed up in Serbia.

Besides letting these fledgling republics stretch their own wings, the Serbs concede autonomy now to the province of Voyvodina and the region of Kossovo within the Serbian Republic.

The republics of Slovenia and Croatia, in addition, conform to the territorial ideas of the races concerned.

In such a small thing as the engraving of national currency, as with issues of high importance, federative Yugoslavia scrupulously pays tribute to all its Slavic brethren.

The name of each republic appears on every dinar banknote, written the way its people write it, whether in Latin or Cyrillic characters.

Free to Change Customs

If enlightened Moslems of Bosnia-Herzegovina wish to reform archaic customs which made womankind a veiled chattel, they are free to go ahead and do it. Belgrade neither forces nor directs the movement.

A stern standard of proletarian austerity is enforced for all officials of all the republics.

Yugoslavia's political revamping, which has quenched age-old racial animosities, is closely akin to the military organization which Tito set up early in the war and which built his few thousand partisans into a far-flung army of national liberation.

He cut across barriers of race and creed, recruiting all Yugoslavs who were not tainted as Axis collaborators. Himself a Croat, he wound up with many more Serbs in his command than his former rival, Draja Mihajlovic, who had appealed almost entirely to Serb nationalism of a prewar brand.

Firemen Rescue Tot in Bedsprings

Chicago, Aug. 13 (AP).—Two-year-old Dion Kevin was put to rest in an adult-sized bed last night, because of the heat, but Dion rolled out and under the bed in his restless tossings. When his parents heard his cries, they found Dion sitting on the floor, his head caught in the bedsprings.

It took four firemen to pry the coils apart while a fifth greased Dion's head with vaseline and released him.

Coal Embargo Against Canada May Bring Newsprint Bans

Ottawa, Aug. 13 (AP).—An embargo on shipments of United States coal into Canada over Canadian National Railway Lines was scheduled to go into effect at midnight tonight and official quarters here, perturbed about the situation, foresaw the possibility of a Canadian embargo on shipments of newsprint to the United States as a countermove.

Canadian Transport Minister Lionel Chevrier was expected to make a statement today on the Washington action ordered by the Office of Defense Transportation which said Canadian National Railways had failed to speed return of coal cars in sufficient numbers to the United States. The Canadian Pacific Railway is not affected by the embargo.

It was conceded that the United States coal embargo would jeopardize Canada's reserves of coal because the C. N. R. handles the greater amount of the import. But it was pointed out that any action by Canada banning newsprint shipments to the United States also would hit hard at a major American industry.

Transport Minister Chevrier said he knew of no move to embargo Canadian newsprint shipments and declared it would probably be a government matter in which the trade department would have something to say.

He said Canadian figures showed open-top coal cars in Canada had been reduced from a peak of 17,000 to 8120 but the U. S. Office of Defense Transportation claimed Canada had not returned 16,000.

Canada Asks U. N. to Table Red Atom Plan as Inadequate

Lake Success, N. Y., Aug. 13 (U.P.).—Canada proposed formally today that the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission call Russia's atomic control proposals "inadequate" and defer discussing them until they are elaborated.

The move was aimed at tabling the generally opposed Soviet proposals until after the atomic commission drafts its report to the U. N. General Assembly—a document which will show that Russia and the American-led majority are far apart on how to control and develop atomic energy.

A vote on the Canadian proposal was deferred until Friday.

The Soviet proposals termed "wholly inadequate" by the United States and several other countries, outline Russia's idea of a world atomic control agency, a system of inspection and a network of controls which would leave many powers over atomic activities in the hands of national governments.

FSA Notes 12th Anniversary With Report on New Trends

America's waifs are increasingly being cared for in homes, instead of institutions, the Federal Security Agency noted yesterday.

The individual need of the child is becoming the determining factor as to whether he is placed in his own home, a foster home, or an institution.

The Nation-wide trend away from institutional care was described in a report released by the Federal Security Agency on the twelfth anniversary of the Social Security Act today. Federal aid to the States, provided by the act, has been the main cause, the agency said.

230,000 in Homes

Approximately 230,000 children, at the close of 1946, were receiving non-institutional services from either State or local welfare departments.

Moreover, the agency reported, Federal funds have encouraged about half of the States which had no provisions, or inadequate provisions for child welfare care at the inception of the Social Security Act in 1935 to set up special divisions.

The number of children living in public institutions last year was 28 per cent below the figure for 1933, the agency noted.

While observing this progress, the agency pointed out that only the surface has been scratched in providing the Nation's children with adequate social service.

Only 2200 full-time child welfare workers are employed throughout the Nation by State and local public welfare departments, with more than half the number in seven States and for the most part in urban areas, the agency declared.

Infant Mortality Dropped

The agency said that during the period of the Social Security Act, infant mortality has dropped 40 per cent. During the same 12-year period maternal mortality has decreased 70 per cent.

Each of the 48 States now has a maternal and child-health division while in 1934, 23 States had no funds for this purpose or spent less than $10,000 a year.

Federal grants to aid crippled children has resulted in all States providing services, the report said.

In 1935 only 35 States had any facilities and few had the Statewide programs now prevalent.

Under the Social Security Act half the Federal funds for services to crippled children must be matched by the States, the rest is allotted on the basis of the State's financial need for assistance in carrying out its program.

For the current year, the report points out, States have budgeted more than 10 million dollars for services to crippled children or more than 2½ times the Federal grant of $3,870,000.

RFC Refuses to Absorb Loss Of 85 Millions for Kaiser

By the United Press

The Reconstruction Finance Corp. yesterday denied Henry J. Kaiser's plea that it take an 85-million-dollar loss on its loan to his Fontana, Calif., steel plant so he could compete with other Western steel mills.

In a letter to the West Coast industrialist, Acting RFC Secretary Leo Nielson said the agency's directors had decided that only "by direction of the Congress" could Kaiser's remaining 105-million-dollar indebtedness to the Government be scaled down to 20 million dollars.

Kaiser asked the RFC on May 21 to grant the reduction in recognition of his "excessive" operating costs in turning out wartime steel for the Government.

He said the proposal was patterned after the Government's sale of its surplus steel mill at Geneva, Utah, to United States Steel at 20.9 per cent of its original cost—or a loss to the Government of $162,200,000.

No Basis Seen

But Nielson said the RFC saw "no basis for the presumption" that the Geneva transaction set a formula for absorbing Kaiser's losses. The Geneva plant was built by the Government while the Fontana plant was built by Kaiser with funds he borrowed from the Government.

Nielson said that even if the situations were similar, the competitive bid price for Fontana could only be determined by placing the plant on the open market for sale.

"If that were done," he said, "it cannot be presumed that the result would duplicate the Geneva result."

More Capital a Need

"What is needed," he added, "is sufficient private capital to liquidate the Government investment on the basis of the sound value of Fontana assets."

Reviewing the RFC aid granted Kaiser, Neilson said the agency in 1945 reduced interest on the Fontana loan, made a new loan of $11,500,000, waived interest on 34 million dollars and permitted repayment from his shipbuilding earnings.

Kaiser Automobile Price Raised $99

Detroit, Aug. 13 (AP).—A price increase of $99 on the Kaiser automobile was announced today by Kaiser-Frazier Corp. The boost brings the factory list price of the Kaiser to $1967.

The company raised the price of its Frazier automobile standard model the same amount a week ago. The price of the company's other model, the Frazier Manhattan, remains unchanged.

Seattle Newspaper Suspends Publication

Seattle, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—The Seattle Star, afternoon Seattle daily newspaper, today announced that it was suspending publication with today's editions.

The announcement was made in a box on the front page of today's paper by the owners, Howard W. Parish and associates. The announcement said that increasing costs, particularly of newsprint and labor, had forced the management into the decision.

Humidity Is All Wet, Experts Agree

"It's not the heat but the humidity."

And just as it's an ill wind that doesn't blow some good, so it is an ill wind that doesn't have some effect.

Soft drink dispensers, for instance, find their sales increase when the humidity is high, and housewives find their laundry dries more slowly.

According to Milton Blanc, meterologist in the synoptic reports and forecasts division of the Weather Bureau, "The humidity we talk about, relative humidity, is the percentage of the moisture in the air at a given time in relation to the amount of moisture that the air could hold at that temperature."

More on Hot Days

The hotter it is, the more moisture the air can hold. The more moisture in the air, the more slowly perspiration evaporates, thus increasing one's discomfort, Blanc says. "A difference of about 20 per cent in humidity at the same temperature reading can make a lot of difference in personal comfort."

Though you don't stop to think of it when you are mopping your brow, the effects of humidity are many and various.

For example, Blanc points out that high humidity causes metal products to rust;

Slows the drying of paints, varnishes and enamels;

Decreases efficiency of rockets burning a power fuel, which absorbs moisture;

Causes water to condense on the plumbing and drip;

Makes air-conditioning units cost more than in dry climates where units can be used that depend on evaporation of water for cooling, whereas in a humid climate the unit has to have some type of refrigerant.

Makes precision printing more difficult because of paper's tendency to absorb moisture and expand.

Slows Forest Fires

A. A. Brown, chief of fire control, Department of Agriculture Forestry Service, points out that humidity is a "good indicator of the inflammability of forest fuels. When the humidity is high it means that fires won't spread as fast, or even start at all.

"It has been observed that even with a going fire, when the humidity increased the fire slowed down."

Jenkin W. Jones of Cereal Crops Division at the Department of Agriculture research center at Beltsville, Md., says that corn thrives in the warm humid days—as long as it is not wet enough to cause rot, and so also does the crab grass that is so plentiful in District lawns.

Humidity is also important in the hatching of baby chicks, according to the researches of Dr. H. G. Barott of the Department of Agriculture's animal husbandry division.

61 Per Cent Best

When the humidity is low the eggs dry out, when it is too high the chicks don't hatch out either. He found 61 per cent humidity most favorable to incubation in the cabinet types of commercial incubators, though other factors enter in, too.

As for humans, Dr. Alvin R. Sweeney, superintendent of Gallinger Hospital, says the effect of high humidity is felt directly by the body and not by the mind. "Cerebration is not directly affected, but indirectly as the body is affected, which affects the psyche and the mind."

The dangers are heat exhaustion and heat stroke, and he advises that you are better off, when you're saying "It's not the heat' etc,," to be avoiding alcoholic drinks, pork and red meats, and unnecessary exercise—anything that increases the body's heat.

Colliery Reopens

West Frankfort, Ill., Aug. 13 (AP). Coal production resumed today at the Old Ben Coal Corporation's No. 8 mine here for the first time since a July 24 underground explosion killed 27 men. The colliery, employing about 500, yields an average of 4000 tons of coal a day.

New Plea for Curley Rebuffed

Attorneys for Mayor James M. Curley of Boston were again rebuffed yesterday in their continued attempts to free or lessen the jail term of the 72-year-old Democratic chieftain and former Congressman.

Justice James M. Proctor, in District Court, yesterday ruled against their plea for reduction of Curley's 6-to-18-month term in Federal penitentiary, sought on the grounds that his conviction of mail fraud was his first for a felony. They argued Judge Proctor, in sentencing, had termed it his second felony.

Curley's lawyers said an earlier conviction, around 1900 when Curley fraudulently took a civil service examination for a friend, was a misdemeanor.

Misdemeanor or felony, it makes no difference to the sentencing, Judge Proctor ruled.

Lane Urges Curb on Va. Fishing Lines

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 13 (AP).—Governor Lane today urged Secretary of War Kenneth C. Royall to prevent extending Virginia fishing lines in the Chesapeake Bay, saying, "we cannot compromise on conservation of our marine resources."

The chief executive appealed to Royall to use his offices to prevent setting pound nets on the Eastern Shore of Virginia in the bay under a compromise extension proposal suggested by Col. D. T. M. Derby, Norfolk district United States engineer.

After reviewing the recent history of fisheries in the bay, the Governor said it indicated "clearly that any increase in fishing permitted will undoubtedly decrease production and bring about economic hardship on both Maryland and Virginia fishermen."

Nets may be placed in 20 feet of water in the area the Governor mentioned.

Maryland Representatives, in accordance with a House of Delegates resolution, previously protested the extension.

Governor Lane declared "the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries are a biological unit. Fish migrating up the bay move across State lines so that fishermen of either States may catch a major part of the population to the detriment of the industry in both States."

He said Maryland and Virginia fisheries had declined during the past 40 years, with a 60 per cent drop in Maryland.

He said the decline in shad fishery showed the need for protection, noting that while in 1939 only 9 per cent of the migrant shad escaped to spawn, under the Maryland management plan in 1945, 24 per cent passed the nets.

"The decline in the herring fishery parallels that of the shad while the drop in catch of croakers has been serious within the last two years," Lane said.

Virginian Due to Use Estate Willed to Mrs. Roosevelt

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

The Rev. A. B. Starns, Tennessee preacher who willed Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt an estate estimated at $25,000, poses with his niece, Mrs. Paul Jones, in this family album-type picture. The 71-year-old bachelor clergyman who died last week in Fredericksburg, Va., is holding one of his niece's baby shoes

Greenville, Tenn., Aug. 13 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will not get immediate possession of an estate willed to her by a southern preacher-farmer, described by friends as a lifelong Democrat in a Republican stronghold.

The will of Rev. A. B. Starnes, filed for probate in circuit court here yesterday, bequeathed a 247-acre Greene County farm and all personal property to Mrs. Roosevelt, but court-appointed executor Frank Derry, said today the farm would not be turned over to her during the lifetime of Starnes' niece, Mrs. Paul Jones, of Fredericksburg, Va.

Berry said a clause in the will gave Mrs. Jones the right to live in "the old home place" during her lifetime, and that he interpreted this to mean the farm would pass on to Mrs. Roosevelt after the niece's death.

If Mrs. Roosevelt thinks otherwise, Berry said, "the case will have to be decided by the courts."

Value of Starnes' estate, unofficially estimated yesterday at $25,000, was revised downward today by Berry. His estimate was "between $15,000 and $18,000."

Berry was appointed executor to replace the late President Roosevelt, who was named executor in the will.

House Built to Get Teachers

If you are looking for a small house to rent in southern Prince Georges County, there's one waiting for you. The only gimmick is that you must be a qualified elementary school teacher, or better yet, two teachers.

Residents of Accokeek, Md., unhappy with the thought that their older children might have to be transported to Brandywine another year, are building a one-story frame bungalow which they will offer for rent to the two teachers required to staff the two-room school there.

During the war Mrs. Henry Clagett, a local resident, took charge of the first two grades and the top four grades traveled by bus to the nearest elementary school at Brandywine.

This year two June graduates of Vassar were engaged but Accokeek proved a bit too rural for their tastes. Then Mrs. Alice L. L. Ferguson offered to build the home on her property and offer its first choice to teachers. The house is nearing completion now.

William Schmidt, director of instruction for the Board of Education, explained yesterday that one and two-room elementary school vacancies are the hardest to fill. There are still 18 elementary school vacancies, but applications are coming in and he is confident the Accokeek school will be staffed.

Murray and Green Requested to Testify

Chairman Edward Martin (R., Pa.) yesterday asked Philip Murray, president of the CIO and its United Steel Workers, to testify before his Senate Small Business subcommittee on September 11. William Green, president of the AFL, also was asked to appear.

Martin said in a formal statement that his committee soon would make public a report on the steel shortage.

Ex-GIs' Candidate Defeated In Virginia Legion Election

Richmond, Va., Aug. 13 (AP).—The Virginia Department, American Legion, this afternoon elected John A. Blakemore, Abingdon lawyer and businessman, as its new commander.

Blakemore's election came after a hotly contested battle in which his opponent, W. C. Daniel, of Schoolfield, received strong support from the young World War II faction. Daniels conceded the election after Blakemore piled up a big lead in returns from the first four districts.

Daniel moved that the election be made unanimous and the heated battle over the legion commandership—waged in some of Richmond's hottest weather of the year—came to a peaceful conclusion.

Blackemore was favored by the so-called "harmony" faction, headed by department adjutant W. Glenn Elliott of Richmond. Backing the Daniel candidacy was retiring Department Commander Robert B. Crawford, of Farmville.

The new commander is a native of Muskogee, Okla. He is a graduate of Emory and Henry College and a veteran of both world wars.

Aution of Ship Nets $400,000

Baltimore, Aug. 13 (AP).—Bildberg Rothschild, Inc., of New York, today bid in the 7340-ton steamship City of Athens for $400,000 at a public auction ordered in Federal Court after creditors filed $1,052,000 worth of claims against owners of the liner.

Sale of the ship at public auction was ordered by Federal Judge W. Calvin Chesnut after a libel action.

Russian Charges Of 'Slave Labor' Held Ridiculous

Lake Success, N. Y., Aug. 13 (INS).—Russian charges before the United Nations that the United States is recruiting slave labor from displaced persons in Germany and Austria brought an amazed American denial today.

The charge was made by Alexander P. Morozov, Soviet spokesman in the Economic and Social Council, who also declared that displaced persons are being exploited as cheap labor "for the coal mines of England and Germany, for the jungles of Brazil, and for the woods of Canada."

America's answer was made by UNESCO representative Leroy Stinebower who referred "with regret" to the "unfounded statements" of his Russian colleague.

Representatives of Great Britain, Canada, Chile and Venezuela also promptly termed the Soviet charge ridiculous.

Get Welcome Relief From Stomach Gas, Sour Food Taste

Do you feel bloated and miserable after every meal? If so, here is how you may rid yourself of this nervous distress. Thousands have found it the way to be well, cheerful and happy again.

Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with overdoses of soda and other alkalizers to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

"UNTIL I COME BACK"...

We're over 20,000 feet now (the coffee's "frozen" in the thermos) and that's the Zuyder Zee below. We must be halfway across Holland.

Funny thing what happens to a fellow . .

Those are the same old stars and the same old moon that the girl and I were looking at last Christmas.

And here I am—flying 300 miles an hour in a bubble of glass, with ten tons of T.N.T.

Somehow—this isn't the way I imagined it at all, the day I enlisted. Don't get me wrong—sure I was sore at the Japs and the Nazis—but mostly, it was the thrill of the Great Adventure.

Well, I know now—the real reasons—why I'm up here paying my first call on Hitler.

It's only when you get away from the U. S. A. that you find out what the shootin's really about and what you're fighting for.

I learned from that Czech chap in London. The refugee, the nice old fellow who reminded me of Dad except for the maimed hands. I was dumb enough to ask about it. "I got that," he said, "for writing a book the Nazis didn't like . . ."

Then there was the captured German pilot who screamed and spit when Izzy Jacobs offered him a cigarette . . . how do fellows get that way?

And that crazy Polish pilot—the fellow who rammed the Messerschmitt. After the funeral I learned what was eating him. Seems as how he had a sister in Warsaw who had been sent to a German Officers' Club . . .

I hope to hell Hitler's home tonight . . . light and wind are perfect.

Yes, sir, I've met 'em by the dozens over here—guys warped by hate—guys who have had the ambition beaten out of them—guys who look at you as if you were crazy when you tell 'em what America is like.

They say America will be a lot different after this war.

Well, maybe so.

But as for me, I know the score . . . you learn fast over here. I know now there's only one decent way to live in this world—the way my folks lived and the way I want to live.

When you find a thing that works as good as that—brother, be careful with that monkey-wrench.

And there's one little spot—well, if they do as much as change the smell of the corner drug store—I will murder the guy.

I want my girl back, just as she is, and that bungalow on Maple Avenue . . .

I want that old roll-top desk of mine at the electric company, with a chance to move upstairs, or quit if I want to.

I want to see that old school of mine, and our church, just as they are—because I want my kids to go there.

That's my home town . . .

Keep it for me the way I remember it, just the way I see it now—until I come back.

NASH KELVINATOR

NASH-KELVINATOR CORPORATION, DETROIT, MICHIGAN

Published in the belief that here at Nash-Kelvinator we carry a double responsibility—not only to build the weapons for victory but also to build toward the kind of a future, an American future, our boys will want when they come back.

Almost five years ago this advertisement was published by Nash-Kelvinator. It seems to us appropriate that on this second anniversary of V-J Day we should reappraise the situation:

Before it is too late

I remember the cheers at Okinawa when the word came through. The war was over! Peace had come, this time for keeps.

A wonderful new world was on the way . . . remember?

I got to thinking about it last night—it's been nearly two years since V-J Day. And I couldn't sleep.

Beyond our town I seemed to see the lights of all the world.

And as I watched, they were going out one by one.

I saw the glowing foundries grow cold against the moon, the wheels stop in the factories, and the farmer desert his plow.

I saw neighbor turn on neighbor, and I heard the clash of arms at night.

I saw the printing presses smashed, and free people taken away and shot.

I saw the rise of the dictators.

I saw their lines of puppet men jerking to the polls, while bands played and banners waved.

Yes—the disciplined state had come.

"Turn on your radio, comrade. The orders for the day are coming through . . . "

"Turn over your children to us. We will indoctrinate them for the state . . . "

"Your union is no longer necessary. Your hours, your rations and your work have been set by the bureau . . . "

"Tear up the ballot. You have no need for it now . . . "

I want to thank God today that I live in America.

That I can still speak my own mind and do as I please; work as I please and vote as I please . . . that the way ahead of me is still wide open.

Now I know how easily these priceless privileges can be lost.

For there is no place that a man can stop when he starts trading away his liberties. Step by step it leads into slavery.

There is nothing but misery and want at the end of the road when the people of a nation split into selfish, quarreling groups and classes.

And that has been the law of mankind since the beginning of time.

I have a young son and this is what I'm going to tell him—

—If you cannot learn to discipline yourself, there will always come a tyrant to teach you.

—It takes spunk and sweat to become a good American citizen. Don't let anybody try to tell you differently.

—You'll never find peace in any doctrine that preaches violence to prove its point.

—You'll never be happy under any kind of government that denies the love of God and the natural goodness of man.

—You'll never get ahead in any scheme of life that puts a halter on your initiative and your ingenuity.

Above all, beware the man—whether he is a Right or a Left, or the Middle, or of the Proletariat or whatever label he wears—if he tries, under any pretext, to trade you out of any of your rights as a citizen—he is a tyrant, who will take away all your liberties, one by one.

No, I don't think it's going to happen in America.

But make no mistake about it. The danger is still there.

We have been challenged to prove the stuff we are made of—to prove that the way we live and work beats that of any other system in the world.

And there's only one way to prove it. That's to produce the goods . . . before it is too late.

We've got to bury our little squabbles, and start pulling together.

We've got to set our wheels in a new high—and keep them rolling.

We've got to quit looking back to 1939, or '29—and start building a many-times-greater America.

We've got to plant more wheat and raise more corn. Dig more coal and roll more steel. Build more, make more.

It's got to be done—not only to bring back the lights of Europe, but because it is our only salvation—

—because it is the American way, to ever increase our ability to bring better living to more people.

—because only by being productive can we be strong—

And only by being strong can we remain free!

Joint Labor Group Accused Of Usurping Powers of NLRB

By the United Press

The International Association of Machinists, the Nation's biggest independent union, charged last night that the Joint Congressional Labor Committee "is usurping the functions of the National Labor Relations Board . . . in a campaign to break up trade unions."

Thomas E. Shroyer, committee counsel, promptly denied the charge. The new NLRB general counsel, Robert Denham, had no immediate comment.

President Truman reportedly has told the reorganized NLRB that it was all right to cooperate with the committee but that it should interpret the new Taft-Hartley law itself and ignore all attempts at dictation.

The act created the joint committee of seven Representatives and seven Senators to study its administration and other labor-management problems. Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.) and Representative Fred A. Hartley (R., N. J.) are its cochairmen.

The IAM assault was made by President Harvey W. Brown in a statement published in the union's weekly newspaper.

"A small pro-employer clique in Congress led by Ball and Hartley have seized control over the supposedly impartial machinery of the new NLRB and are using it in a campaign to break up trade unions in this country," Brown said.

He said he based his charge on (1) the Senate's failure to confirm Denham and the two new board members, J. Copeland Gray of Buffalo, N. Y., and former Senator Abe Murdock (D., Utah) and (2) a series of meetings between the committee and the board.

He said that the failure to confirm Denham, Murdock and Gray "effectively stripped them of any semblance of independent authority in their dealing with Labor."

'Iron Curtain' Cuts Mystery Phone Call to Kaiser's Kin

Berlin, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—Prince Ferdinand von Schoenaisch-Carolath, a sleek-haired stepson of the late Kaiser Wilhelm II, reported tonight that he was just about to get some "important news" by telephone from the Russian zone about the sudden death of his mother when the circuit was broken.

The United States Army's Criminal Investigation Division here has received reports that the Prince's mother, Princess Hermine, may have been poisoned at a tea party. The motive, according to these informants, could have been that the Princess knew who smuggled the five-million-dollar crown jewels from Frankfurt-on-Oder to Prince Ferdinand in Berlin and, consequently, who had the opportunity to steal two million dollars worth.

At any rate, Ferdinand reported that he received a call from Fraulein Topf, his mother's secretary and companion at her home in Frankfurt-on-Oder.

"Fraulein Topf talked very softly, as though someone was watching her," Ferdinand said. "We were cut off just as she was about to tell me something important about Mama."

She called back later, but he never did find out what she wanted to tell him. He said that on the second call she avoided any reference to the first and discussed only the details of the funeral to be held Friday in Potsdam for his mother, who died last Thursday.

Before the CID withdrew from the case, it asked the Russians to perform an autopsy on Princess Hermine to see whether they could find any poison.

Trolley Accident Report Corrected

Odom Congratulated By O'Dwyer on Flight

New York, Aug. 13 (AP).—Capt. William P. Odom, 27, former Army pilot who completed a record round-the-world solo flight at Chicago last Sunday, was congratulated today by Mayor William O'Dwyer at City Hall.

Odom, who flew from Chicago today in his globe-circling "Reynolds Bombshell," said he planned to fly to Washington after the game tonight and visit President Truman tomorrow.

Hess' Brother Arrested As Nazi Case Witness

Nuernberg, Germany, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—Alfred Hess, brother of convicted war criminal Rudolf Hess and discharged deputy chief of the foreign organization of the Nazi Party, was arrested and brought here today as a witness or possible defendant in the case against the German foreign ministry.

Alfred Hess was in charge of the economic war preparation of the party's foreign organization under Ernest Wilhelm Wohle. He had many dealings with sympathizers in South American countries.

Holland, Mich., Celebrating Its Centennial Fete

Holland, Mich., Aug. 13 (AP).—A message from The Netherlands Queen Wilhelmina to descendants of her former subjects today prologued the week's centennial celebration of this western Michigan community named after the homeland of its pioneers.

Standing before a convocation at the Hope College chapel, The Netherlands minister plenipotentiary, Dr. Jonkheer Otto Reuchlin delivered the queen's greetings which regreted she could not attend the celebration personally and then added:

"My children, however, retain fond memories of the friendship shown them and our country during the visit they paid to Holland in 1941. Before everything else my children were struck by your devotion to the land of your ancestors."

Gen. Lee's High Living Faces Probe

By Col. Robert S. Allen

One of the congressional committees going to Europe has an unpublicized special mission that may prove very embarrassing to the high brass in the War Department.

Allen

The committee will look into the activities of Lieut. Gen. John C. H. Lee, commander of the Mediterranean theater and his high-living staff.

Reason for the committee's check-up are numerous complaints received by members of Congress from GIs serving in the theater, and their parents. The latter have been particularly indignant.

Burden of these complaints is that while Lee and his staff are living in lavish luxury, the enlisted men are ill-housed and ill-fed and subjected to un-American personal indignities and a Prussian form of discipline. The following are some of the charges contained in the letters:

That Lee has three private residences—in Rome, Florence, and Viareggio, the last place, a resort town, out of bounds for GIs; that he also has for his exclusive personal use a small fleet of automobiles, a specially equipped C-47 transport plane, and a special train. The latter—in charge of an officer who does nothing else—among other luxuries, has a special car for showing movies.

That more than 500 GIs are jampacked in quarters equipped with fewer than 15 showers, some of which don't work; that there is no "day room" (lounge) or other recreational facilities for the men; that their food is poorly prepared and unappetizingly served; that GIs are required to act as drivers for officers' wives and take care of officers' children, including a nursery; that Lee and his staff are "salute crazy," imposing heavy fines for the slighest infraction of this rule, and that a disciplinary camp is running full-blast at Pisa.

This last charge is particularly serious. The Army denies it is operating any more of these notorious camps. But the committee is in possession of considerable evidence not only proving the existence of the Pisa camp, but certain very unsavory things that have taken place there.

'God-Almighty' Lee

Aside from the question of Lee's alleged antics, the matter is very serious because of its possible adverse repercussions on the universal military training issue here.

The fate of this urgently needed defensive measure is very much in doubt. To further its enactment, the Army last year announced far-reaching changes in its traditional caste system, and set up a model training camp at Fort Knox. This camp has won high praise from numerous outstanding civilian leaders.

If the reports of what is transpiring in Lee's theater are confirmed by the congressional committee, it will provide devastating ammunition to UMT foes.

Lee was chief of supply in the European Theater during the war. He was not a popular figure. He was widely known as "God-almighty" Lee because of his high-handedness and luxurious living. In Paris, where his headquarters were located, he took over one of the best hotels which he publicly announced had to be considered as his private residence.

The late great General Patton repeatedly clashed with Lee over the failure of the Third Army to get adequate supplies, among them winter-warfare clothing. It was not until the Third Army had turned the tide in the Battle of the Bulge, that it finally began to get some of this equipment.

On one occasion, Patton bluntly demanded of Eisenhower that he crack down on Lee.

Fighting Men

Charles Potter, Seventh Army veteran who lost both legs in heroic fighting near Colmar, France, has won the Republican nomination for the Michigan seat held by the late Representative Fred Bradley . . . Loss of a leg in the assault on Guam is not keeping former Marine Tommy Breen from realizing his ambition to be a movie actor. He has just won a stellar role in MGM's new super-musical, "Luxury Liner". . . Col. Oscar Koch, who fought his way back from a death's-edge illness due to rigorous combat service, has been made head of the Army's crack intelligence school at Fort Riley. Koch was Patton's intelligence chief from Africa to VE-Day.

Soong Millions

Stormy petrel in the stormy and complex Chinese problem is T. V. Soong, United States-educated brother of Mme. Chiang Kai-shek. A key figure in the Nationalist regime, Soong has long been the subject of bitter controversy both in United States and Chinese quarters.

Currently, Soong is very active behind the scenes in the Nationalist pressure-drive to wangle a two-billion-dollar loan from the United States.

A significant commentary on Soong, and on conditions in China, comes from Gardner Cowles, able, plain-talking publisher of the Des Moines Register-Tribune newspapers, who recently returned from China. This is Cowles' story:

"China is filled with gossip. A favorite subject is speculation about the alleged growing wealth of the Soong family. At a dinner party in Shanghai, an irate critic of the present government said to me, 'China will never find herself until she gets rid of the Soong family. Why, they have more than a billion dollars in their personal accounts in Washington, London and Amsterdam banks.'

"When he walked away a moment later, a high official of the Central Bank of China said to me: 'Don't believe such foolishness. The Soongs don't have more than 100 million dollars on deposit.'"

One on the Aisle—

Someone Should Fry

Hero Only Saves Girl, Not Movie

By Richard L. Coe

POSSIBLY A SUICIDE on his way to Taft Bridge might get some pleasure out of "Slave Girl" at Keith's.

This is one of those Technicolor adventure yarns which Universal tosses off for Yvonne De Carlo, box office results and critical yawns. After they'd seen the finished product of this one, though, the boys recognized that it was even worse than their usual triumphs.

So they inserted a few scenes of a talking camel (Brooklyn accent) and palmed it off as a "comedy." As a spectacle it has all the garish mesailliance of colors you find on nickel postcards and as a comedy it is as forced as Senator Brewster's newsreel smile.

To make it harder to swallow, there are the usual tiresome plugs about what a great country the United States was, even back in the 1800's when this alleged "legend" is said to have taken place.

George Brent plays a Senator's nephew who is sent from Washington with a chest of gold to rescue 10 Americans from the Barbary pirates. He gets involved with the favorite of the Pasha of Tripoli, who is herself implicated in an uprising against the Pasha. The poor Pasha is understandably about to toast this conniving female over an indoor barbecue when you know what happens.

All the players act as if they're expecting the five o'clock whistle to blow any minute, but you can hardly blame them, for there's nothing they can do except what they've been doing in stuff like this since the dawn of cinema here.

Miss De Carlo, looking as fetching as ever, does little more than wiggle through her part. Brent couldn't look more bored, and a pretty little wench, played by Lois Collier, struggles hard to seem piquant and fresh. But she hasn't got a chance.

There probably are some laughs in this one, as our neighbors' chuckles suggested, but fit as we felt yesterday afternoon, we couldn't crack a smile. Also on the bill is a Leon Errol comedy, "Wife Tames Wolf," which we found laughable enough. The newsreel is strong on the Hughes investigation mess, though whether you can make yourself sit through "Slave Girl" for this public travesty by the United State Senate is up to you.

As for "Slave Girl," include us out.

"SLAVE GIRL." Universal-International Technicolor release produced by Michael Fessier and Ernest Pagano, writers of the screenplay. Directed by Charles Lamont. At Keith's Theater.

OUT AT OLNEY, Freddie Bartholomew is ignoring three broken ribs to give a forthright performance of the dour Scot in John Patrick's "The Hasty Heart" . . . Freddie, who'll have to find some way of calling himself Fred, Frederick or just F., now that he bears not the slightest resemblance to Little Lord Fauntleroy, broke the ribs in Maine Saturday night . . . He got taped up in New York on the way down, but missed his plane and early rehearsals with the Olney cast . . . Bartholomew at 24 is tall, slim and doesn't look much like the youngster you may recall from all those films . . . Natch . . . The best feature of his performance is his accent, which is usually first rate, though once in a while a curious Americanism creeps in . . . The Burma hospital still provides an entertaining setting for a night in the country.

FOUR OPENINGS today, posing something of a problem, since we wouldn't miss a Marx Brother on the screen, even if it's only one. Today's is Grocho and he's with Carmen Miranda in the Capitol's "Copacabana," with Luba Malina on stage . . . And who'd want to miss Bing Crosby and Barry Fitzgerald in their successor to "Going My Way?" . . . This one's "Welcome Stranger" at the Earle . . . The other two are "The Fabulous Dorseys" at the Columbia and "The Corpse Came C. O. D.," at the Metropolitan.

TODAY IN MAINE is "Life with Father" Day . . . Which means that the film version of that happy play will be opening at Showhegan's Lakewood Theater, which was the scene of the play's tryout eight years ago . . . Gov. Horace A. Hildreth has proclaimed the day one of rejoicing, with broadcasts, newsreels and the premiere of the film in the evening.

FROM CHICAGO comes winnowed words of Tallulah Bankhead in "Private Lives" . . . Tallulah's been having a high old time with this one, ad libbing lines to her heart's content . . . Now Author Noel Coward is in from Britain and Chicago's wondering how Noel's going to react to the embellishments Tallulah's been tacking on his play . . . We'll bet Tallulah leaves them in for his benefit and that he'll love 'em.

Court Warned Bulgar Will Judge Petkov

Sofia, Bulgaria, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—Defense attorneys in the conspiracy trial of opposition leader Nikola Petkov warned the court today that the people and not the court must decide whether "opposition to the government is right or wrong."

"You must keep in mind that this will be a political verdict and your verdict should be an act of supreme justice," Nikola Bronzov told the jury in the defense's final summation.

Bronzov, a close friend of Petkov and himself a member of Petkov's opposition Agrarian Party, denounced the testimony of Petkov's four co-defendants—all of whom pleaded guilty and accused Petkov of involving them in a conspiracy to overthrow the government.

"They probably did conspire and now they seek to hide in the shade of Petkov," Bronzov charged.

Second defense counsel, Yordan Kovachev, an Agrarian deputy, said that no evidence had proven that Petkov's newspaper criticisms of the government had incited plotters against the (Communist-dominated) fatherland front regime.

"Criticism of the government by newspapers is criticism by a legal means," he said.

Aunt's Will Bars Nephew if He's A Communist

London, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—The Communist theory of "share the wealth" will backfire on Kenneth Knowles should he ever decide to become a member of that party.

His late aunt, Miss Margaret May Knowles of Henfield, Sussex, left £10,000 ($40,000) in trust for Kenneth, "so long as he shall not have adopted or shall not hereafter adopt communistic principles."

Friends of Kenneth, who is a professor in an Oxford school not attached to the university, said his aunt "feared some years ago that her nephew had communistic leanings."

"The professor is by no means a Communist," the friends added.

Radio Moscow Assails U. S. 2-Party System

London, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—Radio Moscow today denounced the American two-party system as "anti-democratic," and recommended the establishment of a third American political party for the 1948 elections.

In a long analysis of American two-party government, Radio Moscow said the system played into the hands of Wall Street, which is thus able to "gain full control of the entire civic and political life of the United States."

Pilot Victim of Alexandria Plane Crash Believed Killed by Tail While Bailing Out

WRECKAGE NEAR ALEXANDRIA—Wreckage of an Army P-51 Mustang fighter plane lies in a field near Alexandria, Va., where it crashed Tuesday night. The body of the pilot, Maj. Frank W. Hess, 30, of Palo Alto, Calif., and his unopened parachute were found about two miles away

The pilot of a P-51 fighter plane that crashed 3 miles south of Alexandria Tuesday night, apparently was killed when hit by the tail section as he bailed out, it was reported from Andrews Field yesterday.

The body of the pilot, Maj. Frank W. Hess, 30, Palo Alto, Calif., was found about two miles from the scene. Army authorities said that, contrary to first reports, Hess' parachute was found to have opened.

The top of the 'chute was covered with oil, leading to the conjecture that it had become entangled with part of the plane. Hess' neck was broken, and investigators arrived at the conclusion he was dead when he struck the ground.

The plane was en route from Memphis, Tenn., to Andrews Field. Another P-51 was on the same flight—piloted by a man identified only as Capt. Kramer. Authorities said both planes had run short of fuel as a result of bad weather.

In the meantime, officials at Grenier Army Airfield in New Hampshire made public the names of four men who met death in the collision of an A-26 bomber with an advanced trainer over Manchester, N. H., Tuesday night. The bomber was being flown from Andrews Field.

Those killed were: Capt. John Stern, 26, pilot, of Nobleville, Ind.; T/Sergt. Everett W. Hughes, 35, Derry, N. H.; Sergt. Joseph A. Ramasocky, 21, of Toledo, Ohio, and Maj. Currie B. Harris, Oklahoma City, Okla., pilot of the training plane.

Chiang Reveals Economy Plan Invites Foreign Investments

Nanking, Aug. 13 (A.P.).—China announced plans today to repair her economy, shattered by inflation and civil war, and simultaneously renewed her invitation for foreign investments.

Informed sources said Chiang Kai-shek personally had ordered the preparation of stringent economic restrictions, including measures designed to safeguard material resources for government armies fighting the Communists.

They reported the measures would be patterned after Britain's World War II restrictions except that rationing of essentials at the consumer level was not contemplated immediately.

Instead, the government will adopt a permit system for the distribution of gasoline, cotton cloth, machine oils and other important products with a substantial portion earmarked for the armies. The program would be handled through a national economic council.

One of the first developments was expected to be a nation-wide ban on cabarets and public dancing places, with such closings scheduled to be started soon in Shanghai. Mayor K. C. Wu of Shanghai has been sent instructions to restrict places of entertainment, which will add to the city's unemployment problem.

In a second economic move, the government's information director, Hollington Tong, told a press conference that China plans to resume payments on prewar loans on which installments were halted in 1939.

"In no way does the conclusion of new loans in recent years prejudice the security of those prewar loans," Tong said.

Coincidentally, Premier Chang Chun reiterated government statements that China would welcome foreign investments. In a written statement, the premier said all fields except those specifically reserved for operation by the state—arsenals, mints, main railroads and hydro power plants, for instance—welcomed foreign capital on the same level as Chinese investors.

Reds Cut Railroad

Nanking, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—Semi-official dispatches said today that 30,000 Communist troops attacking in Honan Province had cut the vital cross-country Lunghai Railroad, capturing the Manchuan Railway station, 125 miles west of Tungshan.

Army Polar Fliers End Alaska-Texas Hop

Fort Worth, Tex., Aug. 13 (A.P.).—With the frosty atmosphere of the North Polar region still fresh in their memory, pilots and crews of 16 B-29s of the Eighth Air Force landed this morning at Fort Worth Army air field, completing a flight from Anchorage, Alaska, in 11 hours and 30 minutes. The B-29s were commanded by Col. Alan D. Clark.

The group flew 48 missions, or a total of 700 hours, while in the polar region, and executed 16 sorties over the North Polar cap. Lieut. Col. James H. Thompson, group operations officer, said that he flew within 50 feet of the water at the North Pole, with the temperature at freezing.

President to See Press This Morning

The White House announced yesterday that President Truman will hold a news conference at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said that no special announcements are in prospect.

Polio Fatal to 9

Tokyo, Aug. 13 (A.P.).—Nine occupation personnel in Japan and Korea have died of poliomyelitis since June 1, the Surgeon General's office of the Far East command announced today. Seventy-four cases have been reported, 56 in Japan resulting in seven deaths and 18 in Korea resulting in two deaths.

Pocket Sliced, He Snoozes On

Chester S. Lambert of 1110 O st. nw., was snoozing soundly on a Franklin Park bench Tuesday morning when Pvt. N. L. Prencipe made his rounds. But on the ground beneath him was another man, busily slicing away at Lambert's rear pants' pocket, according to the policeman.

Prencipe told Municipal Court Judge George D. Neilson yesterday that he watched the second man extract Lambert's wallet. Then Prencipe moved in for the arrest, stopping the suspect from further flight with two shots overhead.

Judge Neilson sentenced the pants slicer, James Riley, 22, of no fixed address, to six months imprisonment and $200 fine or an additional six months in jail on the petty larceny charge.

Lambert's wallet, with $1 and cards, was returned to him. He explained he went to the park to sleep because his room was too hot. He slept through the incident.

Fehr to Replace Meade as Head Of Boys Clubs

Walter F. Fehr, Greenbelt, has been named executive director of the Prince Georges County Boys' Clubs replacing James G. Meade, who has held the post for the past five months.

This was announced yesterday by Louis B. Arnold, club president, after Meade had tendered his resignation to accept an appointment to the physical education department of the University of Maryland.

Meade

Fehr

Fehr, an outstanding lineman on last year's Maryland football team, began his duties yesterday. He and Meade will work together until the latter's resignation becomes effective August 15.

Meade will assume his new duties on September 1. At the university he is expected to assist in coaching football and lacrosse. He starred in both sports there and later coached lacrosse at Lehigh University and played professional football with the Washington Redskins. During the war he was a paratroop captain in the Pacific Theater.

Fehr is also a veteran, serving as a sergeant in the Army Air Forces. While in the service he played football with the 3rd AAF team. He was elected president of the Student Government Association at Maryland last spring and will continue studies there toward a degree in physical education this fall.

Cyclist, 9, Hurt By Auto; Driver Freed Under Bond

A 9-year-old District Heights, Md., boy was seriously injured when he was struck by an automobile yesterday afternoon while riding a bicycle inear his home.

Dennis

The boy, Dennis Donaldson, 213 Washington blvd., was struck by a car driven, police said, by Sylva V. Dove, 20, Route 2, Fairfax, Va., at Avenue F and County rd., District Heights.

He was taken to the hospital by the District Heights Rescue Squad where his injuries were said to be a possible fractured skull, possible fractured left arm, possible fractured left leg, multiple abrasions and concussion.

Dove was charged with reckless driving by Prince Georges County police and released under $100 bond. No date was set for a hearing.

Emmet Gresham Honored

Emmet Gresham, son-in-law of Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, Chief of Army Air Forces, has been elected president of the Duke University Bar Association, it was announced yesterday.

Licenses Given 412 in D. C. To Collect Md. Sales Tax

Four hundred and twelve Washington merchants have taken out licenses to collect the Maryland sales and use tax, James J. Lacy, State comptroller and administrator of the tax, announced yesterday in Baltimore.

He said that at the close of business yesterday a total of 43,735 licenses had been issued. Requests have been averaging a hundred a day for the past several weeks, he said.

The announcement came as retailers began their first monthly accounting under the law that is expected to bring the State an annual revenue of $17,325,000.

On the basis of the first 5800 returns received at the comptroller's office, the State may collect some six million dollars more than the estimate, it was revealed.

These early returns, averaging $45, brought a collection of $260,000. If the average keeps up the State will collect about $23,297,000 by July 1. Spokesman for businessmen have predicted that the tax may bring more than 25 million dollars the first year.

Included in the first returns were a few collections of more than $1000, a member of Lacy's staff said. Many large retailers, though, have yet to be heard from.

To assist businessmen in making their July returns before the August 15 deadline 15 auditors at the retail sales tax division office, 15 W. Baltimore st., Baltimore, have been relieved of other duties, Lacy announced. Office hours Friday, deadline for returns, have been extended from 4:30 p. m. to 7 p. m., he said.

Lacy reminded retailers not to send their collections in the form of stamps and suggested they send checks or money orders instead of cash. The collection division will accept money, but will assume no responsibility for losses in the mails, Lacy said.

Middies to Get Week's Submarine Training

The Navy announced today it is sending 10 submarines of the Atlantic Fleet on a week's training cruise with midshipmen of the Naval Academy.

The submarines, which are based at New London, Con., will arrive at Norfolk, Va., Saturday and take aboard midshipmen who are now on their annual summer cruise.

Md. Vote Sift Leafes 36,000

Baltimore, Aug. 13 (AP).—Senator Jenner (R., Ind.), chairman of the Senate subcommittee on privileges and elections, announced today that the preliminary review of ballots cast i nthe O'Conor-Markey Senatorial election has been completed.

Counsel for Senator O'Conor (D., Md.) and Republican D. John Markey, who is contesting his election, will pass upon about 36,000 ballots to reduce this number before the Senate body meets again, Jenner said.

O'Conor took the Senate seat after the official canvass of last fall's returns showed him the winner by 2232 votes.

Approximately 190,000 ballots have been sifted through, from votes cast in 17 counties.

Francis J. Kelly, chief investigator of the subcommittee, said it will meet again "sometime after September 1 to complete the mechanics of reviewing challenged ballots."

Brooklyn Hikes Edge Over Idle Cards

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

BOSTON, Aug. 13.—That demonstration by Boston fans the other day when they took dead aim on Umpire Joe Rue with seat cushions, beer cans, rolled newspapers and anything handy was a rare outburst of plain orneriness in Boston. For years, local fandom was the best behaved in the American League.

POVICH

Boston fans didn't become rabid until a few years ago when the Red Sox started finishing second with some regularity and the town began to visualize the pennant that finally came last season. When the Red Sox were hopelessly in the ruck through the 1920s and frustrated, too, for the next decade, and resigned Boston fans got their thrill out of watching the stars of visiting teams, Boston fans were wonderfully polite.

A taste of the first division changed all that, however. Now the Fenway Park customers had something to root for, and they went all out for their Red Sox, right or wrong. Staid old Boston went on the muscle. Visiting clubs were booed, the umpires began to catch it from the stands, and the Hub became a vociferous baseball community. At this point, Boston rooters are no worse than those of other cities, and they're still better behaved than the fans in most towns.

DOWN THROUGH the years, it has been in New York that the visiting clubs and the umpires have gotten the fairest shake from the fans. New York fans are free with their applause for the team that can beat the Yankees and on occasion it is hard to tell from the reaction in the stands which is the home club. That may be due to the fact that Yankee ball games draw largely from the visitors to the city who have no allegiance to the New York club.

Washington qualifies as the second town in the league in that respect. The Nats have their rabid fans, but because of the cosmopolitan fabric of Washington's population, every team that comes to Griffith Stadium is assured of rooters from the home town, or close to it. And because of the influx to Washington from all over the Nation, the native Washington fan is often out numbered.

Philadelphia's fandom has not demonstrated wildly in favor of the Athletics for several years now. The A's are passing through the same stage that discouraged Boston fans in the lean days. But when the A's had their three pennant winners in 1929-30-31., their customers were a noisy, obstreperous lot, and they will be again when the club brews a pennant factor.

BROOKLYN, of course, is tops in pure, undivided loyalty to the Dodgers, and to hell with the visiting club, especially the Giants. The Brooklyn fan can get disgusted with the Dodgers, but only momentarily, as was noted one day when a sport-shirted customer watched Dolf Camilli called out on strikes.

"Them Bums can't make no hits with them bats on them shoulders," the fan commented to his neighbor. And then as Camilli walked past him ot the dug-out, he yelled, "atta boy, Dolf, them umpires are bums."

Dinty Moore, jr., son of the restaurant man, knows about Brooklyn fans from first-hand experience. Moore, a confirmed Giant rooter, was watching the Giants play at Ebbetts Field one day, and feeling languid for the moment stood up in his seat to take a stretch. A Brooklyn hand reached over and clipped him on the chin knocking him down.

It was only after the ensuing scuffle that Moore realized his mistake. "How should I know, he said, "that it was the Giants' half of the seventh when I decided to take a stretch."

THERE IS NO truth to the report that the Cleveland fans are carnivorous to the point of eating their young, but they are a wild sort. Only in Cleveland is a visiting pitcher, booed, for instance, before he throws his first pitch. That may be a sign of fierce loyalty to the Indians, but it's not conclusive because Cleveland fans are as apt to turn on the Indian manager for any doubtful strategy, especially when it doesn't work.

Even Bob Feller was booed in Cleveland this year for the first time in his career. His crime was failure to pitch a winning game. Detroit fans aren't too harsh on the visiting club but they can get very tough with their own heroes on occasion. Hank Greenberg and Rudy York, when they were with the Tigers, weren't spared when they didn't hit homers at a time the fans wanted to see some.

The Chicago fans go down the line for their White Sox, but they give a hand too, to the visiting club on a nice play, and Sox players are probably booed less than any others in their home town.

In St. Louis where the crowds aren't big, you have perhaps the most loyal roters of all. The few customers who do turn out, are there to win or die with the Brownies.

Bums Blast Braves, 10-5; Lead by 3½

Brooklyn, Aug. 13 (AP).—Brooklyn stretched its National League lead to three and one-half games over the idle St. Louis Cardinals today by combining 10 hits with four Boston errors for a 10-5 victory over the Braves.

The Dodgers, breaking out of a hitting slump, knocked Johnny Sain, the Braves' ace, out of the box in a four-run first inning, highlighted by Bruce Edward's two-run double.

Harry Taylor, who had yielded a run in the first on Pee Wee Reese's error and Bob Elliott's single, was belted off the hill in the fifth when the Braves went out front on a four-run spree.

Bamo Rowell's three-run homer tied the score and Elliott's long clout into the left-field seats made it 5-4.

Manager Burt Shotton called on Clyde King, who blanked the Braves the rest of the way picking up his third win when the Brooks rallied for five runs in their half of the fifth. Si Johnson, the third of six Boston pitchers, was charged with the loss.

Two errors by Shortstop, Nanny Fernandez, one by Rowell, and a single by Carl Furillo with the bases loaded were the important factors in the Dodgers' big inning.

Bucs' Four Homers Swamp Cubs, 10-2

Pittsburgh, Aug. 13 (AP).—Four home runs sparked the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 10-2 win over the Chicago Cubs today before a sparse crowd of 5111.

Pirate Catcher Dixie Howell belted two of the circuit blows—his first and second of the season—to drive in six of the runs. Ralph Kiner's 29th round-tripper also was the 100th homer of the season for the Bucs. Billy Cox joined the home run parade with his ninth of the season.

Doubles by Bob Scheffing and Phil Cavaretta accounted for Chicago's two markers.

Mel Queen was the winning pitcher, but he gave way to Ernie Bonham after pitching seven innings because of the sweltering heat. Paul Erickson, the losing pitcher, gave way to a pinch-hitter in the fourth, with Claude Passeau and Bob Carpenter finishing.

Isbell Wants Colts to Be Fighting Team

Hershey, Pa., Aug. 13 (AP).—Ruddy-faced Cecil Isbell will be perfectly satisfied with his Baltimore Colts this year "if they look as though they want to play football" but "of course if they win a few, so much the better."

"We have no illusions about a championship our first year in the All-America Conference," the former Purdue University coach said as he directed Baltimore's entry in a pre-season training session here.

"Everybody expects us to whip together a team that will be in there fighting all the time," he said.

The former Green Bay Packers passing ace is counting on a combination of youth and experience to keep the Colts moving at a frisky pace.

Among the "rookies" who are getting their first taste of pro football are such headliners as Weldon Humble, 1946 All-America guard from Rice University; Hubert Bechtol, twice All-America end from Texas University; Barry "Bear" French, who played under Isbell at Purdue; and Little "Doc" Mobley of Hardin-Simmons, who last year set an all-time record for ground gaining when he ripped off nearly 1200 yards from scrimmage.

Isbell has plenty of experienced fullbacks, headed by Jim Castiglia, formerly with the Philadelphia Eagles, and Lloyd Reece, who gained his spurs with the Chicago Bears.

Bill Hillenbrand, who helped put Indiana on the football map, Mobley, and John Vardian, last year with the AAC's Miami Seahawks, are seeking the left halfback berth. Ray Terrell and Bus Mertes, both with pro experience, aspire to the right halfback slot.

There is a merry battle on for the quarterback post with Ernie Case, former U.C.L.A. captain having a slight edge. But Isbell recently brought into camp Jim Galvin, who directed one of his teams at Indiana, and only this week Jimmy Richardson of Marquette joined the squad.

Isbell has a deal pending with one of the National League clubs for an experienced center, but if the deal fails he will select his pivot man from Basil Petry, of Indiana; Pat Martinelli, of Scranton University; or Mike Philips of Western Maryland.

The Colts are strongest at end, where Lamar Davis of Georgia, Gorham Getchell of Temple, Ralph Jones of Alabama, Gilbert Meyers of Wake Forest and Bechtol are battling for the starting posts.

The veteran John Mellus, former Villanova captain, and "Mitch" Olenski of Alabama are leading candidates for tackle posts. And several husky gentlemen are making efforts to keep Humble and French out of the guard positions.

Ike Williams, Montgomery To Meet Again

New York, Aug. 13 (AP).—Ike Williams' first defense of his new world undisputed lightweight championship will be against the man he knocked out to win the title, and who incidentally holds a knockout victory over him.

He will meet Bob Montgomery at Madison Square Garden January 16 in a 15-round bout. A week ago he knocked out Montgomery, recognized in New York and Pennsylvania as champion, in the sixth round of the bouth which finally clarified the lightweight situation. Williams had been recognized by the N. B. A.

In 1944, when neither man held a title they met in a 12-round bout at Madison Square Garden, and Montgomery won by a knockout in the final minute of the final round.

The January bout was agreed upon today at a meeting at the Twentieth Century Sporting Club offices at which Williams was not present. He was represented by his manager, however, and the papers will be signed before the New York Athletic Commission withi nthe next couple of weeks. Williams currently is on a tour in behalf of the campaign to combat juvenile delinquency.

Montgomery, in fighting in the Garden, will be returning to the ring in which he won the New York version of the title by defeating Beau Jack, and also the ring in which he suffered a 63-second knockout. That was at the hands of the late Bummy Davis just two weeks before he defeated Jack for the title.

Nats Rocked Again, 10 to 3, by Red Sox

Boston, Aug. 13.—The first Boston batter slammed a home run as an indicator of things to come and the Red Sox loped to a 10-3 victory over the Washington Nats here tonight. There was small doubt of the outcome after the first inning and 34,451 customers sat back to watch the home team win easily with superfluous runs in thethird and seventh innings.

Candini was ushered into his figrst starting assignment with a home run by Sam Mele and was ushered out on a home run by Murrell Jones one-third of an inning later, after the Red Sox had accumulated five runs, including another homer by Bobby Doerr.

What a Reception

Candini was no sensation in his brief appearance. Mele greeted him with a home run over the left field wall and Johnny Pesky beat out an infield hit, stole second, continued to third on Frank Mancuso's wild throw into center, and was balked home by Candini after Shortstop Mark Christman three out Dom DiMaggio.

Williams lined a single to right and Doerr blasted a home run over the center field wall. Jones then rammed a homer over the left field fence and Marino Pieretti came in to retire Birdie Tebbetts and Sam Dente.

Pieretti yielded two more runs and a 7-0 lead to the Red Sox in the third. With one out Williams doubled off the left-field fence and Doerr walked. Jones slashed a single off Travis' glove at third, but Christman retrieved the ball in time to nip Williams attempting to score. Tebbetts' double to left scored Doerr and Jones.

Hughson Stingy

Meanwhile Tex Hughson was having no trouble with the Nats. Buddy Lewis was the only Nat to reach first base in the first three innings when he doubled in the first inning.

That 7-0 status existed at the end of the sixth inning, too, with Pieretti bracing to check the Red Sox. Hughson was permitting the Nats no liberties, allowing only one Nat to reach third base.

Christman singled to open the fifth for the second hit off Hughson, but Priddy watched a third strike and Mancuso drilled into aa double-play. With one out in the sixth Grace singled to center and so did Lewis, sending Grace to third, but Spence struck out and Vernon forced Lewis.

Boston lifted its advantage to 10-0 in the seventh after Hughson had retired Travis, Christman and Priddy in order. After Doerr beat out a tap to Travis, Jones boomed his second homer over the left field wall, a mighty blast over the screen and Boston's fourth of the game.

A walk to Tebbetts and single by Dente and Mele filled the bases and Boston scored its third run of the inning when Tebbetts raced home after Pesky filed to Spence.

The Nats stirred up three runs with two out in the eighth. With one out, Sherry Robertson batted for Pieretti and beat out a bunt down the third base line. Grace's liner popped out of Jones' glove for an error, and after Lewis popped out, Spence singled to center, scoring Robertson. When DiMaggio fumbled the ball, Grace shifted to third and Spence to second. Both scored when Vernon doubled to left. Travis then fanned.

Boston filled the bases with one out against Scott Cary in the ninth on Williams' single, a walk to Doerr and Tebetts' single, but Travis scooped up Dente's grouder and converted it into a double play via Priddy and Vernon.

Raschi Flips 6th Straight Win for Yanks

New York, Aug. 13 (AP).—Jolting Joe DiMaggio joined ailing Tommy Henrich on the bench today, but Rookies Yogi Berra and Al Clark took up the slack to pace the American League-leading New York Yankees to an 8-2 triumph over Philadelphia's Athletics.

The two recruits got three of the Yank's 10 hits off a quartet of Philadelphia pitchers and drove in six runs between them to make it easy for another first-year man, Vic Raschi, to hang up his sixth victory without defeat in the majors this season. Clark sent home four tallies and Berra two.

Raschi gave up seven hits, including three to Barney McCosky. McCosky broke the ice for the A's in the eighth with a homer and the visitors made their final tally in the ninth on Buddy Rosar's double and Hank Majeski's single.

The Yanks routed 20-year-old Carl Scheib in the second inning after scoring three runs in the opening frame on one hit. After Berra tripled to left for the first two markers, Yogi scored the third run on Clark's ground out.

Four straight hits in the second frame knocked out Scheib and brought in Russ Christopher, who was whacked for three more safeties. The Yanks batted around in the inning for six hits, four runs and the ball game.

DiMaggio, who had just recovered from a sore neck, was sidelined by soreness in the heel on which he was operated on last spring. Henrich has a sprained right ankle.

Today's crowd of 16,454 brought the Yanks' home attendance to 1,705,227.

Braves' Special Includes Meal, Cab, Seat at $4.50

Boston, Aug. 13 (AP).—The Boston Braves, who have extended themselves to please their customers, now have come up with a "Baseball Dinner Special" for night games.

For one price ($4.50) a fan now can have dinner at a leading hotel (Somerset), ride a cab to the ball park, see the game from a reserved seat and cab back to the hotel.

The plan, effective Saturday night when they entertain the New York Giants, will continue through the rest of the season. It also may be conducted this fall for Boston College night football games.

A phone call to the hotel will assure a fan of all ingredients, meal, cab, tickets for the game.

Tigers Clout Browns, 7-1

St. Louis, Aug. 13 (AP).—Two ninth-inning singles spoiled Fred Hutchinson's shutout but the Detroit Tigers coasted to an otherwise easy victory over the St. Louis Browns—7 to 1—in the "twilight" first game of a night double header tonight. Huchinson doubled once and hit two singles and Dick Wakefield batted in to men with a triple to lead the Tiger hitting.

Filchock Signs To Play Rugby

Hamilton, Out., Aug. 13 (AP).—Frank Filchock, pro football star with the New York Giants until his suspension last fall, tonight signed a contract with the Hamilton Tigers of the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union.

Filchock participated in limbering exercises following the signing. Asked how he felt about playing with a 12-man team in a circuit which allows five backfield men in action simultaneously and but three attempts for a first down, Filchock replied:

"I don't know yet. . I don't know anything about it."

The league is understood to be ready to nullify any contract signed by Filchock, but in this case the Tigers were ready to submit the matter to the Canadian Rugby Union.

Rocky Graziano To Appear Here In Exhibition

Marshall Elated, Coaches Displeased at 'Skins Showing

Los Angeles, Aug. 13.—There were mingled emotions of disappointment and satisfaction in the training camp at Occidental College today over the showing of the Washington Redskins in their first scrimmage of the season.

President George Preston Marshall was highly pleased and most of the players thought they did much better than in their first scuffle here a year ago.

But Coach Turk Edwards and his staff professed to take a dim view of the whole thing. Their opinion was that the team looked excellent on defense but that its offense was ragged around the edges.

Injuries Slight

With the exception of a few bruises and sprains here and there, the team came through in good condition and went right back to its work to perfect the attack for the opening game at Memorial Coliseum on the night of September 5, against the Los Angeles Rams.

"I thought we were much better than we were in first scrimmage last year," said Marshall and this was echoed by some of the players who recall that they were "practically running over each other" in 1946. Certainly this wasn't the case Tuesday.

"We made too many mistakes," said Edwards.

Out of the scrimmage came these constructive facts:

The Report

1. Former Ram players Tommy Farmer, Jim Gillette and Ralph Ruthstrom will be very much in evidence against their old teammates on September 5. All three looked good.

2. Sammy Baugh and Dick Todd still are capable of going all out.

3. Baugh will not want for capable receivers this year with Jim Peebles, Hugh Taylor, Todd and Dick Poillon standouts.

4. Eddie Saenz, Todd, Bob Nussbaumer, Poillon, Gillette and Farmer are going to give the 'Skins a much better running attack to go with the passing of Baugh and Jim Youel.

5. The Redskins will be strengthened considerably in the line with rookie tackles like Fred Boensch, Cliff White and Ernie Williamson; and guards like Leo Nobile and Henry Harris.

Navy Has 3 Dozen Coaches For Huge Football Program

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 13 (AP).—Navy's football practice fields this fall will have as many coaches running around as some small colleges have players.

This was indicated as Capt. Tom Hamilton, director of football at the Naval Academy, announced the members of staffs to handle the football program.

The varsity, junior varsity, plebe and 150-pound teams will have 19 coaches, and another dozen will direct inter-battalion gridders.

Hamilton said he anticipated some 1500 midshipmen trying for spots on various teams.

The varsity coaching staff consists of Hamilton as chief; E. E. (Rip) Miller, line; Edward J. Erdelatz, end; Robert C. McNiesh and John N. Wilson, back, and center, Marine Maj. Harold A. Harwood.

Coach Moves Up

Weekend Meet Up To Owners

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 13.—Whether there will be racing here Friday and Saturday is now strictly up to the horsemen, for Hagerstown Fair Association, following a special meeting late today, stated that there will be no increase in purse money over the original condition book, which calls for $1000 minimum and a $1500 feature on Saturday, closing day of the meeting.

The race secretary's office will be opened early tomorrow morning to accept entries, but if the horsemen fail to fill either Friday or Saturday's cards, the host organization will immediately call off the sport.

Some horsemen say they are well satisfied with the $1000 minimum and will file entries for both Friday and Saturday's program. Whether enough entries will be filed to enable the host organization to stage eight races during its final two days only time will tell.

President Clifton W. White of the Cumberland Fair Association, whose 10-days' meeting opens Tuesday, was a visitor today. His organization has been handed a similar ultimatum by the horsemen's Benevolent Protective Association, but like the men handling racing here, stated that there will be no increase over the $1000 minimum during his session.

Pinkney Cross' Cutty Steel opened today's racing with an easy six and one half furlong victory to pay $13. The place went to Glenn Gardner's Gay Array, with J. H. Whiteley's Fair Date third.

The second race saw C. Cameron's Globe Trotter win in 1:06 to pay $21. L. O. McLaughlin's Outlet and S. J. Flammia's Pandoramint divided the rest of the purse. A payoff of $105.40 was hung up when the 5-4 daily double combination of Cutty Steel and Globe Trotter clicked.

Athletics Acquire Virginia Southpaw

Winchester, Va., Aug. 13.—John Brennan, scout for the Philadelphia Athletics, said here today that Julian Harrison of Broadway, a pitcher, was signed at a baseball school conducted last week at Strasburg. A similar school is being held Thursday and Friday of this week in Martinsburg, he said.

Harrison, 23, a left-hander, has been sent to Federalsburg, Md., in the Eastern Shore League.

Washington, Alexandria Legion Teams Win First Playoffs

D. C. Entry Wins From Morgantown

Parkersburg, W. Va., Aug. 13.—Washington, D. C., defeated Morgantown, W. Va., 4-2, here today in the opener of the Region Six American Legion Junior Baseball Tournament.

Washington was paced by Jack Spicer, 17-year-old Gonzaga High student, who rapped out a triple and a single in five trips. The other Washington extra-base hit came by way of Dave Zatz's triple.

The center spot in the Morgantown batting order did all the hitting with number three man Blaney getting tow hits and clean-up hitter Currin pounding out three base knocks in four trips.

Eddie Kline was seemingly safe going into the ninth inning owning a 4-1 lead. But the home boys loaded the bases and Harry Brightman was called in to put out the fire. The damage was limited to one run when Brightman forced the last Morgantown hopeful to line to first baseman Zatz for the game-ending out.

The winner of the Baltimore-Wilmington game here tomorrow will meet Washington here Friday to begin the second round play.

Alexandria Rallies To Top Memphis, 4-2

Kannapolis, N. C., Aug. 13.—The Virginia champs from Alexandria bounced from behind this afternoon to take the opening game of the 1947 American Legion regional tournament from Memphis, Tenn., 4-2. Two thousand fans sweltered in the hot sun to see the Virginians strike back to clinch the opener after trailing for three innings.

Memphis had scored two runs in the first, Jim McDonald and Bob Winfield coming home on Norman Ricci's single.

Alexandria rallied in the fourth, Jake Dohner singled, then scored when Gene Fleming hit into a double play. The Virginians scored again in the fifth, Groves crossing the plate on a wild pitch by Ray Crone.

The victory for Virginia was sealed in the sixth, Jim Gahagan scoring on another of Crone's wild pitches, and Bill Rorer coming in on Fleming's single.

Alexandria will meet the winner of the Kannapolis-Louisville scrap tonight, in the third contest Thursday night.

How to Play Tennis

By Don Leavens

This is the fourth of a series of articles by the District's leading tennis players in conjunction with the Washington Post-Recreation Department Tennis School.

THE BACKHAND

THE BACKHAND is a real offensive shot. It is no longer to be regarded as a means of merely putting the ball in play as it was 10 years ago. To win in modern tennis it is necessary to have a good backhand.

Get the racket back well before the ball arrives, so your swing will not be cramped and late. In the swing itself the racket should come through on a level plane and the "follow through" should be complete. Keep your racket arm straight so that you get the benefit of a full arm's leverage.

At the moment of impact be sure that your wrist is locked, or you will not have any control. Also you will get your full weight behind the ball if your wrist is firm.

AS MOST PLAYERS will shoot for your backhand when they want to advance to the net, you must know how to control the ball for passing shots down the line or across court. Don't watch your opponent and forget about the ball, or you will not connect squarely.

Keep him in the corner of your eye as he moves toward the net, but direct your main attention to the ball. Don't hurry your shot—take your time and stroke easily, trying to keep the ball low. A high shot is easier to kill.

Practice hitting your backhand deep, to within three feet of the baseline. Aim for the corners. You must learn to control the backhand or it will become a weakness your opponent will exploit.

Practice, and more practice, is necessary to develop a backhand that is an attacking shot. Don't be satisfied with just getting the ball back. Get it back swiftly and accurately and you will have another potent weapon in your arsenal.

Phillies Again Whip Giants

Philadelphia, Aug. 13 (AP).—The forlorn Philadelphia Phillies made it two in a row over the Giants by whacking four New York hurlers for 14 hits and a 5-2 victory.

Lefty Ken Heintzelman was the Philadelphia hero as he stopped the hard-hitting visitors with six hits. He needed help from Charley Schanz in the ninth, however, after Bobby Thomson belted his third homer of the year. Bill Rigney scored the New Yorkers' other tally with a homer—his sixteenth—in the second.

2 Sellouts Sure For Wm. & Mary

Williamsburg, Va., Aug. 13 (AP).—Despite the fact there will be approximately 6000 more available seats at Cary Field this football season than in previous years, officials of the athletic department of the College of William and Mary expect all tickets to the Indians' games with both North Carolina and Wake Forest to be sold by September 1.

The office of William S. Gooch, business manager of athletics, has been flooded with requests for ducats to these two contests and also to the home coming battle with Virginia Military Institute.

Large Cycle Entry

Philedalphia, Aug. 13 (AP).—Approximately 140 entries are expected for the 100-mile national championship motorcycle race to be held August 31 at the Langhorne speedway. Last year's event was won by Johnny Speiglehoff.

Lavish Program Scheduled Friday For Cecil Travis

Friday's Cecil Travis Night at Griffith Stadium will be one of the big occasions of the local baseball season judging by the lavish program announced yesterday by John S. Bartow, chairman of the committee on arrangements.

A half-hour before game time, 8 o'clock, the Washington Scottish Bagpipe Band opens festivities. Two pretty girls will dance the Highland Fling in the infield.

Following will be a procession around the field; featuring a float carrying Miss Washington of 1947, Peggy Wilson. At home plate the parade will be met by the two grand old men of baseball, Connie Mack and Clark Griffith, and numerous preesnts will be given Travis.

Fans have been asked to be in their seats sharply at 8, ready to show their appreciation for Cece's long and excellent service with the Nats.

Bee Bee to Go All Out Against Yarosz

Bee Bee Washington, the Foggy Bottom fighter, yesterday referred to next Monday night's 10-round rematch with Tommy Yarosz, Pittsburgh, at Griffith Stadium as a do-or-die stand in his drive for recognition among the Nation's top middleweights.

It was back in the fall of 1945 and the winter of 1946 that Washington catapulted himself into a fourth ranking in his division, and yesterday the unobtrusive Bee Bee said he was determined to fight his way back into that position.

The shortest cut to regaining his lost prestige could come with a victory over Yarosz, Trainer Billy Edwards, said yesterday as Two Bees whipped through a workout at the Northeast gym.

Edwards, in calling the Monday match the one that could "remake or break" Washington, said that Bee Bee is burning for another shot at Smuggy Hursey, confident he can win the "rubber" battle. Washington beat Smuggy last September at the Ball Park.

Meanwhile Bunny Buntag, manager of Yarosz, the third ranking lightheavyweight contender, announced from Pittsburgh yesterday that the youngster who has won his last 46 straight would arrive today. His first local workout will take place tomorrow at 2 p. m. at Turner's Arena. Washington also is slated for drills there.

Tickets for the show are on sale at Turner's Arena and Griffith Stadium, priced from $2.00 to $6.50.

Midget Crash Fatal

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 13 (AP).—Marvin (Shorty) Miller of Lansdale, Pa., midget auto driver, died today at 8:20 a. m. at DePaul Hospital without regaining consciousness after suffering head injuries in a crackup last night at Princess Anne Speedway.

Miller was taken to the hospital in an ambulance soon after his car clipped on the seventh lap of the opening 10-lap qualifying heat.

The accident occurred, a track official explained, when Miller "broadsided" the guard rail on the backstretch as he came out of the turn. The Pennsylvanian, the product of a midget driving school, was racing this year for the first time.

Branca, Karl Honored

Brooklyn, Aug. 13 (AP).—Mount Vernon, N. Y., fans presented gifts to two of its baseball citizens, Ralph Branca of the Dodgers and Anton Karl of the Braves, in a pregame ceremonies before today's contest at Ebbets Field between Brooklyn and Boston.

The players, both pitchers, were presented with $1000 bonds and other gifts.

Governor Dewey and his family looked on from a box adjacent to the Dodger dugout.

'Mr. Outside' Hurt

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 13 (AP).—Glenn Davis, former ace Army halfback, hurt his right knee in a pre-scrimmage warmup today and College All-Star team officials would not predict immediately how long it would keep "Mr. Outside" away from practice for the August 22 Chicago Bears—All-Star tilt.

The Claremont, Calif., Army shavetail, pulled the tendons around his knee cap when he pushed off to receive a forward pass while limbering up in Dyche Stadium.

Officials said it was the worst injury he had received in his career. Later in the day the knee became swollen but "not too badly."

Trippi Changes Sports

Atlanta, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—While a successful professional debut behind him, Charlie Trippi, former Georgia All-American halfback, packed his belongings tonight and prepared to join the College All-Stars before proceeding to the Chicago Cardinals of the National Football League.

Trippi, playing first base for the Atlanta Crackers of the Southern Association, hit .337 in his rookie year. His contract permitted him to quit the club August 15 to go with the Cardinals, but Cracker Manager Kiki Cuyler gave him permission to leave earlier.

In addition to signing with Atlanta, Trippi signed a four-year professional football contract with the Chicago Cardinals for $100,000.

Lew Worsham Among Top Challengers for $10,000 Prize Money

Portland, Oreg., Aug. 13 (AP).—Topped by Defending Champion Ben Hogan, most of the country's outstanding golf professionals set off here tomorrow in the first round of the third annual Portland Open Tournament.

The $10,000 prize money event shaped up today as a wide open scramble although Hogan, the "Little Mr. Big" of golf, possibly rated slight favoritism in view of his past performances on the scenic, stroke-exacting Portland club course.

He won the event here in 1945 with a sensational 261, a new PGA record score for a par-72 course and 27 shots under par for the four-round test.

Won PGA Title There

In winning last year's National PGA title over the same layout, Hogan came from behind to knock over Ed Oliver in the finals. The 35-37—72 par course apparently was made to order for his low trajectory shots.

Touring the course today with George Schneiter, P.G.A. tournament committee chairman, Hogan kept an eye out for suggestions on ways to toughen it up for the Ryder Cup matches set for November 1 and 2.

He said he was "off his game" but hoped to recover in this tournament.

The 140-pound Hershey, Pa., ball belter had every reason to get back on his stick. Among the top hands firing for first prize will be current P.G.A. Champion Jim Ferrier of San Francisco; U. S. Open title holder Lew Worsham, Washington, D. C., and such proven stars as Ed Furgol, Pontiac, Mich.; Johnny Palmer, Badin, N. C.; Gary Middlecoff, Memphis, Tenn.; Clayton Haefner, Charlotte, N. C.; Dick Metz, Chicago; Ellsworth Vines, Los Angeles; George Payton, Hampton, Va.; and Herman Keiser, Akron, Ohio.

Large Field to Compete

Keiser won the $10,000 open in Spokane last week in whcih Hogan, Furgol and Palmer tied for second.

The starting field of approximately 100 also numbered veteran campaigners George Schneiter, Ogden, Utah; Chuck Congdon, Tacoma, Wash.; Brothers Al and Emery Zimmerman, Ted Longworth and Harold West, Portland; Nill Nary, Phoenix, Ariz.; Neil Christian, Spokane; Newt Bassler, Carmel, Calif.; Ed Joseph, Mountain View, Calif.; Sherm Elworthy and Ed Vines, San Francisco.

Absentees among the big name pros are Oliver, Wilmington, Del., last year's PGA finalist here; former United States Open Kingpin Lloyd Mangrum; Jim Demaret, Toney Penna and Sam Snead, winner of the 1944 Portland Open.

The four-round tournament will conclude Sunday with the field cut to 60 low scorers and ties after the first 36 holes.

Novice Upsets Grace Lenszyk

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 13 (AP).—Marilyn Smith, a shiny-faced high school girl from Wichita, Kans., who is making her debut in top-flight tournament competition, today emerged as the "surprise package" of the Women's Western amateur golf championship.

The 18-year-old exploded into the quarter finals by eliminating touted Grace Lenczyk of Hartford, Conn., 2 and 1, in the first major upset.

Among those joining Miss Smith in tomorrow's quarter finals were the three medalists, defending champion Louise Suggs of Atlanta and Mary Agnes Wall of Menominee, Mich.

Miss Suggs had the easiest victory of today's second round. She crushed Mrs. Edie Bush of Detroit 5 and 4.

Comedalist Margaret Gunther decisioned Redhaired Shirley Spork of Detroit, 1 up.

Twenty-two-year-old Beverly Hanson of Fargo, N. Dak., turned aside Polly Riley of Fort Worth, Tex., 2 and 1 with a closing pair of birdies that kept her only one over par through 17 holes.

In another close match between two seasoned stars, Peggy Kirk of Findlay, Ohio, outlasted Dot Kirby of Atlanta, Ga., for a 1-up win.

Two Tie for Low Net in CBS Tourney

Mrs. M. W. Fillius of Kenwood and Mrs. Paulina Remey of Washington Golf and Country Club, wound up in a deadlock low top net honors yesterday in the Columbia Broadcasting System tournament at Chevy Chase, each with a 78 in the Class B affair.

An 18-hole playoff will be staged tomorrow at Chevy Chase at 9:45 a. m.

Mrs. Remey, with a gross 99 which was one stroke better than that of Mrs. Fillius, also was low in the gross department but elected to forfeit that honor in favor of a chance for the main net prize. Thus, Mrs. J. A. Brooks of Belle Haven and Mrs. Mildred Brown of Woodmont, shared gross honors with 101s.

Other net prizes went to Mrs. Lois Russell, Prince Georges, 105—26—79; Mrs. J. A. Gardner, Washington, 109—30—79; Mrs. Gus Dimberg, Washington, 110—30—80; Mrs. Ben Dyer, Prince Georges, 108—28—81; Mrs. John Gunn, Kenwood, 102—20—82; Mrs. Dallas Rand, Belle Haven, 105—23—82, and Mrs. Norman Brown, Prince Georges, 111—29—82.

Mrs. Kovacs Gains Essex Semifinals

Manchester, Mass., Aug. 13 (AP). Staggered quarter-finals and mid-90 temperatures slowed the pace of the Twentieth Annual Women's Tournament at the Essex County Club today but the race was swift enough to allow advances into semifinals for Mrs. Virginia Wolfender Kovacs of San Francisco and Betty Rosenquest of South Orange, N. J.

Mrs. Kovacs, third seeded, eliminated the top-seeded foreign threat, Mrs. Magda Rurz of Romania, 6—3; Miss Rosenquest, unseeded, pinned a 7—5, 9—7 defeat upon Mrs. Wilma Smith of Berkeley, Calif. Both of the other quarter-finals were postponed until Thursday.

THE HEART OF A GOOD COCKTAIL

An Undeniable Fact:
there's no gin like Gordon's
—because Gordon's has the advantage of LIQUEUR QUALITY and HIGH PROOF (94.4)

This is an advantage certainly worth having. For Liqueur Quality means richer flavor—velvety smoothness. And High Proof, 94.4 means sustained flavor—Martinis, Collinses and other gin drinks that never taste thin. For utmost quality and value—there's no gin like GORDON'S. Be sure to ask for it when ordering gin . . . by the bottle or the drink.

LAY-OFF: A flat 20 per cent slash is to be made in the staff of the Office of Rent Control. More than 1200 employes the country over will lose their jobs in the reduction.

Kluttz

Administrator Frank Creedon has ordered each office to get out 30-day dismissal notices to 20 per cent of the employes by this Friday.

In the Rent Control Office are 6029 employes. The reduction will knock out 1206 jobs to bring the staff down to 4823 as of September 15. In the headquarters office here there are only 122 employes. A reduction of 19 has been ordered.

It's reported that the enforcement branch will suffer the heaviest proportionate slash. In other words, it will become more difficult to get the office to check up on complaints of rent-gouging from now on.

Meantime, the Office of the Housing Expeditor, also headed by Creedon, is continuing to reduce staff. Some OHE functions are being merged with those in the rent office.

STORY: Edward Landry is a safety engineer for the Postoffice Department. His job is to prevent accidents among the 500,000 postal employes. He also investigates accidents and he tells the employes how they could have been prevented. But he had no solution for an accident that happened the other day. This is it:

A Los Angeles mail carrier was about to be attacked by a fierce looking dog. He saw what he thought was a stick lying in a yard. The carrier rushed over and picked it up. The "stick" turned out to be a lively black snake—and it bit him. The employe then ran faster than ever and he saved himself from another bite by outdistancing the dog.

FBI: The Federal Bureau of Investigation here is no longer accepting applications from jobhunters. Several thousand people here have filed applications with it in the last several weeks. The FBI personnel office is swamped. It has more than enough applications on file to fill its many new jobs.

The agency will hire about 1500 new people here to work on the President's Federal worker loyalty program. Most of the new employes will be clerks and typists to work in its fingerprint and name file divisions.

FHA: Changes at Federal Housing Administration:

Walter L. Greene has been promoted to first assistant commissioner. He will assist Commissioner Franklin D. Richards and act in his absence. M. R. Massey has been moved up to assistant commissioner for field operations, and Herbert C. Redman has been appointed commissioner for Zone 1.

The Finance and Industry Division has been abolished and the personnel in it have been transferred to the office of Assistant Commissioner Massey.

CIVIL SERVICE has begun to recruit between 1200 and 1400 additional employes to work on the President's loyalty program. However, not more than 500 of the new jobs will be in this city, considerably fewer than had been first planned.

Civil Service will give top priority for the jobs to laid-off career people and veterans. Some of its own laid-off employes also will be given a chance to return. All new Civil Service employes will be selected from Civil Service rolls. In its recruiting for the loyalty program, the FBI will hire direct. The FBI is one of the few agencies whose employes are outside Civil Service.

FDIC: Officials in this agency flatly deny reports that a new policy forbids the hiring of any new female employe who is more than 25 years old . . . RECLAMATION: It has loaned William E. Corfitzen to the State Department for a year to advise on irrigation problems in Greece. The engineer will try to rehabilitate 800,000 acres of Greek farmland . . . CIVIL SERVICE announces that it will not accept applications after August 26 for accountant jobs in the Securities and Exchange Commission.

LEAVE: Civil Service officials are rightfully provoked. The commission is being blamed by officials and employes alike for the order that will reduce from 90 to 60 the number of days of annual leave that can be carried over from one year to another.

For the record—the commission had nothing whatsoever to do with the policy change. The reduction in carry-over leave was ordered by the Congress and the President. The commission merely notified the agencies of the new law and to change their leave regulations accordingly.

To repeat—employes who have between 60 and 90 days of leave will be able to carry it over and use it in the future, but they can't carry over any more than they had on July 25.

2 Fire Chiefs Lose Posts With Board

Werheim, Harding Dismissals Follow Signing Petition Aimed at Murphy

Transfer of two battalion fire chiefs to lesser stations Tuesday was followed yesterday by the dismissal of both men from the Police and Firemen's Retiring Board.

The officers are John Werheim, Sixth Battalion, and Harold F. Harding, Seventh Battalion. They were removed from the board by the District Commissioners upon recommendation of Fire Chief Clement Murphy.

Both men had been among signers of a petition some time ago which declared that Fire Department morale has been at a low ebb since Murphy took office.

Testified for James

Both had testified Tuesday in behalf of Capt. William V. James, defendant, before a trial board on charges stemming from an explosion at No. 18 Engine House July 17. James also had signed the petition.

In announcing transfer of Werheim and Harding on Tuesday, Murphy said the move was "routine."

A different viewpoint was expressed yesterday by Capt. Walter A. Weber, vice president of Local 36, Firemen's Union, which originated the peition against Murphy.

In commenting on the dismissal of Harding and Werheim from the retirement board, Weber said: "It is a case of possible retaliation. The ousting of these two officers from the board was no more routine than was their transfer to other stations."

Harding said he had not yet been officially informed of the action. "I can see no reason for my dismissal if such is the case," he declared. Werheim was not available for comment.

The men were appointed to the board May 1, 1946. Werheim will be supplanted by Battalion Chiew Roy B. Hancock, harding, who was first alternated, will be succeeded by Battalion Chief Edward A. Sweeney.

Firemen's union officials declared that neither Sweeney nor Hancock were among signers of the petition.

Murphy declared the move was to give all high ranking officers "equal opportunity for experience in administrative positions."

In another shift, Seventh Battalion Chief A. J. Lipske was retired for ill health.

Supplanting him is Capt. Alden C. Kefauver, who saved Lipske's life on April 17, 1923 when both were trapped after a roof caved in during a fire at 1013 Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Kefauver made his escape by climbing a hand line tossed him and then after reaching the safety of a nearby structure, turned and pulled the exhausted Lipske from the flames.

Kefauver was cited for "displaying extraordinary courage and keen judgement."

The District Commissioners yesterday also approved a recommendation by Murphy that the District Fire Marshal be authorized to command the department in the event of the absence of the chief engineer and the senior and junior deputy chiefs.

Towson Man Gets Annulment in 'Spite' Marriage

Towson, Md., Aug. 13 (AP).—John R. W. Seymour argued that his wife married him just to spite the man she loved and was granted an annulment today.

He and Dorothy M. Fusz, 21, were married February 1. Seymous told a court examiner:

"After the ceremony at the church we got into the car to come home and Dorothy told me she did not love me and did not intend to live with me as my wife.

"That was a blow to me and I did not know what to do. I took her home. I talked with her parents and persuaded them to let me stay there. I thought being in the same house I could make her change her mind.

The bride's mother told the examiner:

"Dorothy . . . said she had been married to spite the other man she had been going with and she was still in love with him."

Md. Job Benefits Top 40.4 Million Since VJ-Day

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 13 (AP).—Maryland unemployment payments since VJ-Day passed the $40,426,679 mark last week, a period in which a decrease in claims was reported.

Russell S. Davis, chairman of the Department of Employment Security, reported to Governor Lane today layoffs were declining because of employment opportunities.

Since VJ-Day, the State has paid out $26,602,604 in readjustment allowances to unemployed veterans, for which it is reimbursed by the Federal Government.

Payments to unemployed persons last week included 3533 checks in the counties totaling $60,333 and 1261 checks totaling $149,101 in Baltimore. Out-of-State claimants received 576 checks totaling $11,774.

'Two Virtues'

Parents Seen Needing Sex Lesson Guide

Parents must be given a set of principles to guide them in their judgment in practical matters of sex education, the Rev. Henry V. Sattler of Holy Redeemer College declared here yesterday.

He was one of the speakers in the concluding session of the Cana Institute at Catholic University. The institute is a nation-wide Catholic movement devoted to study of and aid to marriage and its problems.

Sex education means "the imparting of sexual knowledge, plus a training in all the religious, moral, emotional and psychological facts and attitudes needed for a mature and healthy outlook," the speaker declared.

Sex knowledge, he said, "is only a tiny part of human knowledge every person should have. We do not and should not have a religious life, a business life, a home life, a school life or a sex life.

Two Hough Suits Over Denial of Loans Dismissed

Justice Edward M. Curran, in District Court, yesterday dismissed two suits against the Hyattsville Building Association, 819 14th st. nw., which alleged that the association failed to live up to home-financing agreements.

The suits were brought by Stanley P. Hough, Arlington builder, who has since been jailed on conviction of using the mails to defraud, and 10 war veterans who made $1500 down payments each on homes that were never built.

Justice Curran ruled the suits offered no allegation of contract made and no claim upon which relief could be granted. Hough had charged that the association's withholding of loans had cost him completion of his own contracts with the veterans; the association had countered that the builder was not sufficiently bonded to warrant the loans.

Census Consultant Gets N. Y. University Post

Dr. Soloman Fabricant, economic consultant to the Bureau of the Census here, has been appointed associate professor of economics in New York University's School of Commerce and economic lecturer in the graduate school there, it was announced yesterday.

Dr. Fabricant was an economist with the War Production Board during the war, and was later associated with UNRRA in London. Also economic consultant to the Bureau of the Budget here, he is the author of several books in his field.

Zoning Bids To Be Deferred In Arlington

A majority of future rezoning applications in Arlington will be deferred until next February pending revamping of the county's master zoning plan, officials predicted yesterday.

At Tuesday's zoning meeting of the county board, 16 of a total of 23 applications were deferred. Four were granted and three denied.

Of the 16 deferred, 13 were continued until February 10 and three until next month.

Since last week, a St. Louis planning consultant, Earl O. Mills, has been at work studying the master zoning plan adopted in 1942. He was commissioned to do the work by the board, which appropriated $7500 for the work.

The study was ordered, board members said, with a view to revision and bringing up to date of the master plan in an effort to lower the volume of rezoning applications.

The study, with local planning officials cooperating, will require from six to eight months, according to County Manager A. T. Lundberg.

Included in the petitions granted was one for a four-acre tract in Westover on which will be erected a two-story, $30,000 recreation center for the community of 1500 to 2000 families.

Jury Declares Bunch Death Accidental, Police Exonerated

was stroking the forehead of her husband just before the operation to sooth him and "could feel three deep places in his head."

"It felt like he had been hit with a club," she testified. "There was also bruises on both sides of his face."

Mrs. Otis G. Bunch of Richmond, Va., a daughter-in-law, testified she also had seen bruises all over his face at the hospital.

"Someone had beat him horribly," cried Mrs. Kathleen E. Ford, 5713 N. 16th st., Arlington, a daughter. "We all came to that conclusion at the same time."

Mrs. Ford broke down and cried. "I'll never be able to get out of my mind the horrible injustice . . ."

She was interrupted by Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy who warned her sternly against that kind of statement.

Otis G. Bunch, 32, an examiner for the Veterans Administration at Richmond, Va., declared he had been told by several internes that his father had been given a "raw deal" by police. This was denied by Dr. Sidney L. Sattenstein, who treated Bunch at his first visit to the hospital.

It was denied also by other internes who were witnesses. All said they had been questioned by detectives from the Homicide Squad who conducted the investigation after young Bunch wrote a letter to the District Commissioners.

Bunch declared also that the Coroner's office had advised him that it would be unnecessary for the family to have a physician present at an autopsy to discover the cause of death.

Bunch declared the verdict of the jury would not end the attempts for "justice!"

"We do not feel that this case is closed yet," he said. "I don't feel that the testimony was presented on the stand as it was to me or various members of the family before the inquest."

First diagnosis that Bunch had a skull fracture was made by Dr. Beatrice J. Kartus, assistant resident in medicine at Gallinger.

"He had bruises on his arm, on his head, a fever and a stiff neck," she said. "There were black and blue marks on the upper arms and blood behind his left ear and on the eardum."

Under cross examination of Assistant United States Attorney Edward Molenoff and Assistant Corporation Counsel Milton Korman, Dr. Kartus said it would have been possible for Bunch to have had a stroke, to have fallen, and yet not have discovered until some time afterwards that his skull was fractured.

Two Years Ago Today City Riotously Celebrated Jap Defeat

By Charles E. Davis, Jr.
Post Reporter

Two years ago today America was told that the war was over, that Japan had surrendered.

The announcement was made at 7 p. m. at the White House by President Truman.

Here in Washington, those hours before 7 p. m. were breathless and tense. Everyone listened to the radio.

A hush hung over the throng of thousands who had gathered in Lafayette Park opposite the White House to await the historic announcement.

Before Mr. Truman had completed his message, a roar crackled through the city—a roar of unparalleled excitement, one containing all the hysterical joy pent up through nearly four years of bitter war.

America—and the world—had entered a new age, the atomic age. The Nation had battered Japan to its knees with the help of a four billion dollar weapon, the atomic bomb. The bomb was to bring a critical problem in terms of world peace.

But that mad night two years ago there was only one thought: the war was over.

It was the wildest celebration in Washingtons' history. Traffic was at a virtual standstill. Horns blared endlessly. Thousands milled through the downtown streets in happy confusion.

Paper showered down from hotels and office buildings. Alcohol added to the gaiety. Servicemen and civilians edged through the jam-packed streets with whiskey and beer bottles in hand. Drinks were freely exchanged.

One happy couple, a serviceman and his girl, stepped from a cab in front of The Washington Post, stripped nude, then donned one another's clothes. They got back in the cab and drove off as the crowd roared.

There was considerable property damage and in some sections of the city revelers built bonfires in the streets. False fire alarms were legion. Liquor stores sold their wares down to the bare shelves. Some of the hotels and bars decided to be prudent. They closed.

The tumultous celebration continued throughout the night. It was a celebration that made the VE-Day celebrations in London and Paris the preceding May seem tame by comparison. For those cities the defeat of Germany was the great thing.

But for Washington, the war was truly a global war. It was over only when it was over everywhere.

Washington took VE-Day calmly. It saved its real celebrating for that day when Japan surrendered.

After the President made his announcement, the crowd in Lafayette Park swelled to 10,000. The mob surged past helpless MPs right up to the White House fence shouting, "We want Truman."

The President and Mrs. Truman strolled into the White House garden. Mr. Truman went close to the fence and waved and smiled to the multitude. The crowd of men, women and children replied with joyous shouting, flag waving, horn tooting and bell ringing. Then Mr. Truman returned to the front portico where he made an impromptu talk into a battery of microphones.

The victory became official September 2, 1945, when the terms of surrender were formally signed aboard the USS Missouri in Tokyo Bay.

So today two years ago wasn't officially VJ-Day. Even so, it was quite a day.

ABC Seeks to Ban Drinking by Minors

New Rules Proposed But City Official Doubts Legality

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday proposed "airtight" regulations to stop children's drinking in District bars, but members of the city legal staff informally "doubted" their legality.

ABC asked the Commissioners to adopt new regulations making it unlawful for minors to consume whisky—or persons under 18 years to drink light wines or beer—in licensed District establishments.

This was the board's answer to Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West, who ruled Monday that minors legally could drink in District bars if drinks are ordered and delivered first to adults and are paid for by adults.

Doubts Their Power

A member of the Corporation Counsel's staff, who withheld his name, told newsmen he doubted that the Commissioners had power under the ABC law to keep children from drinking. He said, however, that they might have authority to stop waiters from serving drinks at tables where minors were present.

Other developments yesterday:

1. The ABC board announced that because of West's ruling, charges of illegal sale to minors had been propped against Mayflower Hotel, Lotus Restaurant, 727 14th st. nw., and Quality Lunch 3 H st. nw. ABC said it found drinks had not been served directly to the minors.

2. Commissioner John Russell Young said the Commissioners could not take issue with West's interpretation of the law. "But I don't mean to say we think the law's all right," he added "We have no desire to contribute to the delinquency of a minor. We'll look into it when the other Commissioners return." (Engineer Commissioner Gordon Young is on vacation; Commissioner Guy Mason recovering from a recent illness.)

3. West denied he advocated "children's" drinking. "I'm certainly not in favor of starting them in drinking at 13 or any such young age," he insisted. "It depends a great deal on the child and the circumstances."

4. A. W. Thrower, of 1125 Euclid st. nw., visited District legal offices to protest in person against West's ruling. Father of a 15-year-old girl, he said, "My daughter doesn't drink now, but if she knows it's legal she might say 'to heck with Daddy' and stop in for a beer on her way home from school."

West Won't Comment

Copies of the ABC recommendation reached the District Building after Commissioner Young had left for the day. West said last night he hadn't seen the ABC proposals and wouldn't comment on them unless the Commissioners requested his legal opinion.

ABC said it believed the Commissioners "have the power and authority to promulgate" the following new regulations:

"Section 45 (a) It shall be unlawful for any licensee to sell, serve, deliver, give or in any manner dispense, any alcoholic beverage, with the exception of light wines or beer, to any person under the age of 21 years, or light wines or beer to any person under the age of 18 years.

"(b) It shall be unlawful for any person, upon any licensed premises, to sell, give, serve, or in any manner dispense, any alcoholic beverage, with the exception of light wines or beer, to any person under the age of 21 years, or light wines or beer to any person under the age of 18 years.

"(c) No licensee shall permit or allow the consumption of beverages, with the exception of beer and light wines, by any person under the age of 21 years, or beer and light wines by any person under the age of 18 years upon the premises for which any class of license has been issued by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

"(d) Any person who falsely and or knowingly misprepresents the age of any minor for the purpose of procuring for such minor any beverages shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and be fined for each offense not more than — dollars, and in default in the payment of such fine, shall be imprisoned not exceeding — days."

City Combed For Grocer's Assailant

Freidman

His wallet, with an undetermined amount of money, was lifted and $80 to $100 stolen from the cash register of his store, 53 D st. se. Left behind in the register was about $10 in silver.

The robbery occurred, police surmised between 7:20 a. .m when Friedman called his daughter, Ann, 20, to arouse her to go to work and 8 a. m. when a customer found Friedman unconscious, slumped on his knees behind a counter.

Customer Discovers Him

Mrs. Helen McCrae, 19, of 116 D. st. se. told police that when she entered the store she thought Friedman was bending over to find groceries.

When he failed to move or reply, she rushed out and summoned a passer-by, Horace Hurdle, 33, of 1931 18th st. se.

Hurdle, assistant manager of a grocery store across the street, called Friedman's wife, Yetta, who was sleeping in the apartment over the store with a 10-year-old niece. Neither had heard any commotion, they later told police.

On returning to the store, Hurdle found Friedman standing unsteadily near the store door. "He seemed to be trying to form words, but just couldn't," Hurdle said.

Taken to Emergency Hospital, Friedman underwent a brain operation late yesterday. He indicated to police he had not seen the sneak assailant.

Had Premonition, Wife Says

The daughter told a reporter she had not stopped by the store as she usually did for cigarettes before driving to work at 7:50 a. m. because she was late.

Hurdle said he usually drops in to have a coke and chat with Friedman at 7:45 a. m. but didn't yesterday since he was late in getting to work because of his wife's early morning return from Maine.

Friedman, after celebrating his fifty-fifth birthday Tuesday night by going to the movies—following his usual 14 hours of work—joked with his wife about the next day being the 13th.

"Maybe he had a premonition," said Mrs. Friedman.

A former salesmau, Friedman bought a mortgage on the store some six months ago with his life savings, according to a brother-in-law, Joseph Pasternak, 42, of 1219 Missouri ave. nw.

Unlucky Safe Bounced By Grille After 2d Theft

After having the same safe stolen for the second time in less than four months early yesterday morning, the proprietors of the Four Seas Grille, 3010 Hamilton st., Hyattsville, are looking for another today.

"I guess that's just an unlucky safe," Douglas Coates, comanager of the restaurant, said yesterday after examinating the damaged strong box. It had been stolen a few minutes after a Hyattsville policeman had checked the Queens Chapel Shopping Center where the restaurant is located.

Yesetrday's losses were $317 in cash and some miscellaneous papers. Entry had been gained by forcing a rear door, the same manner in which the safe had been removed April 25 with a $330 loss.

At about 3 a. m. yesterday, Prince Georges Counyt police were summoned bya neighbor living behind the restaurant who heard noises within. On arrival they found the door broken open and the safe missing.

It was recovered, empty, about two hours later near Montgomery rd., Beltsville after it was spotted by a man passing on his way to work. After the first theft, the safe was located in a stream near Fort Meade.

Potomac Study To Start Today

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 13 (AP).—The first preliminary study of pollution in Western Maryland streams, with chief emphasis on the Potomac River, will start tomorrow under the supervision of Paul W. McKee, executive secretary of the water pollution control commission.

McKee left with field experts Guy E. Lerner and John G. Walters on a tour which included a side trip to Antietam Creek, where a high fish mortality has been reported which may be due to pollution.

McKee said the study would go probably as far as Luke, W. Va., and Big Savage, working down the Potomac River to Cumberland.

Tobacco Breaks On Valdosta Market

Valdosta, Ga., Aug. 13 (AP).—All grades sold today on the Georgia-Florida flue-cured tobacco markets broke sharply in price from the Tuesday levels. The decreases ranged from $1 to $9 per hundred with most down $3 to $5.

Declines were general in all groups. A large number of grades averaged the lowest of the season. These losses also forced some grades below Commodity Credit Corp. support level.

2 Accused of Bribery In WAA at Richmond

Richmond, Va., Aug. 13 (AP).—Charles W. Brown, special agent in charge of the FBI office here, announced that two officials of the Richmond regional office of the War Assets Administration were charged with violation of the Federal bribery statute in complaints filed today before United States Commissioner Melvin Fiegenheimer.

The pair, Herbert Dunbar Tinker, chief, aircraft and electronics division, and Lawrence Donald Bryan, chief, electronic branch, Richmond office of the WAA, appeared before Commissioner Fiegenheimer and were released under $2500 recognizance bond each pending a hearing here on September 4.

Brown said that Tinker and Bryan were charged with soliciting $25,000 here August 1 from an official of a Louisville, Ky., radio station and of the Electronics Service Corp. at Louisville, in consideration of their renegotiation of a field bid award of $69,920 made to the Louisville official for the purchase of electronic cable on May 28, 1947.

The FBI agent said it was proposed that the award of $69,920 be renegotiated for approximately $10,000.

The brochure advertising the WAA sale on May 6, 1947, indicated, Brown said, that the material originally was acquired by the Government for $804,268.79.

Snake Handlers Released

Jonesville, Va., Aug. 13 (AP).—Four men, sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $50 each, have been released from the Lee County Jail, under bonds of $500 pending an appeal to the Lee County Circuit Court of their convictions on charges of violating the handling of snakes.

The men released were Paul Dotson, Robert Dotson, Macel Thompson and Edgar Blackburn, all of Stone Creek.

Two women, Mary Lee Scott of Pennington Gap and Flora Noland of Haywood, Ky., who were given similar sentences and fines, refused to accept bond and remained in the jail.

Early Corn Plentiful

Winchester, Va., Aug. 13.—Grover Schlack, chairman of the farmers' curb market here, said today that the excellent growing season for early corn had caused the local retail market to become glutted. Everyone has sweet corn for sale, with the result that the price has fallen off from 65 to 30 cents and less in recent weeks.

Eugene S. Lupton, a county farmer, said the story on late corn planting may be entirely different. Late corn is already suffering from lack of moisture and continued drought will cut sharply into the yield, he warned.

Blake Takes Va. Post

Richmond, Va., Aug. 13 (AP).—George Blake, now with the Federal Production and Marketing Administration, will move to the State Department of Agriculture by September 1 as supervisor of the department's commodity distribution section, L. M. Walker, jr., State commissioner of agriculture, said today.

Until he begins work with the department, Blake will continue in his present job, Walker stated.

Blake's duties with the department will consist of handling surplus commodity goods obtained from the Federal Government for distribution to State institutions and for school lunch programs in free public schools.

The surplus commodities distribution program was set up by the Government five or six years ago in Virginia and other States to utilize surplus farm products.

Negro Seeks GraduateStudy At Maryland

Salisbury, Md., Aug. 13 (AP).—A Negro veteran who flew with the Army Air Forces in the Mediterranean war theater said today he would attempt to register for graduate study at the University of Maryland. His action may bring about a new test of the State's "biracial" education policy.

Wilmore B. Leonard, 31-year-old former Air Forces major, said he would appear at College Park on registration day, September 15, and attempt to enroll for graduate courses in chemistry.

Leonard said he had received some indication from College Park that he would be accepted but later was advised to withdraw his application.

Won't Withdraw Application

He said he has no intention of withdrawing his application.

"I'll be there registration day," he declared.

Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the university, said at College Park that no student is accepted for study until he actually appears on registration day.

"We receive literally thousands of applications from graduate students," Dr. Byrd said. "What we do is take the cream. I discussed this applicant with Dr. Edgar F. Long, director of admissions. The record of the applicant is bad.

"The University of Maryland follows a bi-racial policy. That word 'bi-racial' means racial segregation. The university heretofore has confined its student body to white persons. I foresee no change in this policy."

Problem Recognized

Dr. Long declined to comment on whether Leonard had been given any indication that he would be accepted. The director of admissions referred all inquiries to Dr. Byrd, and Dr. Byrd said he does not know. He said it "may have been."

Leonard's action recalled that a State commission on higher education last fall reported there probably would be increasing attempts by Negro students to gain admission at College Park unless the State provides equal facilities for them.

The university now has a branch at Princess Anne, on Maryland's Eastern Shore, where it offers courses in agriculture, the mechanical arts and home economics to Negroes.

The State in 1939 took over Morgan College in Baltimore, originally a Bible institute, and converted it into a liberal arts college for Negroes.

There is a State Teachers' college for Negroes at Bowie.

The socalled Barbury Commission in effect went along with a recommendation of Judge Morris A. Soper, president of the Morgan State board of regents, suggesting that the university admit Negroes to its graduate courses and professional schools.

Dr. Byrd countered with a recommendation that Morgan State be administered by the university and expanded and that the State continue awarding scholarships giving Negroes a chance to study at Howard University in Washington and other established Negro schools.

In 1935, the Maryland Court of Appeals sustained a suit by Donald Gaines Murray of Baltimore for admission to the university law school, which is located in Baltimore. He graduated and was admitted to the bar. Since then, several other Negro students have received their training at the law school and 20 were enrolled there last year.

Leonard was a pilot and administrative officer with the 322nd Fighter Group, the Air Forces only Negro combat group. He served four years in the Army, most of the time with the 322nd, and flew missions over Italy and Africa.

On Technicality

Dismissal Of Suit Won By Bar Group

An injunction suit against the Bar Association of the District, charging the organization with "practicing racial discrimination", was dismissed here yesterday on technical grounds.

Justice Edward M. Curran, in District Court, ruled the suit improper in that Attorney James J. Laughlin, who instituted it, "had no interest or standing" in the injunction plea. He gave Laughlin 30 days to amend the complaint within proper bounds.

Laughlin charged that the Bar Association of the District does not admit Negroes as members and does not allow Negro members of the local courts to use its law library, in the District Court Building, although they are charged $8 each annually for its operation.

The suit also pointed out that Municipal Court Judge Armond W. Scott, a Negro, was not invited to an outing with the association. Laughlin asked that the association be restrained from using its name and that the library fees be dropped.

Representing the association in the suit were Godfrey L. Munter, John J. Carmody and Hugh H. Obear.

Officers of the firemen are Chief Ballard, president; Henry Scott of Alexandria, vice president; Wallace Hicks of Hampton, secretary; F. Milmer Coffman of Harrisonburg, treasurer, and the Rev. J. C. Garber of tSaunton, chaplain.

In addition to Mrs. Crane, officers of the Ladies Auxiliary named were Mrs. Florence Andrews, Chincoteague, vice president; Mrs. Louise Boer of South Norfolk, secretary; Mrs. Mildred Yates of Luray, treasurer; Mrs. Marie Williams of Strasburg, chaplain; Mrs. Effie Roller of Staunton, conductress, and Mrs. Frances O'Shaughnessy of Bayleys Crossroads, assistant conductress; Mrs. Magdalen Rose of Fredericksburg, pianist.

Executive committee of the Ladies Auxiliary will be composed of Mrs. Arlene French of New Market; Mrs. Effie Kline of Strasburg and Mrs. Lena Scott of Alexandria.

A. J. Berres Funeral Set For Saturday

Funeral services for Albert Julius Berres, jr., 43, a native Washingtonian and manager of the American Red Cross Chapter in Detroit, Mich., who died in Detroit Tuesday after a short illness, will be held at 10 a. m. Saturday at St. Gabriel's Church, Grant Circle.

Mrs. Berres is returning to Washington tomorrow with her husband's body, which will be taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Rouse, 7528 Morningside dr. nw., lifelong friends of Mr. Berres.

Mr. Berres joined the Red Cross staff here as an accountant in 1931 and shortly after serving as a field representative in North Carolina. He was named executive director of the Dade County (Miami, Fla.) chapter in 1936 and manager of the Detroit chapter in 1939.

Before joining the Red Cross he worked as a teller for the Commercial National and Mount Vernon Savings Banks here, both of which are now closed.

He was the son of the late Albert J. Berres, also a native Washingtonian, who was appointed a member of the Shipbuilding Labor Adjustment Board by President Wilson in 1917 and served for many years as an official of the American Federation of Labor.

Mr. Berres worked for a short time for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer when his father was industrial secretary for the Motion Picture Industry. He was graduated from Central High School in 1921.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by two sons, John Paul Berres and Albert J. Berres 3d. An uncle, Frank J. Berres, lives at 3212 17th st. ne.

Virginia Tops Quota In '47 Cancer Drive

Richmond, Va., Aug. 13 (AP).—The Virginia division of the American Cancer Society has raised $186,466.25 through voluntary contributions during its 1947 cancer control campaign in the State, Mrs. Fred M. Alexander, State commander of the society's field army, announced today.

This amount exceeded the Virginia quota, assigned as part of the nation-wide campaign this year, by more than $10,000. The campaign will close August 31.

Group Seeks Plan to Cut Silt in Dams

Baltimore, Aug. 13 (AP).—The State Soil Conservation Committee decided today to confer shortly with Baltimore City Engineer Nathan Smith on the possibility of establishing a cooperative program "in an attempt to decrease the situation which is now filling up such places as Loch Raven Dam."

Dr. T. B. Symons, committee chairman and director of the University of Maryland Extension Service, said the resolution came about as the result of a similar project to be undertaken for the watershed of Brighton Dam, Montgomery County—a water supply for Washington, D. C.

Loch Raven is Baltimore's principal water storage dam.

The committee also allocated $30,000 in State funds to the 22 Maryland soil conservation districts in 21 counties. Only Calvert and Talbot counties are not included in the soil program.

The funds, for the fiscal year ending next June 30, will be used by the districts primarily to defray operating costs of machinery, Symons said.

The Brighton watershed includes about 50,000 acres in Montgomery and Howard Counties, and the committee said the 10-year project was designed to prevent filling up of the dam with silt.

The committee will investigate shore-erosion problems in cooperation with the Board of Natural Resources, under direction of Dr. Joseph T. Singewald, director of the Department of Geology, Mines and Water Resources.

The committee will invite the State Legislative Council to make a soil-conservation tour of farms, probably this fall.

Allocation of funds to county soil conservation districts included: Montgomery, $1332; Prince Georges, $1450; Frederick, $1593; Washington, $1927; Allegany, $1147; Garrett, $1178; Anne Arundel, $887; Dorchester, $1921, and Wicomico, $1487.

Dark, Slick, and Vital

'Flying Tiger' Diplomat Is U. S. Host at Rio

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

THE Inter-American Conference is opening tomorrow in Petropolis, exotic mountain suburb of Rio de Janeiro. Host to the Norte Americanos is United States Ambassador William Pawley, one of the most vital guys to penetrate our diplomatic service via political appointment. Bill Pawley is dark, slick, looks something like an upper bracket edition of former Manhattan Mayor Jimmy Walker. He's always on the jump, and ergo, suffers from that expensively important complaint, ulcers of the stomach.

His most sensational job was creating the Flying Tigers. In May, 1939, he asked Dr. H. H. Kung, brother-in-law of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, how America could most help China. Dr. Kung suggested the establishment of a foreign air legion. Returning to the United States, Pawley was instrumental in organizing the American Volunteer Group which was later nicknamed the Flying Tigers.

Earlier in 1939 he set up the first aircraft factory in India. This factory later became the main repair and overhauling plant for planes used in the China-Burma-India campaign.

Carolina to Cuba to China

BORN in Florence, S. C., Bill Pawley spent much of his childhood in Cuba and learned to nabla espanol with a true sibilant, Castilian lisp. He eased into aviation through his friendship with Glenn Curtiss. He became head of Central Aircraft, then, turning back to Cuba, established the Caribbean island's first air line and air mail service (Cuban National Aviation Co.). Next project was a reorganization job on the CNAC (China National Airways Corp.).

As extracurricular endeavor, Pawley is helping toward famine control in India's state of Travencore. To revitalize the exhausted soil, he's building the first ammonia-sulphate plant, which soon will produce fertilizer in generous quantity.

Pawley burst into diplomacy from the top, being appointed Ambassador to Peru in 1945. The following year he moved across continent to Brazil. Though he's retired from business, he keeps a watchful eye on his company, the Intercontinent Corp. As a base for deep-sea fishing, he has a place in Miami Beach, but the real Pawley passion, aside from color photography, is an 800-acre working farm at Belvoir, Va. Scattered through the Belvoir house are tiger skins and other souvenirs of big-game hunts in India. Mrs. Pawley, an Oklahoma gal, is a most satisfactory blonde.

Battle Over the Islands

IN THE current Harper's magazine, John Marquand fires the latest broadside in a stimulating tug-of-war between the Navy and the Interior Department. The to-do is whether Navy or civilian administration will get final control in the Pacific islands newly under our flag. The battle, which is being fought in magazines and newspapers with no clinches barred, may well blossom into a major campaign issue. Heretofore, our territories, such as the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, have been administered by the Interior, but after the war, on-the-spot Navy stayed put in the Pacific with Admiral Charles A. Pownall made Governor of Guam.

The opposition's opening shot was published just a year ago in a Collier's article authored by Harold Ickes and politely titled "The Navy at its Worst!" Navy public relations, stung by the Ickes tough-talk, sprang into action. They sent Rear Admiral Carleton H. Wright to a coupla-islands, then back for a peek at every rock and coral reef in the area. Admiral Wright immediately became an island expert and was made right bower to Admiral Pownall as high-sounding Deputy High Commissioner of the Trust Territories of the Pacific.

The DHC of the TT of the Pacific turned author and on May 3 the Saturday Evening Post tossed in its hat by publishing his "Let's Not Civilize These Happy People." The Interior countered, murmuring that Admiral Wright got into trouble VJ-Day when the sailors under his command at San Francisco went on a terrific victory binge. The Navy, a bit too high pressured, complacently invited a group of newsmen to look over the islands. As usual, the press bit the hand that feeds, dug up informed natives, reported all was not over-rosy. The Interior won the next round with a Life editorial appearing last week and authored by astute Gilbert Cant.

Fact or Fiction?

THE Marquand opus, called "Why the Navy Needs an Aspirin," then made its debut in Harper's. The Interior meanly rates it as one of the better bits of Marquand fiction. To those who know the drawly New England author, it's obvious the Navy joy ride was pleasing, the happy islanders to be envied by anyone living at Newburyport on the chill Atlantic coast. So far the score stands a bit in favor of the Interior, as President Truman has advised Congress that the islands should be placed under a civilian agency.

There's no doubt, though, that the Navy is doing a superb public relations job and they may get to the top of the heap. To devotees of the Brewster investigation, here's a nice little squabble to fill in the void until our Senators, refreshed by vacation breezes, return to Washington and a second round of Sherlock Holmesing.

Miss Mary Dow Feted at Shower, Supper

MISS Mary Janet Dow, whose marriage to John Dickinson Ferry will take place Saturday, was honored Tuesday evening at a supper and shower given by Mrs. William Patterson and Miss Eleanor Woodson. The party was held at Miss Woodson's home on Meadow lane.

Among the guests were Mrs. A. C. Woodson, Miss Isabell Barry, Miss Barbara Sanborn, Miss Jane Anne Sullivan, Miss Sally Baldwin, Miss Camilla Goldsborough, Miss Barbara Hanby, Miss Jeane Clarke, Miss Alice Bratland, Miss Helene di Sibour and Miss Jackie di Lysle.

Yesterday the bride-elect entertained at a luncheon at the Cape Cod Inn, Bethesda, for her three bridal attendants, Miss Barbara Hanby, maid of honor, Miss Helene di Sibour and Miss Marie Snyder. A linen shower was given for Miss Dow last Friday by Miss diSibour and Miss di Lysle.

Mr. and Mrs. Montague Ferry, parents of the bridegroom-elect, will entertain the bridal party Friday evening at a buffet supper preceding the rehearsal.

'Hasty Heart' Star Is Guest at Tea Of Press Women

Freddie Bartholomew, star of the current Olney Theater hit, "The Hasty Heart," was guest of honor yesterday at a tea given by the American Newspaper Women's Club at its headquarters, 1604 20th st. nw.

Mrs. Bartholomew stayed in the kitchen to prepare a kidney pie for Freddie's dinner. The two always cook their own meals wherever they go and whenever possible. Both the Mr. and Mrs. have an aversion to "eating out." So Freddie did all the handshaking for the two.

Dashing young Bartholomew revealed that he soon would be off to England for his first visit since he played in "David Copperfield" about nine years ago.

Out to meet the stage and screen star were two Englishwomen, Miss Mary Coggins, Miss Jean Rayne, Mrs. Robert Freer and her young daughter Alice; Senorita Garcilla de Castillo who is here on a visit from Ecuador.

Mrs. Margaret Hart Canby, president, received, assisted by Miss Grace McGerr, first vice president.

To Be Honored

Mrs. Malcolm Farquhar Thomas of Sandy Spring, Md., will entertain at a shower Saturday afternoon for Miss Faith Farquhar also of Sandy Spring, whose marriage to John Hughes Stetson will take place September 6.

By Arthur Ellis—The Washington Post

What the young business woman in Washington wears this fall may be influenced by this trio of youthful designers, all winners in a national dress design contest for college seniors which was conducted by Charm Magazine. Arriving in their self-made, self-designed costumes via Capital Airlines yesterday noon, they are: Betty Jane Crisp of Illinois, first award winner, Rhoda Miller of New York, and Mary Jane Stine of Texas

New Ideas For Campus Or Office

Not deterred by a sweltering temperature of 92 degrees, the Capital's fashion-wise donned their coolest summer finery yesterday to peek at fashions for the college girls and the young business miss.

College girls and their mothers flocked to the air-cooled Hotel Statler in the afternoon to gander at fall campus fashions. Fashion editors went to a luncheon at the National Airport to find out the latest for the young business woman from a trio of youthful designers who have just nabbed national awards for their prowess in the field.

Chic for Campus

Junior Bazaar and an F st. shop, sponsored the show to illustrate what new fashions, fabrics and colors wil be practical and chic on the campus this year. Miss Betty Brown, college editor of "Junior Bazaar," was moderator.

She told the girls that dark brown should be considered just as modish as black for those "special" dates and that two neutral colors, such as gray and beige, are a perfect match for the campus.

Chambray and corduroy are tops in sportswear, she added. The costumes pictured at right were some of the afternoon's fashion highlights.

For Office Wear

The styles for office wear were shown by three enthusiastic young designers who arrived in Washington yesterday chockfull of ideas for the youthful business woman's wardrobe. They are the traveling fellowship award winners in a national contest presented by Charm Magazine to three graduate students of leading design schools across the country.

Betty Jane Crisp of Benton, Ill., a graduate of Washington University in St. Louis, Mo., walked received the second award of $1300 for her one-piece tweed suit.

Mary Beth Stine of Henrietta, Texas, Southern Methodist University graduate, won another $1500 award for her one piece dress of linen, designed for the business office in the southern clime.

Jumping from Dallas, New Orleans, San Antonio, Los Angeles, San Francisco/Minneapolis and St. Paul, St. Louis, Chicago, Cleveland, Pittsburgh—and now the Nation's Capital, they visited design and workrooms, a representative store in each city.

Show Style at Cony

While in town they will attend a fashion showing tomorrow, 5:30 p. m. at the Shoreham Hotel. Today, they will visit Fort Belvoir, put on a style show for the servicemen. Between times they will visit the historical sites and buildings. Saturday they will debate with local business women the questions of appropriate styles for the young Washington worker.

From her jaunt across the Continent, tall, slender, green-eyed Betty Jane was struck by the absence of good tailored clothes for business girls, particularly in summer apparel. She's all for designing functional, good one-piece tailored frocks. Also, she thinks too few designers consider the various sections of the country. For example, she found out that summer clothes are worn from April to October in the South but the markets there are the same as for New York.

Rhoda, who was thrilled by her first glimpse of the West, doubts if the middle of the leg length frocks will get much further than the high fashion crowd. "Women will wear their skirts slightly longer," she predicted, "but they won't lower them much."

Flared coats for short misses are featured for college wear this fall. This casual style is available in bright colors, can be set off with contracting mittens and silk scarf

This lightweight wool dress is perfect for lecture classes as well as campus dates. Its new overlapping neckline and extra-wide cuffs are distinctive trends in this autumn's college fashions

Paris Hats Give No Choice– Hair Must Be Worn Upsweep

Paris, Aug 13 (AP).—Women will have to put their hair up if they want to wear the fall hats shown today by French milliners.

American buyers took a fancy to Venetian bonnets, closely hugging the forehead and hiding the hair and ears, the big berets treated in the Flemish fashion, and some of the soft-brimmed felts.

Maud et Nano treated the beret version in an original way. The back view revealed a flat crown, elaborately worked with drapes and pleats. In front, a lighter movement was created by a small brim, slightly shadowing the forehead.

Other hats were rather on the heavy side. Apart from fitting crowns, some had two flaps, one on each side, tying under the chin. Others had two big fuzzy balls.

Mme. Legroux, another big Paris milliner, preferred perched-on-the-head types. She said this was to correct the heavy lines of some of the clothes, initiated this season by Paris dressmakers.

One of her best was a green velour toque. Two big green paradise feathers pointed skyward.

One of the novelties was the introduction of suede, mainly for berets and toques. This was used by Mme. Legroux for a peaked round cap, decorated by a long glycerined ostrich feather.

For evening head-dresses, Mme. Legroux used velvet and paradise feather, mostly treated in black.

Suzanne Talbot made hats which were both elegant and wearable. She liked to match velours felt and ton-sur-ton ostrich feathers, or else adorn soft-colored felts with long winged birds, artfully placed.

Officers Club Plans VJ Dance at Statler

The Officers Service Club of Washington will sponsor a VJ-Day dance Saturday evening from 9 to 12 in the Congressional room at the Statler Hotel. All officers and former officers in and around Washington are eligible to attend. Among the 80 hostesses to entertain guests without dates are daughters of officers of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps.

The Officers Service Club is one of the few such clubs to survive the war. Control of the club was taken over by a board of directors composed of officers and former officer members and has been functioning in that capacity since the winter of 1946.

Your Questions On Homemaking

My three airplane luggage suitcases have been stored in what I thought was a dry cellar. On opening them the other day, I found they were extremely musty and felt very damp inside. I plan to sun and air them as soon as possible. If this doesn't get rid of the mustiness, is there anything else I can use? A. K. C.

Less dirt means more light! Wash fixtures and bulbs periodically so you won't be cheated out of valuable illumination. Before you begin work, turn off the switch and give the bulb a chance to cool. Water on the hot bulb may make it crack and explode. Take care, too, not to get water into electrical connections

Plenty of sunshine and fresh air should rid your suitcases of the mustiness and dampness. However, calcium chloride (which can be purchased in drug and department stores) may be helpful. This chemical takes up moisture and helps deodorize musty areas. Place an open container of the solid chloride inside each suitcase. Keep the top of the bag down so moisture from outside air won't get in. Replace the chemical when it becomes liquid. Or put the open bags and an open container of chloride in a small closet with the door closed.

(1) I have a maple table that was badly scorched by my toaster. Can I remove the spot without refinishing the whole table? If so, how? (2) Do you know of any product that will remove mildew from a piece of luggage? The leather is wrinkled a bit. (3) I have three baby dresses with mildew spots on them. What will remove these stains? J. M. M.

1. If the burn is deep, refinishing the whole surface will probably be necessary. However, the following may be effective in getting rid of the worst of the scorch and improving the appearance of the spot: Rub the scorched place with very fine steel wool, then brush away the scrapings with a soft brush. Apply turpentine with soft lintless cloth and let it dry. With a fine brush, carefully apply a very thin coating of white shellac. Let dry. Apply additional coats of shellac in this way until the desired color is obtained and the spot filled in. After shellac dries, wash or polish the table.

2. If the luggage is leather, wipe with a cloth wrung out in dilute alcohol (1 cup denatured alcohol to 1 cup water) to remove the mildew spots. Dry in a current of air. If necessary, wash with thick suds of a mild neutral soap or saddle soap. Then wipe with a damp cloth and dry in an airy place.

3. Wash the baby dresses well in soap and water, rinse, and dry in the sun. If this does not bleach out the mildew spots, moisten them with lemon juice and salt and spread in the sun again. Then rinse thoroughly and dry.

Your Baby

Spoon's Not Baby's Idea For Eating

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

The mother has to exhibit infinite patience when she offers solid food to the baby for the first time. It is her idea, too often, that because the baby needs it and should have it he should take it with gusto.

What she must remember is that the spoon is a new instrument for feeding. The baby has become used to extracting nourishment from a nipple and when he applies himself to the spoon, as he would to a nipple, the food is pushed out of his mouth instead of back and down his throat.

No Control

This is a matter over which the child has no control. He may be eager to eat, but he pushes on the blob of food in his mouth and out it comes, down his chin. After this happens a few times his mother is exasperated and the baby is furious. He wants the old, familiar bottle and no more nonsense from this unproductive spoon.

The baby will manage some foods better than others. If the food is made soupy with milk formula he may sup it as he does a spoonful of orange juice. If it is too thick or has a rough texture, he may really dislike it and push it out purposefully. Most babies like their first foods very smooth, neither too thick nor too thin, and warmed as is their formula.

Try, Try Again

If the baby doesn't succeed in getting the vegetable or cereal down, after repeated trials, then try sweet, strained fruit. Or try another type of vegetable. Maybe he really doesn't fancy carrots but will enjoy peas or beans or beets. Children do have discrimination in taste as any mother discovers.

The combinations of a number of vegetables, flavored with meat stock which can be had in the form of a nice thick soup, is often an agreeable way in which to introduce the baby to vegetables. The concoction is just the right thickness to go down easily and children like the flavor of meat.

The big point is not to fuss at the child for inability to swallow all of his portions just at first. Don't be afraid to make changes of food, or varieties of the same food, if all does not go smoothly with the one being offered.

Paper-Stuck Raisins

Putting a package of raisins to which the paper has stuck into a warm oven will loosen the paper immediately, but this can be accomplished in an even easier way. Just put the package on the mouth of the tea kettle and let the steam reach it from all sides. It will loosen the paper immediately.

Girls Nation Gets Tips on Woman's Job

By Genevieve Reynolds

The six-day veteran politicians of Girls Nation—a national school of democracy conducted by the American Legion Auxiliary—put aside Government proceedings yesterday afternoon to get a few tips on what they could do as individual citizens.

Capt. Joy Bright Hancock, director of the Women's Reserve, United States Navy, stressed the importance of supporting the armed services. Glamorous Mrs. John Davis Lodge, wife of the Connecticut Representative, outlined the triangle of a woman's life—health, home and su[illegible].

"I hope you all will be interested in the Women's Reserve of the Navy," said Captain Hancock, "for, it develops such traits as tolerance, respect for others, 'sticktuitiveness'—and these qualities are carried back into the communities and family life."

Pointing out what servicewomen did during the war, she emphasized the gains to individuals through their Navy training. "Servicewomen now are making contributions to their communities, national and international life by carrying out their ability to live with others.

Marshall's Advice Again

Referring to a speech made earlier in the week by the Secretary of State, Captain Hancock declared, "I wholeheartedly agree with General Marshall's advice to you, viz., 'collect facts and information before forming opinions.' Carry this advice with you always and you will be able to assume the partnership with men in the Nation and the world."

Mrs. Lodge termed good health one of the chief cornerstones for life. "First of all, control of our energies and planning of our lives and our time is more important than spending of money," she cautioned. "Don't run your motor too hard, girls, life is a long, long road.

Mrs. Lodge

"In this world of health," she continued, "I believe one of the greatest things is knowing how to laugh. To be gay promotes circulation; good circulation is the secret of health and good health is one of the secrets of happiness.

She emphasized that a happy home life is predicated largely on sound resilient health; that it must be worked for to be achieved.

"Its' a woman's duty to project into the community in which she lives the spiirt of gracious living which she has created in her home," said Mrs. Lodge." Only by such vast personal efforts can the vast problems of the world work toward a happy solution.

Family Is First

"Nothing that we can do in Washington will matter if the American home disintegrates," she added, reminding her audience that one of the Communist government's first steps was an attempt to abolish the family."

There are 1,172,000 more women of voting age than there are men in the United States today. This places upon women a great responsibility, thus making it imperative to spread the four walls of homes into communities, according to Mrs. Lodge.

As for career and marriage, she thinks the two can be combined successfully only after the woman has clearly decided which interest will be sacrificed whenever conflict occurs.

"In any case, you should not try to reform your husband." concluded Mrs. Lodge. Try instead to create around him an environment which will produce in him a sense of well being. That is the best way to cure any maladjustments.

Following the talks, members of Girls Town visited the Pentagon Building, Washington Airport, Lincoln and Jefferson Memorials. During the morning the girls held Senate sessions, passed moot bills. Last night they cast aside governmental worries and tripped the light fantastic at a gala dance held in Girls Town headquarters at American University.

Dillon, Read Tops 4 Groups In Pepco Bids

By S. Oliver Goodman

Dillon, Read & Co. headed a group which submitted the winning bid for 140,000 shares of $50 par preferred stock of Potomac Electric Power Co. Nine Washington investment houses are in this syndicate.

The high bid was $51.75 a share for a 3.60 per cent dividend rate, with compensation to the underwriters of 95 cents a share.

The Dillon, Read group won in close competition with four others. Other bidders were: Kidder, Peabody & Co., $51.50, less $1.44 a share compensation, for a 3.60 per cent dividend; Blythe & Co. and Smith, Barney & Co., $51, less 95 cents for a 3.70 per cent dividend; Drexel & Co. and Hemphill, Noyes & Co., $51.35, less $1 for a 3.80 per cent dividend; First Boston Corp. $51.37, less $1.044 for a 3.75 per cent dividend.

The new shares are designed to replace 6 and 5½ per cent $100-par preferreds now outstanding. A spokesman for Pepco said last night that two shares of new preferred plus $3.50 cash and a dividend adjustment will be exchanged for one share of the old preferred. Preferred holders electing not to exchange will receive the redemption price of $107 a share on September 1.

All new shares not exchanged by August 26 at 3 p. m. will be purchased by the syndicate and offered to the public. Reliable estimates are that between 80 and 85 per cent of the shares will be exchanged.

Washington houses in the underwriting group are Alex Brown & Sons; Auchincloss, Parker & Redpath; Johnston, Lemon & Co.; Folger, Nolan & Co.; Robert C. Jones & Co.; Ferris & Co.; Goodwyn & Olds; Robinson, Rohrbaugh & Lukens, and Mackall & Coe.

Outstanding are 20,000 shares of 6 per cent and 50,000 shares of 5½ per cent preferred.

No new money will accrue to Pepco as a result of the exchange. The refinancing reduces the dividend rate to the current market cost for high grade preferred issues.

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 13 (AP).—Cotton futures registered gains of 80 cents to $1.50 a bale in moderately active dealings today. Considerable trade covering in nearby October futures against the purchase of 30,000 bales of cotton by the CCC for Japan and Korea influenced the balances of the market.

Traders believed that rains so far in Texas, while beneficial, have not been sufficient to break the drought there completely and assure a bumper crop.

20 or More Contests Listed For Virginia Delegate Seats

Preliminary reports from Richmond last night showed at least 20 contests for seats in the House of Delegates in the November general election.

The State Board of Elections still had not listed a flood of independent candidacies filed just before the Tuesday midnight deadline. But the board announced contests in the following districts:

Alexandria—Armistead L. Booth (D) vs. Walter B. Fulton (R).

Arlington—J. Maynard Magruder (D) and George Damm (D) vs. Frederic G. Dawson (Ind.) and O. Ethel Clair (Ind.)

The board said that the deadline passed with no word received of the candidacy of Stanley S. Garner, Newport News, for the State Senate seat from the Thirty-Third District. Garner, who was defeated in the Democratic primary last week, had said he would run as an independent.

In Fairfax, Thomas P. Chapman, jr., clerk of the Circuit Court, said that Republicans and independents would contest four Democratic county offices. This is in addition to contests for House of Delegates and State Senate. The contested offices and candidates are:

Supervisor, Dranesville District: Maurice W. Fox (D.), incumbent, Paul E. Rhinehart, jr (R.), and Paul J. Keller (Ind.).

Supervisor, Falls Church District: C. B. Runyon (D.) vs. W. F. Clem.

Supervisor, Providence District: G. Wallace Carper (D.), incumbent, vs. L. B. Morris (R.).

Treasurer: Buford Mauck (R), incumbent, vs. Albert Kite (D).

Commonwealth's Attorney: I. R. Dovel (R), incumbent, vs. Robert Keyser (D).

Sheriff: Abraham Brubaker (R), incumbent, vs. Rumsey Sedwick (D).

Commissioner of Revenue: J. T. Campbell (R), incumbent, vs. Harry Keyser, jr. (D).

Md. Drought Threat Grows; Tomato Blight Action Urged

Baltimore, Aug. 13 (AP).—The Weather Bureau reported today that lack of rainfall in Maryland's southern and central counties is becoming serious and "assuming drought proportions."

In its weekly crop review, the bureau also said "tomato blight has been reported from many areas, and farmers are advised to spray to prevent its spreading."

Late blight did an estimated 40 million dollar damage last year to the State's important tomato crop.

The Weather Bureau noted there were scattered showers on three days last week, but except for a few localities they totaled less than a quarter of an inch. Much of the central and southern area has had less than half an inch of rain in the last three weeks, although the normal precipitation in that period is 3½ inches.

The crop review by sections:

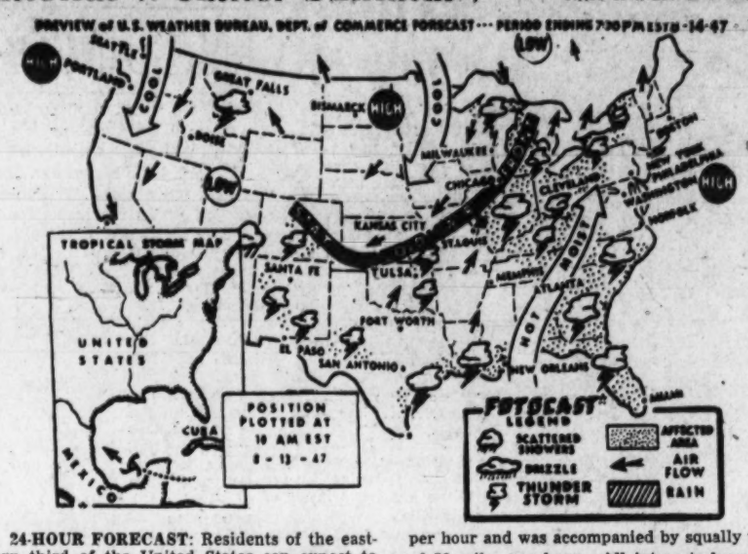
Garrett, Allegany and Washington Counties—Wheat and oat harvests practically completed. Corn making good progress, ears developing, but it is badly infested by Japanese beetles. Early tomatoes badly blighted in some areas. Early potatoes being dug, with good yields, but considerable rot. Sweet corn being picked. Other truck crops generally good, with good yields. Peaches being picked, with yields fair to good. Pastures good. Some fall plowing started.

Counties west of Chesapeake Bay—Small grain harvest completed. Corn good, ears developing; late corn needs rain. In southern counties, corn is poor and other crops are being damaged as a result of lack of sufficient moisture. Tomatoes and sweet corn being picked for canneries and markets. Tomatoe blight has been reported from many areas in the central and northern counties and indications are it is spreading. Truck crops in central and northern counties still in fair to good condition, but are beginning to show the effects of drought. Early potatoes have been dug, but some are rotting in storage. Peaches, early pears and apples are being picked, with fair yields. Late apples are sizing well and taking on color. Pastures in northern and central counties still fair to good, but beginning to turn brown. In southern counties, their condition is poor. Hay only fair. Early tobacco is blossoming, late tobacco generally poor.

Eastern Shore—Small grains all harvested. Corn fair to good, but in southern counties poor and burning because of lack of rain. Seasonal truck crops going to canneries with good yields reported. Tomatoes showing some blight; early crop good, late crop uncertain. Early peaches being picked. Late apples fair and sizing; some orchards poor. Pastures in South poor, fair to good elsewhere. All crops suffering from lack of rain.

National Weather Summary

Copyr., 1947, Rev. L. A. Wagner



24-HOUR FORECAST: Residents of the eastern third of the United States can expect to swelter during the coming 24 hours. In fact northern Maine will probably be hotter than Miami. The mercury will climb to 90 degrees or higher from Texas and the Gulf States to the Lower Lakes and New England as warm, moist air streams into these sections from the Gulf of Mexico.

A southward surge of cool air which has been building up in central Canada will push across the border and hold afternoon temperatudes in the cool, comfortable 70s from Minnesota to Montana. Warm, southerly winds will bring maximum readings to the 90s through the Rockies.

The New Orleans weather station reported a tropical storm 120 miles west of Campeche, Mexico, at 10 a. m. EST yesterday. This storm was moving west-northwestward 12 to 15 miles per hour and was accompanied by squally winds of 50 miles per hour. All interests have been cautioned against an increase of the intensity as the storm moves across the Gulf.

Most of the United States will enjoy sunshine from clear to partly cloudy skies today. Only the Gulf States will be overcast. A flow of cool air around the "Pacific High" will bring comfortable weather to the Far West with afternoon temperatures in the 80s and fog along the entire West Coast. (See FOTOCAST.)

Warm air from the Gulf of Mexico will pick up moisture, rise into thunderheads and release thunderstorms from the Gulf to New York and Michigan and through the Southern Rockies. Some scattered showers will occur in the Central Plains where warm, moist southerly air meets cool northerly winds near the cold air front. (See air flow arrows.)

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Columbia. Louis Guglielmo, et al, plaintiff, vs. Mattie Belle Sisk, et al, defendant. The object of this suit is to foreclose judgment liens against real property located within the District of Columbia, known and described as Lot seventy-six (76) in Square two thousand seventy (2070) improved by premises No. 2942 Ordway Street Northwest, the legal title to which is in the name of the defendant, Florence Jones, and Lot forty-six (46) in Square two thousand six hundred and sixty-eight (2668) improved by premises No. 1440 Harvard Street Northwest, the legal title to which is in the names of Thomas E. Sisk and Lillian Sisk, but to both of which, it is alleged, the equitable title is in the defendant, Mattie Belle Sisk. On motion of the plaintiff, it is this 1st day of August, 1947, ordered that the defendant, Florence Jones, cause her appearance to be entered herein on or before the fortieth day, exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays, occuring after the day of the first publication of this order; otherwise the cause will be proceeded with as in the case of default. Provided, a copy of this order be published once a week for three consecutive weeks in the Washington Law Reporter and The Washington Post before said day. EDWARD M. CURRAN, Justice. Attest: (Seal.) CHARLES E. STEWART, Clerk. By ELLA McDONALD, Deputy Clerk. Aug.13,20,27

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED States for the District of Columbia. Emma Williams, et al., plaintiffs, vs. Ada Randall Marshall, et al., defendants. Civil Action No. 37165. The object of this suit is to secure the partition and sale of certain real estate in the District of Columbia known as Lot 233 in Square 2886, improved by premises 724 Gresham Place, N.W., and to distribute the proceeds from such sale among the parties entitled as their interests may appear, and to establish the presumption of death of the defendant, Fred Ferguson (also known as Freddy Ferguson) by reason of absence for more than seven years. On motion of the plaintiff, it is this 11th day of August, 1947, ordered that the defendants, the unknown heirs or devisees of Fred Ferguson (also known as Freddy Ferguson), deceased, cause their appearance to be entered herein on or before the first rule day occurring after the expiration of three months from this date, otherwise the cause will be proceeded with as in case of default. Provided, a copy of this order be published twice a month for three months in the Washington Law Reporter and The Washington Post before said day. EDWARD M. CURRAN, Justice. A true copy. 'Capitol' in Car Card Causes Capital Controversy

It wonders whether you know that Washington is "the eighth Capitol" of the United States.

It explains that prior to the establishment of this city as the seat of government, the honor was held by New York, Philadelphia, Trenton, Princeton, Baltimore, Annapolis, York and Lancaster.

You might think that eight previous locations would make Washington the ninth, but the transit ad people explain that the Continental Congress stopped in two towns in one day while keeping one jump ahead of the British—so the two are counted as one.

There's also some controversy over the spelling of "capitol," which Webster defines as "the edifice at Washington in which the Congress holds its sessions."

One school of thought says that whenever the Continental Congress came to rest in a temporary capital, the meeting place became a temporary Capitol.

The other school contends that there's only one Capitol, and those eight other cities were merely temporary capitals.

Who's right?

SLIPS DON'T COUNT

Ed Hart, the radio guy, interviewed Henry Kaiser over WINX Tuesday night. But the radio audience missed the funniest part of the interview—because it was a wire recording.

When the recording was being made, Ed tried to ask Kaiser for a thumbnail sketch of his future plans. To his horror, he heard himself say instead:

Realizing his mistake, Hart blurted:

"What I meant to ask was, can you give us a thumbprint sketch of your plans?"

One of the advantages of a wire recording is that slips like that can be edited out before the recording is aired. Hart says: "Yeah—and am I glad it's so!"

ODDITY

Betty Butler, of Hancock Hall, McLean Gardens, contributes this one:

"The same gang catches the 7 o'clock bus to work every morning, and one of our favorites is a young Navy lieutenant who always has a cheery good morning for everybody.

"The other day, I was reading your column when he boarded the bus and began passing out candy and cigars, starting with the driver and working his way back through the crowded vehicle.

"He was celebrating the birth of his first son, and of course we all got a big kick out of this unusual incident."

GIVE-AWAYS

"One sweet little gray-striped kitten; one beautiful little all-black kitten." (OLiver 7812.)

CHAIN REACTION

Chain letters are back again. If you haven't already been approached, chances are that you probably will be, very soon.

Then you'll be given the same old baloney about everybody winning and nobody losing.

But when it's all over, you still won't find anybody who can explain how some people can profit unless others lose.

I'D SHOW 'EM

The District AAU outdoor senior men's and women's swimming championships will be decided Monday night at the Takoma Park pool. Three 1946 titleholders will defend their crowns against all comers.

I'd enter a few events myself, if I could only find a decent set of water wings.

Grin and Bear It

"... But two weeks vacation is hardly enough time to get engaged ... if a girl's going to act like a lady at all!"

Leonard Lyons

Pola Promotes Duke, Then Kills Him

Hollywood.—Jerry Geisler, the famed criminal lawyer here, gave a luncheon at the Jonathon Club to honor Judge Sam Leibowitz, who was America's best-known criminal lawyer before he became a judge in Brooklyn. It was attended by the most prominent members of the bar and bench and by law-enforcement officials. Geisler suggested that Leibowitz became a judge because he already had experienced every court room thrill. "No," Judge Leibowitz insisted, "I was like a ball player who discovers that his legs are going back on him because of advancing age and decides to take one of two choices left for him—turning manager or becoming an umpire."

Mrs. Leibowitz was invited to the luncheon. The Jonathon Club is a men's club where no women are permitted above the third floor, so Mrs. Leibowitz was taken to the eleventh floor luncheon room via a rear elevator.

When the luncheon was over and the guests started to depart, the elevator operator was bewildered at seeing a lady above the third floor for the first time in the club's history.

"I am not permitted to take any lady up or down," he insisted. Bailiff Al Wolff of Los Angeles showed the operator his official badge and said, "This lady is in my custody." Only by submitting to arrest was Mrs. Leibowitz allowed to step into the elevator and establish a precedent.

One of the collateral professions in the movie colony is that of ghost-writing books and magazine articles for the screen stars and executives. The men who work at this know how to deal with the vain, the odd, the sensitive, and the extroverts who become their clients. A writer once was assigned to do a book on the life story of Pola Negri.

Miss Negri was one of the top movie names at the time and an aura of mystery, intrigue and romance had been created around her. The author was mindful of this and in the first portion of the book he reported that a duke once had threatened to commit suicide over her. Miss Negri began to read the script and immediately made two changes. She crossed out "duke" and substituted "archduke." Then she crossed out "threatened to commit" and substituted "committed."

Darryl Zanuck, who always carries a stick weighted to the exact weight of a polo mallet, swung it carelessly and hit Gregory Ratoff who was walking behind him. Ratoff considers this an occupational hazard . . . Frank Sinatra used no double in the 11-foot jump and in the fight sequences of "The Kissing Bandit," but in the horse-riding sequences—because Sinatra doesn't ride well—a rubber horse complete with foam and flashing eye was substituted for a real one.

One of the local theaters specializes in revivals of films made a long time ago. Jeanette MacDonald went there yesterday to see "Love Parade," a film in which she appeared with Chevalier and which was directed by Lubitsch. She complained how old-fashioned it all seemed because of the difference in makeup, recording and acting technique. At Lubitsch's home later Miss McDonald showed how she would play those scenes today. "Up until now," said Lubitsch, "acting has been only a memory. It's unfair to show old films. An old film is like a woman's gown, to be seen once or twice and then only remembered."

Always Sunshine

Throughout each day at work or play . . . In every room and nook . . . The sun is always shining if . . . We just know where to look . . . The skies may have a murky cast . . . And it may even rain . . . But searching for the sunny side . . . Need never be in vain . . . Because the golden warmth we want . . . Is not a thing apart . . . But something rich within the reach . . . Of every purse and heart. . . It may be had at any time . . . For just a friendly smile . . . That brings its own reward and is . . . Consistently in style . . . The sun is always shining bright . . . However dark the skies . . . If only we know how to live . . . And where to turn our eyes.
